

WSSF Money to Swell Community, War Chests

By EDITH NEWTON

University students will have an opportunity to aid American students and prisoners of war in all parts of the world when the World Student Service Fund drive opens on the campus next Monday, according to Martha Jane Switzer, co-chairman of the drive.

The WSSF is a fund-raising organization which operates primarily in the colleges and universities of the United States in order to raise money for student war relief. Its help goes to students and faculty who are victims of the war in all parts of the world, literature sent out by the head office of the WSSF declares, but this year schools contributing may designate for which cause they wish their donations to be used.

Three Choices Given

The three choices University students will have in giving their money will be between assistance to prisoners of war, assistance to American students in foreign countries, or to American students attending school in the United States.

Contributions to the WSSF will be the campus' part in the combined Community and War Chest drive which is now taking place in Eugene. Students will not be asked to contribute to the Chest directly, the WSSF contributions being the channel through which campus people can aid in supporting the Chest movement.

Creates Unity

The WSSF was the first organization to see the importance of meeting not only physical but also intellectual and spiritual needs of students and professors. By appealing to students to help fellow students and other young people, this specialized organization builds student solidarity around the world.

The work of student war relief began in 1937 when the Far Eastern student service fund raised money for students in war-torn China. With the spread of war to Europe, the European student service fund was organized early in 1940.

World Fund Created

Later that same year the two funds were merged into the World Student Service Fund. As the war has spread the fund has expanded with its activity to meet needs in all parts of the world.

Last year a total of $113,000 was raised by the WSSF, and since its beginning in 1938 a total of $265,000 has been contributed to the fund.

The WSSF is sponsored by the United States committee of international student service and the United States sections of the world's student Christian federation. The latter includes the national intercollegiate Christian council, the student volunteer movement, the interseminary movement and the university commission of the council of church boards of education.

Vandals Ravage

The grand piano in the main lobby was badly damaged by the water and had to be taken apart and dried. Repairs needed to get the piano in working condition again may prove very expensive according to Mrs. Turnipseed.

After several boys in the halls had written statements concerning the evening's events, it was generally concluded that the vandalism had been done by an organized group of outsiders. The halls in which furniture had been stacked against the doors had been entered and left by open windows to the outside.

The full monetary extent of the damage had not been determined by midnight last night, but several pieces of furniture had been broken and a number of phonograph records stolen.

Board Returns To Enlist Men

A joint procurement board of the navy and marine corps will be on the campus December 3 and 4 to enlist all men who can qualify for the deferment classes which they offer.

Any man who contemplates appearing before the board must have all his papers checked by Dr. Carl F. Kossack, campus armed forces advisor, before he can be examined by the officers.

This will be the last chance for men to enlist on the campus before the groups are closed to enlistment to all except incoming freshmen. There will be little time between the board's visit and the end of the term when enlistments are to be closed.

Press Loses Miss Stone

Miss Ethel Stone, secretary of the University press, who has been a familiar sight to journalism students for many years, will remain at her desk but one more day. Miss Stone is leaving for New York next Monday where she will reside with her sister.

The University press staff gave her an informal farewell party Monday afternoon, at which they presented her with a gift as a token of appreciation for her services.

Miss Stone began her career at the press many years ago while still a student at the University. Upon her graduation she took over the position permanently.

Miss Jean Welch will be the new secretary.

Little Theater Presents Broadway Homicidal Hit

Comedy, sweet homicidal innocence, insanity—and "Arsenic and Old Lace" comes to the stage of the Very Little theater for a three-day run on November 26, 27, and 28. The curtain for the Broadway hit by Joseph Kesselring will rise at 8 p.m. at the theater's playhouse at West Thirteenth and Monroe.

Gretchen Parker and Dorothy Tilley are directing the play. The lead parts of the lovably insane Brewster sisters are played by Clara Fitch and Ethel Chase Christie, while Robert W. Earl takes the role of their sinister nephew, Jonathan.

Love interest is provided by Bill Wood, sophomore in liberal arts at the University, who plays the part of a dramatic critic; and Mary Arkley, also a University liberal arts major, who takes the part of a preacher's daughter.

Others in the cast include Robert D. Horn, a nephew of the Brewster sisters who thinks he is Theodore Roosevelt; Glenn Hasselrooth as Dr. Einstein, plastic surgeon and partner-in-crime of Jonathan Brewster; Dr. N. B. Zane as Mr. Gibbs, a prospective roomer at the Brewster sisters' "coffin corner" house; Dwight Newman as Superintendent Witherspoon; Ethan Newman as officer O'Hara; J. R. Pierson as Lt. Rooney, Dale Frederick as Officer Klein, and George Northam as Officer Brophy.

Glenn Hasselrooth, publicity manager, reports that there are still a few good tickets for the

Friday and Saturday night performances of "Arsenic and Old Lace," while a good selection of seats may still be obtained for the Thursday performance.
