Service Men To Get Copies Of Alum Mag

Copies of Old Oregon, University alumni magazine, will be sent to alums serving overseas, according to an announcement made Tuesday by Corinne Nelson, president of Mortar Board. With this announcement various men's houses in the alum service contest for Homecoming were spurred on to victory as the final list of names is going to serve as a directory for Mortar Board members.

Signs Delayed

Because of a fire in Kaye Loomis's sign manufacturing shop, the appearance of the chart to mark the progress of the various houses will be delayed until Thursday or Friday of this week.

Comparison of the first lists will be made this afternoon at the alumni office. All preliminary lists should be turned in to Guy Dorais, chairman of the alumni service contest, or the alumni office before noon today.

Lilly suggested that any house not having done so already should appoint a man to take charge of the compiling and handing in of these lists.

Claypool Halts Parcel Service

In the future, packages too large for a local mail box must be posted at the postoffice at Fifth and Willamette streets since the substitution formerly located at the Claypool-Van Atta drug store has been closed because of lack of help in the store.

The University postoffice at the physical plant will not handle mail for students since this mail service has been set up exclusively for campus use and the mail of University departments. J. O. Lindstrom, University business manager, said Friday that the University has neither the equipment, space, nor help to handle

UO Journalists Schedule '42 'Shack Rat Shindig'

The ship isn't sinking so Friday afternoon at 3:30 the shack rats will swarm aboard. Sigma Delta Chi and Theta Sigma Phi, the two national journalism honoraries, are sponsoring an all-journalism party. The typewriters will be rolled back for the dancing of Emerald workers, non-Emerald workers, faculty, and non-faculty.

No one will be turned away if he studies journalism or likes to play, eat, and sleep the stuff. Admission is free so journalism majors may save their box tops for slogan contests.

General Chairmen Janet Wagstaff, Margie Robinson, Theta Sig, and Ted Goodwin, SDX, have appointed administrative details to the following: Marjorie Major, publicity; Ann Reynolds and Carol Greening, cider and doughnuts, which will be dished out by

'Scrap Again In Season,' Says UO War Council

By ARLISS BOONE

Waste fat, scrap, and paper are the next items to be collected by the campus organizations for the war effort, according to Marge Curtis and Bill Lilly, who are taking charge of the salvage department of the student war council for the campus. Miss Curtis and Lilly are assistants to Len Barde, chairman of the student war council.

Representatives

Each living organization will have one or two representatives to collect the waste material in boxes and save it for the collections, they said. Miss Curtis said that a truck may possibly be engaged to collect the waste at certain designated points.

Miss Curtis and Mr. Lilly attended a luncheon of the Lane county war council at the Osborne hotel. The council praised the good work done by the students and asked that they continue the work. The scrap metal drive was just the beginning, Lilly emphasized, not the climax of the campus war work.

Letters to Cooks

The Phi Theta Upsilon girls under Miss Curtis will take charge within their own houses, she said, and other girls will be appointed for the remaining houses. Lilly has organized a list of men to take charge in the men's houses.

A special committee, appointed for boarding houses, will possibly send letters to the cooks of each house urging them to save all extra waste fat and paper. This committee will be headed by Ruth Kay Collins and Ann Reynolds.

The names of all the cooperating organizations will be published regularly. The scrap collected will be sold to the butchers and scrap dealers in Eugene, Miss Curtis explained, and the funds will be given to the service scholars' fund for the students returning after the war.

Sinkers Sold Rain Or Shine

Doughnuts, the round ones with holes in 'em, will go on sale at six booths on the campus Thursday morning as the annual YWCA doughnut sale gets off to an early start—rain or shine.

Besides the doughnuts with holes in them, special mocha doughnuts will be sold for the regular five-cents-each price.

Booths will be located at the library, between the commerce building and the Oregon building; at Friendly hall, at the art school, and the Co-op store.

Virginia Welles is in charge of the all-campus sale, with Peggy Wright in charge of sales girls. Dorothy Hansen will act as cashier and keep accounts for the sale.

