the groups of three wins the prize, there will be a drawing to determine which two of the houses will receive the bonds.

Decisions Broadcast

The judges' decisions will be picked up immediately after the parade and will be posted at the College Side, broadcast over the KORE noon news, and printed in today's edition of the Register-Guard.

Sigma Delta Chi, men's national professional journalism fraternity, and the Emerald, co-sponsors of the affair, have announced that the following list of articles will be acceptable for the scrap piles:

Things to Bring

Ash cans, pails, saw blades, metal beds, springs, old irons, lawn mowers, radiators, washing machines, kitchen sinks, pipe, farm, garden and automobile tools, electric motors, jar tops, light fixtures, furnace grates, furnaces, lamp bulbs, golf clubs, plant stands, washboards, metal hangers, notebook hinges, kitchen utensils, trophies, bicycles, skates, keys and most other miscellaneous scrap metal articles.

Houses which will be grouped by threes for the parade are:

Alpha Delta Pi, Campbell club, Phi Sigma Kappa; Alpha Omicron Pi, Sigma Nu, Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Alpha Tau Omega, Orides, Alpha Phi; Hendricks hall, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Alpha hall; Sigma Kappa, Delta Upsilon, Phi Kappa Psi; Pi Beta Phi, Sigma Chi, Theta Chi; Alpha Gamma Delta, Yeomen, Omega hall.

Other houses have been paired off as follows:

Alpha Chi Omega, Chi Psi; Alpha Xi Delta, Sigma hall; Chi Omega, Gamma hall; Delta Delta Delta, Phi Gamma Delta; Delta Gamma, Sigma Alpha Mu; Gamma Phi Beta, Delta Tau Delta; Highland house, Zeta hall; Hilyard house, Canard cub; Kappa Alpha Theta, Kirkwood co-op; Kappa Kappa Gamma, Sherry Ross hall; Susan Campbell hall, Beta Theta Pi; University house, Phi Delta Theta; Zeta Tau Alpha, Pi Kappa Alpha.

Emerald Idea

The noise-scraping parade idea was originated by the Emerald and SDX, and carried out through the cooperation of all campus living organizations and service groups. Members of Skull and Dagger and Kwamas, sophomore men's and women's honoraries, started the ball rolling by visiting each house and explaining the set-up.

Representatives were chosen later by each men's house and sent to the journalism building where they were instructed in their part of the campaign.

Helpers Enlisted

Representatives who participated in the planning and drawing for partners in the scrap hunt were:

Johnnie Lauc, Alpha Tau Omega; Bill Murray, Omega hall; Loren Lynch, Sherry Ross hall; Roy H. Walker, Sigma hall; Dave Smith, Phi Sigma Kappa; Bruce Kirkpatrick, Delta Upsilon; Aaron Jones, Kirkwood; Chuck Reed, Phi Kappa Psi.

Red Cross Units In Scrap Show

The scrap parade will really be an event today, and the local Red Cross believes in doing its part. It won't be in the way of scrap, but people will know they are there.

Representatives from the cadet, surgical dressing, and staff assistants will be dressed in their respective uniforms and will march in the parade. There will also be 15 cars from the motor corps division. These will not be turned in for the drive, but are just to give effect to the march.

Miss Mabel Wood, supervisor for surgical dressings, and Miss Jackson, have been holding classes Friday afternoons at Chapman to instruct future instruc-

ISA Distributes Activity Outline

A complete and detailed explanation of "How to Enter Activities" will be distributed to Independent students during the latter part of next week in the form of an ISA service bulletin, it was decided at a special ISA cabinet meeting last night.

The decision followed suggestions made at the first senate meeting last Thursday afternoon, and is part of the ISA program to increase the activity interest of Independent students, Al Larsen, president, explained.

Independents having a desire to help publish the first bulletin are urged to contact one of the cabinet members during the next three days, before the bulletin committee has been formed.

horses around. Canard boys found themselves stranded in the country with their scrap when they ran out of gas. They're going to use the hay rack today.

Guards

The sleepy looking characters seen this morning really are sleepy—they had to stand watch all night on precious scrap piles.

