(Continued from page one) are accepted for advanced training under the ROTC program will continue in school as they have in the past.

Remainder

The remainder of students enlisted in the program will continue in their respective majors as usual, with the addition of certain courses to prepare them for special service work. Among the special service branches of the army are army administration, anti-aircraft artillery, air force administration, chemical warfare, finance, medical administration corps, ordnance, quartermaster corps, and signal corps.

"The University plans to set up the proper curricula to qualify men for one of these special officers' candidate schools, and the plans will be announced later," said Dr. Kossack.

Students who wish further information on this branch of service should consult the enlisted reserve corps office, room 2, commerce.
