

Good Taste Misplaced

Pome . . .

They called me foolish when I gave
My heart into your keeping.
They said that soon you'd tire of me,
And go, and leave me weeping.
Their words were wise, they couldn't know
How things would come to be—
That I'd get tired of you the first
And you'd be left, not me!
—Betsy Wootton

Thanksgiving, ah fair Thanksgiving!! It is nice to have a whole day, right in the middle of the week, when we can all stay home and get the studying done we've been trying all term to find time to do.

The cast of "Watch on the Rhine" feels very professional and trouter-ish this week because they are taking "W. on the R." on the road . . . The first off-campus performance was last night (Wednesday) and they have two more visits to the provinces planned before finals. They are playing in schoolhouses, barns, or anything else that is large enough to hold an audience. The purpose behind the tour is . . . The War Effort! In the outlying places around here plane spotters are badly needed. The local patriots have decided that presenting a show is one good way to get people together, so, with the show as a come-on, they hope to find enough spotters to prevent our being caught unawares.

Think how educational all this Red Cross work and army life is. It teaches what is so annoyingly known as the Young People of America how to do all sorts of useful, domestic do-dads. The men learn to make beds, keep the place all Neat and Tidy, peel potatoes, and be Good Housekeepers.

ing Saturdays down in Chapman find they can knit socks, hem, and sew, in the most proper manner. The children of the future certainly ought to grow up with very high standards, raised in the midst of all this Perfect Domesticity.

DEPARTMENT OF HELPFUL RUMORS, MILITARY DIVISION:

And now some bright soul, one of the people who seems to invariably Know All, tells the public that all the eighteen and nineteen year olds are to be drafted in three weeks . . . If the army has any such plans, it had better get on the boat . . . the guys haven't registered yet!
I hate the rain.
It's just like a flea . . . it's so persistent and so irregular in its attacks.

Engagements

Around the campus, Cupid has been shooting his little arrow to the tune of student and graduate engagements.

Rose-Marie Boyd, an Alpha Gam, recently became engaged to Pvt. Dick Brown, now stationed in Fort Lewis. No plans have been made for the wedding.

Elsie Brownell, also an Alpha Gam, and Oregana editor, J. Wesley Sullivan, are now engaged. No plans are announced for the wedding.

Alpha Omicron Pi announced the engagement of Beryl Robertson to Dean Van Lydegraf, a senior and a member of Sig Ep.

Alpha Phi's grad, Connie Walbridge, announced her engagement to "Tiger" Payne, student body prexy of two years ago a member of Sigma Nu.

"Bobbie" Sinclair, a Tri-Delt, and Bob Tilson, Phi Psi, have set the date for their wedding, December 13.

D.G.'s Bonnie Robbins, a sophomore, and Jack Meyers have announced their engagement, but have no plans for the wedding.

Pi Phi sorority boasts of three recent engagements. Helen Rayburn, and Duane Harbard, who will be married December 28; Frances Cox and Bud Wimberly, a Phi Delt, will be married December 20; and "Bobbie" Garwood plans a wedding in the summer to Bruce Yeager.

The University of Tennessee has opened new chemical engineering and petroleum engineering buildings this semester.

Phi Beta Coed Advises Hard Study, Hard Play

By BETTY ANN STEVENS

"Study when you're going to study . . . otherwise play, and play hard. Don't waste time doing neither," thoughtfully said Adele Canada, Phi Beta Kappa coed of the week, as she sat, "not perched," please, at the counter in the Side.

"'Addel,' or 'Aydel,' or 'Aydel, Honey,' and at one time, sad to say, 'Feet,'" piquant, straight-forward Adele has been a rallyist, Amphibian, Phi Theta, Mortar Board, and "I've been elected, but not initiated into Phi Beta Kappa," she dryly inserted. Also a member of Phi Delta Phi, French honorary, secretary of her house, Alpha Phi, clear-eyed Adele grades papers . . . "English, for Walker, and I do a little work for Dr. Beck too."

Briefly and explicitly commented Adele's man in the Portland Medical school, on learning of her election to Senior Six, "Migawd!" She shook her feathercut, "My hair is just growing out," and warned, "Now this must have sobriety."

"I have a brownie troop . . . Jean Taylor, Peggy Gardner and I . . . of 28 to 30 eight to ten-year-olds."

"Ninety-nine and ninety-nine one-hundreds per cent healthy at the age of six," Adele attained fame in the Portland papers when she took her pre-school exam. "The other one-hundredth per cent was a cavity in a bicuspid. We had it filled," she chuckled.

A rabid ski-fan, Adele used to ski competitively. Once she found herself dangling helplessly caught in a ski tow about thirty feet up in the air against a tree. By bracing herself against the tree with her skis she managed to avoid an accident.

She also used to swim competitively, and when she was ten years old, placed third in the Northwest Olympic tryouts.

Once a year, if "I'm within 100 feet of poison oak and the breeze gently wafts it my way, I spend a week in the infirmary." At that time I'm unrecognizable even to my closest friends."

Ready to leave for an 8 p.m. class, she reached for gloves and scarf, and walked the length of the counter rapidly twirling the stools, "My war work!"

She lightly explained, "I've done all the usual things . . . sold stamps at the Newsreel theater in Portland . . . Jean Taylor and I . . . collected scrap, donated blood." She waxed enthusiastic, "It has absolutely no effect. You feel weak for perhaps half an hour, and ravenously hungry for two days. There's really nothing to it."

Approximately one out of every three students at Hamilton college is taking special college work intended to prepare him for military service.
