

Dan Wessler Plays Villain In 'Watch'

Black Friday is the opening of the University theatre's fall term production, "Watch on the Rhine." Like all Friday the 13ths, interesting things will be happening—things like suspicion, Nazi underhand work, and villainy.

The villain of this production played by Dan Wessler, a freshman on the campus this year. Not only will he frighten little boys, little girls, and the audience, but he terrifies the cast into a state of collapse each night at rehearsal. His deep, rolling, German accent may have quite a bit to do with it, together with his 6 feet 3 inches of masculinity.

"Tech" Wessler is a Portland man from Lincoln and has played in several Civic theater productions. After graduation, he tells us, he worked a term at Meier & Frank's and then came down to the University for his first year.

In private life, Marlborough-smoking Wessler is a classical music fan, even to the point of having taken several years of singing lessons.

Another interesting character in the cast for the "Watch" is Bobbie Joe Quigby. Twelve-year-old Bobbie takes the part of the German refugee boy. The campus will remember him for his part last year in "George Washington Slept Here." Blond, small, and a Eugene boy, Bobbie Joe is a student at the local junior high school.

Orchestral Concert Set

With a list of standard classics for its program the University orchestra will present its first concert of the year November 19 in the music auditorium. Directing the orchestra will be Mr. Rex Underwood, professor of music at the University since 1919.

The program will include a concerto grosso for strings by Handel, "L'arlesienne Suite number 1" by Bizet, the overture to "Sakantula" by Goldmark, and "Danse Macabre" by Saint-Saens. Highlighting the program will be violinist Elizabeth Walker, who will play Beethoven's concerto. This work, the only violin concerto composed by Beethoven, is one of the most beautiful and at the same time most difficult works that he ever composed.

Concertmaster of the orchestra is violinist Verne Sellin, who is also one of the soloists in the Handel concerto grosso. Other soloists are June Grantz, violinist, and Irene Clark, cellist. The orchestra personnel at present numbers about 55.

The Rev. Frederick G. Hickey and Prof. J. J. Hanley, both of the chemistry department of Providence college, are manufacturing "sniff sets," containing poison gas samples, as an aid to civilian defense.