Shirley McCloud will be in charge of doughnut distribution and will keep each booth supplied with doughnuts throughout the two-day sale. Marilyn Odom is in charge of the booths.

The house sale of doughnuts last week ended with more than 200 dozen sold to the various living organizations, according to Bonnie Umphlette, general chairman of the sale. Beta Theta Pi bought the most of any one organization, setting a record of nine dozen.

Captain Thomas C. Prunty Disproves Popular Rumors

By DON MACKENZIE

The Oregon campus seems to be the home of several unfounded rumors, according to Captain Thomas C. Prunty, enlisted reserve corps representative of the joint college procurement board.

"The general impression here at Oregon seems to be that if a man joins a reserve program he will be allowed to stay

Oregana pictures will be taken Wednesday of the Kappa Alpha Theta house at the downtown offices of Kennell-Ellis.

Dorsey Tickets To Sell in Blocks

Tickets for the Homecoming Tommy Dorsey dance will go on sale Thursday at 8:15 a.m. in McArthur court, it was announced yesterday by Dick Williams, educational activities manager.

Admission is $2.20 per couple. To avoid confusion all tickets will be sold to house blocks instead of to the individual students.

Each house will select one representative who will purchase tickets for all members of his organization.

It was urged by the activities manager that living organizations buy their tickets as early as possible.

Campus Military Police Called for Instruction

Lieutenant R. G. Davis has called a meeting for those students in the advanced ROTC section who volunteered to do campus military police duty. It is to be held in room 2, commerce at 4:30 this afternoon. The meeting is for those men who recently volunteered for this duty in their military classes.

The purpose of this meeting is to discuss the methods for handling air raid alerts on the campus, and will last for 30 minutes. All MPs are asked to be there promptly at 4:30.

Collection of scrap for the new salvage drive on the campus should be started at once before any of the Jap-slapping material is destroyed.

Joint Board To Interview For Two Days

An estimated 1000 men attended the assembly sponsored by the joint Procurement board in McArthur court Tuesday.

Reserve classes were explained by members of the board and following the assembly they took offices on the campus where they will be available for personal interviews until Thursday noon.

All offices with the exception of the army enlisted reserve corps are in the physical education building. The enlisted reserve office is in room 2 commerce.

The board is on the campus to distribute preliminary enlistment material to interested men so that they may have all necessary papers for enlistment when the joint medical board arrives on November 4.

Men who so desire will be enlisted, and sworn into all classes with the exception of the navy air corps, when the medical board arrives.

Preliminary Physical

Men who wish to enlist in the navy air corps will be given a preliminary physical and if this is passed successfully they will be sent, expenses paid, to Seattle for final enlistment.

It has been suggested that, in order to eliminate as much confusion as possible the following schedule of conferences be followed today:

Morning: sophomores, juniors, and seniors in liberal arts, law, education, and music.

Afternoon: freshmen in BA, architecture and allied arts, journalism, and physical education.

Movie Pictures Blood Bank Use

"The Heart of Spain," a movie dealing with the use of blood banks in the Spanish civil war, will be shown Thursday by Asklepiads, pre-med honorary.

Asklepiads, who are in charge of the blood bank section of campus defense, will also show the movies "The Story of Appendicitis," and "They Choose to Live," the latter telling of developments in the treatment of cancer.

"The movies are not technical in nature and will appeal to the layman as well as to pre-med and science majors," Tim Brinton, president of the honorary, explained.

The movies will be shown at a matinee beginning at 4 p.m. Thursday and at 7:30 that evening, in room 207 Chapman. They will last approximately an hour and a half. Admission is 20 cents, and tickets will be on sale at the door.

Olin to Represent Freshmen in ISA

Jack Olin, freshman in business administration, is the new frosh representative to the ISA senate, according to election results received Tuesday night.

A meeting of the ISA senate will be held Thursday at 4 p.m. in 204 Chapman hall. All senators must be there, it was announced by Leighton Platt, vice-president.
