'ROTC Good As Reserve' Says McNair

At a recent address before a graduating class of officers at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, Lieut. General Lesly J. McNair, commander of the army ground forces, made known that 200,000 officers had been commissioned in the army and that candidate schools are graduating others at a rate of 12,000 per month.

At the commencement of the year there were 13,152 officers in the regular army, and the reserve officers corps totaled 104,000 officers. For the most part these officers came from the ROTC of universities and colleges.

Supply Needed

In order to preserve the source of supply of potential officers normally produced by the ROTC by continuing students in college as long as the military situation and the demands for man-power will permit, the army enlists students in the army enlisted reserve corps. No special college courses are required by the army for enlisted reservists.

About 90 sophomores each spring are selected for the advanced ROTC course at the University of Oregon and upon graduation are sent to an officers' training camp for three months' training, the successful completion of which results in their appointment as second lieutenants.

Students are enlisted "unassigned" and when called to active duty may express their choice of 13 branches of the army in which they desire to serve and are assigned according to their qualifications.

Promotion Chance

Enlisted reservists who do not make the advanced course, when and if called to active duty have a splendid chance for promotion from the ranks, due to the demand for men with previous military training.

Among the hundreds of thousands to be called by the selective service act the proportion of

ISA Frosh Delegate

Petitions of candidates for freshman representative of the ISA must be submitted to Leighton Platt at Campbell club by noon today.

Pajama-Clads Rally Tonight

Pajama-clad males accompanied by feminine admirers will start from the ATO and Chi Psi houses and the men's dorm at 6:45 tonight to serpentine to 15th and Kincaid, where they will converge and proceed to the steps of Johnson hall for the first mass rally of the term.

Highlighting the evening, bedecked males will parade on the steps to show off their night-wear for the benefit of women judges from the rally squad, who will bestow a plaid flannel night-shirt as the prize for the best-undress.

Congratulations Given

Special congratulations will be bestowed by a woman from the squad whose name will be determined by lot.

Ted Loud, new yell king, will present two new yells to be used in the game with Idaho tomorrow, while the University band will furnish music. Marvin Brown and his banjo will also entertain.

"My only regret is that I must wear my rally sweater instead of my own flashy nightshirt," mourned Clint Paine, rally squad chairman.

Team

Members of the team who will be present to give their opinion of the coming contest are:

Tommy Roblin, Ed Moshofsky, Dick Ashcom, Russ Nowling, Steve Bodner, Jim Shephard, Val Culwell, Floyd Rhea, Bob Davis, and Tom Terry.

Kwama and Skull and Dagger, sophomore honoraries, and the rally squad will lead the processions.

Legal Reports

The law school has received a 275-volume gift of the Pacific Reporter. It is from the estate of the late Louis Denham and contains the legal reports from the western states.

Late Per Set For Soph Hop

Official announcement was made Thursday that girls attending the Sophomore Whiskerino Saturday night will receive one o'clock permission. The dance will start at 9 p.m. and last until 12:15.

Indications point to a large crowd for the annual sophomore class dance. George Carey and his 14-piece University dance band made a decided hit with Oregon students at Thursday's assembly.

Vocalists

Carey's two featured vocalists, Pat Wood and lovely Pat McCoy, each will be featured at the dance.

Short silks will be in order for the Sophomore Whiskerino Saturday night, according to Bryce Sidesinger, chairman. Sidesinger reported last night that there was some confusion on this point.

Tickets can now be secured at the educational activities office or at the door the night of the dance.

Contestants

Contestants for Betty Coed and Joe College, met with a committee in Gerlinger hall last night where four boy and girl finalists were selected. Their names will appear on the ballot the night of the dance. Couples in attendance will vote for the winners, who will be presented silver loving cups.

Also on the entertainment schedule is the presentation of the winner of the beard growing contest. Each living organization will have one representative. The winner will be picked by a committee of campus barbers, who will shave him and present him a shaving mug.

Although decorations will be very simple, the large Igloo floor will be in shape for dancing.

Pajama Rally

A freshman, rebellious and bold, Won't wear his pajamas, we're told.

He was heard to declare, "In this late autumn air I'm afraid I'll be frightfully cold."

War Council Chairman Appoints Activity Heads

Several campus defense activity heads were announced by the University student war council chairman, Len Barde, yesterday.

Directly under Barde are four divisions whose chairmen he has appointed as follows: secretary, Jean Frideger; finance, Jack Robinson; publicity, Norma Trevorrow, and the defense council, whose different departments are headed by Oge Young, Carolyn Holmes, Marge Curtis, Bill Lilly, Jim Bennison, Rhoda Harkson, and Don Brinton.

Advisory Council

There will also be an advisory council, the members of which are Carolyn Holmes, Max Brown, and Russ Hudson.

Oge Young, junior in law, is in charge of the service scholarship fund which includes the plan for students to contribute daily as many coins as there are enemy planes downed by the United Nations on that day. The University Victory Bell, which will probably

Student Heads Convene Today

Collegiate leaders from the entire state will be welcomed to the campus this morning by the executive committee for the annual convention of the Oregon Federation of College Leaders.

College and its part in the war program, student-faculty relations, distribution of college activities, and woman's part in student government are problems to be discussed at convention meetings.

Registration

Following registration in Johnson hall at 9 o'clock this evening, the members of Kwama and Skull and Dagger will assist in housing guests in the various living organizations. Highlights of the convention will be the informal banquet at McCrady's cafe this War-time problems of editors and managers of high school newspapers will be the main topic of thought and discussion at the 18th annual Oregon High School Press association conference which opens today at 9:30 a.m. in 12 Friendly hall. High school journalists from all parts of Oregon arrived on the campus last night for the two-day meet. Over 50 schools are represented.

A busy weekend is in store for delegates with morning and afternoon sessions slated for Friday to be climaxed Friday night with the annual banquet held in the Osburn hotel. A morning session will be held Saturday and delegates are invited to attend the Oregon-Idaho grid contest Saturday afternoon and the Whiskerino Saturday night.

Several prominent journalists and members of the University school of journalism faculty will speak to the high school newsmen and round table discussions will be held between the delegates. Problems confronting editors and business managers of high school annuals will also be taken up at a special session. A

Service Men Lists Due November 4

Service men lists for the Homecoming contest must be turned in to Uly Dorais, chairman, at the Theta Chi fraternity, or the alumni office no later than midnight of Wednesday, November 4. The alum's name, best address, rank and branch of service, class and also any outstanding battle honors or interesting experiences should be typewritten on 3x5 filing cards. For any further information see Uly Dorais, or one of his committee members—Sue Slater, Virginia Wells, Ardis Jensen, Marty Conlin, and Art Damschen.

LONG ENOUGH TO WIN? . . .

. . . is what Phyllis Horstmann, Kwama president, and Verlie Myers, last year's Little Admiral, are asking as they measure the beard of Sherman Oits, sophomore Whiskerino contestant.
