

Warren Orders Rest For Duck

DUCK BOARD OF STRATEGY PLOTS . . .

Frosh-Varsity Fight Looms

By BILL STRATTON

After three consecutive defeats, Oregon's varsity gridmen take a week of rest with all efforts pointed toward the Idaho game—the first home game—a week from Saturday. Warren announced Wednesday that the Ducks would take it easy this week, with a possible scrimmage against the frosh Saturday.

Pre-season prognosticators doped Oregon to end up in the lower bracket of the Pacific Coast conference, and made the rash prediction that the Webfoots would possibly bow to the Vandals.

Ducks Lose 'Em Close

Oregon has probably not the best team in the conference this season, but they are not the worst. They have dropped three straight, but all to top-notch teams and by a small margin.

Idaho has lost to Oregon State, 32 to 0, and beat little Cheney State in last week's game, 28 to 7. In the past, Idaho and Oregon have played 28 games—Oregon has won 22, the Vandals 2, and 4 have been ties.

Regardless of Oregon's statistical record this season, they should be rated over Idaho. Oregon's principal annoyance will come from Howard Manson, who has sparked the Vandals thus far this year, and is certainly not to be overlooked—and you can be sure that "Honest John" won't.

Webfoots Ease Up

The Duck squad will take it easy this week, concentrating on the mistakes made in the Washington tilt. Warren drilled the varsity on punt returns Wednesday, that were the cause of much of the Husky yardage last Saturday.

The second and third string played the frosh in a full-time game Tuesday, and triumphed over the yearlings, 13 to 0. Warren stated yesterday that he might throw the varsity at the Ducklings again before the week is up, possibly to try any new tricks he has in store for Francis X. Schmidt's Vandals.

Frosh Dummy Scrimmage; Several Still On Sick List

By SI SIDESINGER

Under the watchful eyes of Coaches Anse Cornell and Ray Segale, Oregon's Duckling football squad spent Wednesday evening in dummy scrimmage.

With several outstanding freshmen on the sidelines with injuries, the squad still shows great promise as individual players. Whether or not they may be combined into a good team is still to be seen.

Friday evening, October 23, the baby Ducks receive their first test of teamwork on Oregon State's Bell field when they meet the Oregon State Rooks in the initial game of the freshman season.

The freshman backs show promise of tremendous speed while the linemen are large enough to handle themselves against Oregon State or Washington freshman teams. Cornell realizes the individual qualities of the frosh but is not satisfied with the team play.

In the backfield, Ben Holcomb of The Dalles still shows his heels to other competition and so far has done the signal calling for the squad. Vern Wheeler, high scoring back from Newport, has so far been unable to turn out because of an infected foot. However he should be ready to go next Monday.

Tom Drouga, 210-pound fullback, has not yet reached top conditioning but should prove a valuable asset to the line bucking department when he does.

In the line Harold Ableson, Chuck Vanatta, and Don Stanton show varsity possibilities. Ray Heindenrich has good possibilities but lacks the aggressiveness shown by other tackles.

WAA MEETING
An important meeting of WAA representatives is scheduled for 3:45 today in the social room of Gerlinger hall.

Coeds Open V-Ball Season

Girls' intramural volleyball got off to a "bangup" start yesterday afternoon in Gerlinger gymnasium as Orides, Susie, and Hilyard house garnered victories. The play as a whole was good considering how early it is in the season, but lack of good teamwork was common.

With "Pete" Lawson's and Mary Anderson's spikes taking points, from the Gamma Phi eight, Orides' experienced courtsters came through with a 48118 victory.

Susan Campbell upset their own predictions and everyone else's as they overcame a stubborn Alpha Gam team, 47-17. Susie shows a well-balanced club, backed by strong substitutes.

An enthusiastic but inexperienced Delta Gamma eight lost to Captain Jo Reginato's Hilyard group, 41-24. DGs were troubled plenty by Phyllis Lloyd's expert spiking.

An all-star lineup of games are on tap for this afternoon as Kappa Kappa Gamma, who has had the largest turnout for practice of any team this year, matches skill with the strong University house. Last year's champs, coached again this year by "Bev" Goetz, match wares with an unknown Alpha Chi Omega eight.

Joe Gordon Comes Home

Joe Gordon's home! The hoot-and-holler guy that covers second base for the New York Yankees returned to Eugene yesterday and was warmly greeted by his Oregon friends.

They kind of remember Gordon around these parts. He used to play baseball for the University of Oregon. In fact, he got his sheepskin here along about 1936. A year later, he broke into the coast league, covering an infield position for Oakland Acorns, on a cash basis.

He must have looked good because after a year with Newark in the International league, the Yankees had him ink his John Henry to a fat contract. He's been with them ever since.

Eugene's number one athlete plans to leave shortly for eastern Oregon, on his animal hunting jaunt. He will be accompanied by Laddie Gale, former all-American hoopster for the Ducks.

Joe has played in three world series now. He's been a member of the best team in baseball two out of those three series.
