

Frosh Await Whistle for Opener

Meet Orange Rooks Tonight In Corvallis

By SI SIDESINGER

Tonight at 8 o'clock in Corvallis, on Bell field, Coaches Jim Carr of Oregon State and Anse Cornell of Oregon pull the wraps from their freshman squads in the first of the "little civil wars" between the two age-old rivals.

In the Oregon camp Coach Cornell has his squad ready to go. After a short drill under the lights on Hayward field last night to accustom the boys to the glare of the reflectors, Cornell was satisfied that his Ducklings were in as good shape as they could be considering the short time they have had to prepare for the contest.

The squad is free of injuries and in excellent spirit for the knock-down-drag-out affair the Oregon-Oregon State frosh games usually turn out to be.

Starting Eleven

The Duckling starting lineup has been picked and to the team's followers it appears to be a wise election. At left end is Ralph Barnewolt, an excellent defensive man. Wayne Terry, a 190-pound mountain of muscle, will hold down the left tackle spot.

Next to Terry at left guard is Bill Hanna, an ex-all star from Grant high in Portland. At the pivot spot is Russell Hawk, who ranks with Barnewolt on defense.

Starting on the right side of the line is Bill Murphy, right guard. Next in line are two husky boys who tip the scales near the 200 mark and who played a lot of ball together at Jefferson in Portland. Don Stanton at right tackle and Harold Ableson right end, are the two lads and it is a guarantee that both boys will let their presence be known tonight when the kickoff begins the game.

Porter Calls Signals

In the backfield are four boys on whom a great deal depends. Jim Porter at quarterback is a hard-driving blocker who should deliver the goods under pressure.

At left half is the outstanding back of this season's squad, Benny Holcomb of The Dalles. Holcomb not only has the ability in running, blocking, passing and kicking, but also calls the signals for the team.

Indian Boss Tough Now

Stories behind the pigskin headlines:

Stanford university's football coach, Marchie Schwartz gave his Indians definite instructions about the kind of score he wanted them to register against the Idaho Vandals last Saturday at Palo Alto.

"Pour it on!" he told the boys. And they did just that, 54-7, and every man on the Stanford squad got into the ball game. You see, Schwartz is rather leary of having his team hold the score down when he thinks that they should win a ball game in easy fashion.

Creighton Favored

Schwartz used to coach Creighton university back in Omaha, Nebraska. Several years ago when C. U. was having one of her good seasons, the squad came to the last ball game of the season unbeaten, facing a club they were favored to lick by any margin they so desired.

Before the ball game's kick-off, Schwartz learned that the enemy half, Bill Bodner, is making his own name here with the frosh without following his older brother Steve, varsity center. In the fullback slot is Eugene Crouch, a versatile runner and a hard-driving powerhouse when extra yardage is needed.

At Oregon State the starting lineup has not been made public. This follows in the usual manner of the State coaching staff. No idea can be given of the strength of the Orange Babe but do not sell the Baby Beavers short with their 81-man squad.

BEAVER DEMISE . . .

. . . at hands of the "white hot" Santa Clara Broncos, 7 to 0, last Saturday in Portland. Jesse Freitas, Bronco half, chalks up first down on Orange 10, as Joe Day (52) and Lloyd Wickett (68) come in for the stop.

Ducks Taper Off, Wait

By BILL STRATTON

Oregon's Webfoot gridders completed workouts yesterday in preparation for Francis X. Schmidt and his colorful Idaho Vandals.

The physical condition of the Idaho aggregation is questionable after the 54 to 7 trouncing they took last week at the hands of Stanford, but the Oregons will not start a lineup of veterans.

Furthermore, the Ducks haven't started a line-up of veterans this year. Injuries have been a handicap to the Webfoots throughout the season, but the situation is anything but serious.

Ashcom In Question

The durability of Dick Ashcom's recently injured leg is questionable, but he will be counted on for plenty of action. In the event that he cannot hold out, one-year letterman Merrit Kufferman will undoubtedly continue the sparkling performances he has given already this year.

Val Culwell hasn't worked out regularly since the Washington game because of an injured wrist, but "Red Dog" Bob Davis has proven to be a capable replacement.

The rest of the Oregon line is intact, however, and will be a tough nut for the razzle-dazzle Vandals to crack. Nowling and Shephard can be depended on to cover the end positions, Ed Moshofsky will be booming in on the opposite tackle from either Ashcom or Kufferman.

"Scrappy" Rhea will be grinding the center of the opponent's line in one guard position as usual—as well as booting extra points. Steve Bodner can be depended on for a creditable performance at the center post.

Backfield Good

The backfield will not be a veteran one, but plenty effective. If "Rainbow" Roblin continues to block like he did in the Washington tussle, he will give his mates plenty of protection, and the Vandal ball carriers plenty of trouble while he is backing up the line.

Grid Winners? Emerald Picks 'Em

Although we admit that there has never been a "fool proof" system of football prognostication, nevertheless sports experts from the Emerald staff comes up with the following winning selections for this Saturday's Pacific coast gridiron clashes:

Idaho-Oregon: The Webfoots should take this one by a 3-touchdown margin.

OSC-WSC: The Cougars to emerge victorious by six points.

Stanford-USC: Flip of the coin gives the nod to Troy by a frog's eyelash.

Wash.-Cal.: The Huskies to score a one-touchdown margin. Watch out for the improving Bears.

UCLA-Santa Clara: Toss-up, Bruins get the nod. Don't bet your portable radio on this one.

In appreciation of a gift of land for the Allegheny college campus in 1820, the trustees purchased a $15 Canton crepe dress for Mrs. Samuel Lord, wife of the donor, during the coming year.

CALIFORNIA GUARD GRABS PASS, BUT GOLDEN BEARS LOSE . . .

. . . to UCLA in Berkeley Saturday, 21 to 0. John Dodds, Bear lineman, seized a pass from Cal Halfback Gene Pickett, and fought his way downfield six yards before Herb Wiener (left) spilled him. Don Seaver (right), Bear tackle, runs interference.
