

Webfoot Heavy Guns Trained On Beavers' Bell Field Today

MARGE DIBBLE, AWS PRESIDENT . . .
... hands a check for $110 to Oge Young, Service Scholarship Fund head . . . the money was raised by a 25c admission charge made at the recent Coed Capers . . . it will be used in the scholarship fund for students who will return to the University after the war.

Coed Caper Proceeds Added To Service Scholarship Fund

Newest addition to the service scholarship fund is $110 from Coed Capers proceeds which Marge Dibble, AWS president, turned over this week to Oge Young, chairman of the service scholarship fund.

Purpose of the fund is to buy war bonds, which will be cashed in after the war and used for scholarships for returning service men.

According to Florence Cooley, head of the finance department for Coed Capers, over 1000 tickets were sold and a total of $221.06 was taken in at the annual affair for women only.

Besides the $110 from the Capers and $45 from the Penny Parade, which was the amount left after purchasing a University service flag to be hung outside Johnson hall, money from the following sources has also gone into the service scholarship fund.

Proceeds from the salvage drive, for the collection of scraps in the kitchen including waste fats and tin cans; all money from the liberty box in the Co-op store, consisting primarily of pennies for service men; all donations from dads' and mothers' clubs; bonds from campus living organizations, defense stamps; and half of all money taken in at the Heart Hop.

Church to Hear Nilssen

Mr. Sigurd Nilssen, bass-baritone and professor of voice at the University school of music will sing at the Lutheran church of Silverton, Oregon, November

Mr. Nilssen's appearance will be on the closing day of the Lutheran church's celebration of the 50th anniversary of its founding.

Loud to Shout A-WS Items

Getting in practice today for another kind of cajoling . . . that of dynamic super-salesmanship . . . is acrobatic yell king, Ted Loud. He and his auctioneering partner, G. Duncan Wimpress, will take over the block in front of the Side, Tuesday at 4 to sell the worrisome articles that have been accumulating in the lost and found department of the University depot.

Florence Hamilton, chairman of the event, is "earnestly and intensely" praying against rain forcing postponement of the auction. Last year the auction had to be postponed twice.

Some of the odd and varied assortment to go on the block are as follows: one political science, ten modern comp, two accounting, one world history, three business English, three shorthand, three Spanish, one German, three algebra, three physics, two British poetry, and one business law book, a plaid vest, zipper notebook, ten looseleaf notebooks, thirty-one scarves, eight mittens, three Oregon jackets, four rain jackets, four umbrellas.

Three wool jackets, three roofer's lids, one cardigan sweater, five raincoats, one green tweed sport jacket, three pairs of tennis shoes, two Shakespeare, one zoology, five French, two economics, one English poetry and prose, and one philosophy book; one rain hat, two men's hats, one green and red necktie, "lots" of fountain pens and pencils, and one black, rhinestone-studded garter.

13 Seniors Play Final Game As Traditional Rivals Clash

By BILL STRATTON

When Oregon and Oregon State clash today on Bell field in Corvallis at 2 p.m. in the annual "civil war," there will be no title at stake as there was last year, but the capacity crowd that is expected can be guaranteed as hot a battle as has ever been staged between the two schools.

Not only will the 38 Webfoots that are ready for action be gunning to gain a victory as never in the past, but Coach "Honest John" Warren will be chewing his finger nail and master-minding like he has never done before.

No Love Lost

"Honest John" has no lost love for Oregon State, and it would give him the utmost satisfaction to see his first year as head coach wind up with a victory over OSC. And have no fear, his charges are out to help John make this season a success.

As to the probable outcome of the game, Warren commented, "I don't know." This covers lots of territory, but you can be sure that he means no bet is a sure one in this annual clash, but that his team is out to win, and it will take a topnotch OSC eleven to overcome the Ducks.

Last Game

Although there are 38 Ducks who have forgotten the not so successful 1942 season and so their hearts set on dumping their traditional rivals, there are none who want victory more than the 13 seniors who play their last

Series Features Dr. Trowbridge

Dr. Hoyt Trowbridge, professor of English will lecture on "Pope and Recent Criticism" as the third of the lecture series being presented this term. This newest of the lectures will be given Tuesday evening at 7:30 in the faculty room of Friendly hall.

Literary criticisms in the last fifteen years will be discussed, with emphasis on literary taste as well as the theory of poetry at the present time.

According to C. Valentine Boyer, English department head, Dr. Trowbridge can speak with authority on Pope and Dryden, seventeenth and eighteenth century poets, of which he has made a thorough study. His articles have appeared in various literary magazines.

The lecture Tuesday evening is free to all interested and is designed for student and faculty alike.

Faculty to Aid WSSF

By EDITH NEWTON

Faculty members will be asked to make pledges next week to the World Student Service Fund drive when members of a committee headed by Yvonne Torgler, junior in architecture and allied arts, start the first phase of the drive which will cover the entire campus December 1, 2, and 3.

Aiding Miss Torgler in the canvass of University employees are Arliss Boone, sophomore in journalism; Nelda

Merchants Predict UO-OSC Game Results

Eugene merchants again give their predictions concerning the outcome of today's Oregon-Oregon State on pages 4 and 5 of this issue. Each proprietor, competing with other Emerald advertisers, forecasts the final score of the game in a section of his own.

A similar contest, sponsored by the Emerald advertising staff for the UCLA game two weeks ago, was won by Claypool and Van Atta's drug store.

Betty Childs, sophomore in liberal arts; Bonnie Range, sophomore in business administration; Ruth Ehardt, sophomore in liberal arts; Jean Schneider, junior in English; Pat Elliot, sophomore in liberal arts; Judy Young, freshman in liberal arts; Kay Lloyd, freshman in liberal arts; and Lanora Newell, freshman in liberal arts.

Money collected by these girls from the faculty will be combined with that collected in the student drive in December, and the total sum will be used for whatever service students and faculty members decide as being the most worthwhile.

Hollis Johnson, sophomore in architecture and allied arts, and poster chairman of the drive, has already prepared a variety of colored signs and posted them in strategic points on the campus.

O.S.C. Game

We read in the edits
That throughout the war
We should help out the Staters
And conflict abhor.

We are told by the leaders
Of each school in turn
That thoughts of ye old
Civil War we should spurn.

That sentiment's super.
Of such let us dream,
But let's not repeat it
To the boys on the team.