Thursday night taught the lesson when a dispute arose concerning the ownership of a jalopy parked beside the Chi Omega house, and finally the girls called in the aid of Gamma hall and the Yeomen to protect the precious scrap.

All-night vigils were considered worth while, too, after the time and trouble some people went to in getting their junk collected.

Cut It Up!

Alpha Tau Omega arranged to get a furnace from Sacred Heart Hospital, but the trouble came when they started to take the furnace out of the place. It is rumored they cut it out piece by piece.

No one ever realized how many jalopies there were at Oregon, but a short look around the campus this morning will enlighten anyone on the subject.

"Watch the Fords go buy will be a rather appropriate theme for today's parade when the remains of many an old timer goes to the city scrap pile.

Safety Show Slated

Safety methods for canoes and small craft will be demonstrated at the men's pool Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock by Mr. Wallace Van B. Claussen of the national water safety staff of the American Red Cross. Mr. Claussen, a one-time Olympic coach, will also discuss general water safety problems.

Houses Must Prove Mettle In Noise Parade Today

By EDITH NEWTON

No matter who wins the noise and scrap contest today, Oregon students won't soon forget the scrap metal drive—it's something to tell the grandchildren about.

What else but a scrap metal drive would make pledges hike to the local garbage dump, sophomores look for the worst cars they can find instead of the smoothest, juniors whisper among each other concerning the advisability of scrapping the house furniture, and seniors scratch their heads over how to haul the mess of junk?

Wood Type

The Emerald, in an extreme attempt at patriotism, used wooden type for the banner headline on today's issue in order not to use necessary metal.

Hilyard house girls evidently went mighty patriotic when they decided to give up baths. Anyway, there was a bathtub for the scrap drive in front of their house Friday.

Ford Becomes Bumper

When Canard club boys had to be pushed after running out of gas in the country while looking for scrap, Henry Ford and Ted Miller made themselves into human bumpers so the car could be pushed—all so they could get home with their scrap collection.

Alpha Chi Omega girls scoured their house so thoroughly they declared last night that they were absolutely sure of winning first prize.

Wrecks Found

Gamma Phi Betas proudly announced they had found two wrecks and managed to get them home.

Greatest problem at a late hour last night was how each group could possibly pull all the metal scrap they had hauled home.

KOAC Celebrates Power Increase

To celebrate the increase in power of their daytime broadcasting from 1000 to 5000 watts, KOAC held a day-long dedication broadcast Friday.

Originating from every division of the state system of higher education, the program celebrated the operation of complete new equipment, the most of which amounted to $50,000 in state-appropriated money.

The University presented a 45-minute program, directed and produced by Kenneth S. Wood. Dr. Earl M. Pallett, executive secretary and registrar, spoke in the absence of Donald M. Erb, University president, who is in the East.

The string ensemble, directed by Rex Underwood, presented several numbers and the Radio Workshop produced a drama entitled, "The Key."

judged on the basis of catchiness and originality, the winner receiving a $5 prize. Contestants may contribute as many entries as they wish to Cloud at 1472 Kincaid or to the alumni office in Friendly hall. Slogans should be as brief as possible.

"Entries ought to fit in with the idea that this year we are honoring Oregon alums in the armed services," Cloud said.

He added that the slogans might emphasize the more local nature of this year's celebration.

Further Plans

Skipping over events for the coming week, the chairman listed the service alumni competition, which is already under way, and the appointment of the remainder of his committee. Still unnamed are members to direct general events, special events, and hospitality.

The living organization with the greatest number of alumni serving in the armed forces will be presented a service flag at ceremonies in McArthur court Friday evening of Homecoming weekend. Cloud said that the lists turned in by each house would be compiled and confirmed by the alumni office by November 2.

Wartime Spirit

"This contest and the rally at which the winning house will be given the service flag are intended to heighten the theme of student participation in the war effort," the chairman said. "This is largely the purpose of Homecoming this year: to remind alums and the public in general that the student remaining in school is not dodging his share of the war effort, but rather contributing directly now, or preparing to contribute soon."
