

TRADITIONAL NOISE PARADE CLIMAXES UO SCRAP DRIVE

With every University student seemingly giving everything but the legendary eye teeth to support the war effort, tons of scrap metal of every shape and size were dragged, carried, and pushed down Willamette street last Saturday morning amid such a din as has never before rocked the walls of staid Eugene office buildings.

Shown above are a few of the "floats" and students who decorated the parade. Not only students joined in the parade as is proven by the inset showing the organized labor truck. Below are shown one of the numerous signs illustrating the typical college spirit usually reserved for opposing football teams, and a scrap "bomb" addressed to Mr. Hitler.

Typifying the general attitude of the students was a sign seen near the first of the parade . . . "This is only the Beginning!" Delta Tau Delta and Gamma Phi Beta were judged noise-scrap winners.

'Home Fires Are Burning' Encourages Winning Slogan

"The home fires are burning."

This significant statement is the winning motto of the Homecoming slogan contest.

"It sums up the spirit of the occasion," stated Pat Cloud, Homecoming chairman. "Homecoming this year is dedicated to the men who have left the gates of Oregon for the battlefields. 'The home fires are burning,' in the mill, in the foundry, in ships at sea, on the hearth at home, and in the hearts of all the people."

Schricks Win

Betty Biggs Schrick and Ray J. Schrick contributed the winning slogan, it was decided late Monday night by the contest committee. Other entries were "Ducks in Khaki" and "Retread Your Way to Oregon." Although this year's celebration probably will not be so gay as before, it should prove more satisfying and inspiring than previous homecomings, according to Cloud.

The slogan contest was the first of a group of three such activities.

Editors Slate Annual Meet

Editors, business managers and reporters representing 48 high school newspapers in all parts of the state have registered for the 18th Oregon High School Press conference which is to be held on the University campus Friday and Saturday. To date it has been announced that 126 delegates will attend the two-day convention.

Climaxing the meet, which will include round table discussions, talks by several prominent jour-

Whiskerino

One little whisker and how it grew
Came another day or so, then there were two.

One sophomore male was happy and shouted with glee
For when he woke one morning, by golly there were three.

One patient little sophomore went down to the store
Bought some hair restorer, then there were four.

One sophomore smoked a big cigar, thought he would survive.
He coughed and nearly choked to death, but then there were five.

A weak and puny sophomore got as strong as bricks
By eating spinach all day long, and then there were six.

One poor soph got awful sick, thought he'd go to heaven.
On the morning after the night before, by golly there were seven.

One fella went out for a drive and took along a date,
And on the way he stole a kiss, and then there were eight.

One went to a burlesque show, sent shivers up his spine.
He got embarrassed all to heck, but then there were nine.

Whiskers Assume Spotlight In First All-Campus Dance

By HARRY GLICKMAN

Oregon students will swing-out at the first all-campus dance of the year Saturday at McArthur court when the sophomore class presents the annual Whiskerino.

George Carey and his 14-piece University dance band will play for the first time on the campus Saturday. The dance will start at 9 and last until 12:15, with women probably being granted 1 o'clock permission.

Igloo Ready

By necessity decorations will be very simple, but according to Bryce Sidesinger, Whiskerino
