class is open to men who have not reached their eighteenth birthday. Slight revisions have been made in the class in that the men will not be permitted to complete their full four years of college training before induction. However everything possible will be done to permit them to complete at least three years before induction.

Dr. Carl F. Kossack, campus armed forces representative, said yesterday that there was an "indication" that the navy and marine corps may develop a new college procurement program soon.

Greek Women Open Winter Term Rushing

Winter term rush week starts today, with bids to be turned in by Saturday, according to an announcement by Margaret Ann Jackson, Panhellenic president.

The number of rushees is small this term, causing rushing to be much more informal.

Tags Replace Plates For '43 Auto Licenses

Applications are now being taken for 1943 license stickers to be used in lieu of the usual metal plates which have gone to war. Earl Snell, secretary of state, announces that issuance of the stickers began about December 10.

The stickers, about 3 by 4 inches in size, are to be placed in the windshield, in addition to federal tax stamps, gasoline ration stickers, inspection tags, American flags, and what not. Officials state that about 65 square inches of windshield space will be taken up by stickers in 1943. 1942 plates will be retained on all vehicles.

Cascade Train Wreck

a steward in the dining car. He died at the Eugene hospital early Monday morning.

Car Partially Buried

Only one of the derailed cars was overturned. It toppled down a 30-foot embankment and was partially buried. All injuries were confined to the dining car through which the tree crashed.

The train was a special north-bound from Oakland. Most of its passengers were soldiers and sailors.

Hospital Train

A hospital train left Eugene immediately on hearing of the accident, returning to Eugene with the injured early Monday morning.

The first nine cars of the north-bound train were uninjured and proceeded on their journey.

Mint Requests UO

withdrawing them from circulation they are forcing the mint to make an unnecessary tax upon the metal resources of the country," said the letter.

Last year the United States made 1 billion 437 million pennies and into that one denomination alone went 4600 tons of copper, not to mention the tin and zinc used. All three of those metals are now on the critical list, sorely needed for war purposes.

Regarding the latter, the 4600 tons of copper consumed last year in making the 1-cent piece would have met the combined requirements of copper for building 2 cruisers, 2 destroyers, 1245 flying fortresses, 120 field guns and 120 howitzers; or enough for 14 million shells for large field guns.

Marine Graduate Ex-University Man

Don Walter Galbreath, '42, has successfully completed ten weeks of training in military fundamentals at Quantico, Virginia, and has been awarded the gold bars of a second lieutenant in the United States marine corps.

He will now spend three months in reserve officers' school as a platoon commander before being assigned to a combat unit or sent to specialists' school.

Galbreath is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Galbreath of Boise, Idaho.

While on the campus he was a member of Phi Delta Theta and was on the football team for two years.

Familiar Voices Come Over KORE Airways

University students Duke Young, Don Shanahan, and Bill Minehart have become announcers at KORE, Eugene.

Young, now a senior, has been working at the Eugene station for nearly three years, his main job being sportscaster. He makes station announcements from 5 to 9 p.m.

Shanahan, a freshman in liberal arts, has worked for KMED, Medford, but is now emcee of "The Surprise Package." His shift as station announcer is from 1 to 5 p.m.

Minehart takes the 9 to 12 p.m. shift, and is a technician. He is a freshman in journalism from Portland, and has taken several parts in radio workshop productions at the University.

Ex-Student Receives Naval Commission

Alan G. Pederson, a former University student, was commissioned an ensign in the United States naval reserve December 18 and designated a naval aviator at the weekly graduation ceremonies held at the naval air training center, according to a report from the station at Corpus Christi, Texas.

Pederson volunteered for flight training last March and received his preliminary instruction at the Oakland reserve base. He was then transferred to his present location for intermediate and advanced training.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Pedersen, 610 Vernon street, Oakland, California.

Faculty Defense Group Asked to Help Adair

Officials at Camp Adair have requested the national defense committee of the faculty to help them in securing furniture and equipment for the various company day rooms at the camp. Needs include davenports, chairs, reading lamps, library tables, phonographs, radios, pianos, coat hangers, books, and magazines. Staff members who can contribute any of these items are requested to call Mrs. Fitch at campus 211. Collections will be made by army trucks.

UO Grad Writes Casaba Article

Jean Eberhart, past captain of the University of Oregon basketball team, has written an article called "Crow's Nest Basketball" for the December issue of Esquire. Mr. Eberhart is the originator of the idea of crow's-nest officiating. In Esquire he points out the advantages of this system, the main one being that to put the basketball referees in crow's-nests gives them perfect visibility and leaves a clear deck for the players.

At the University of Oregon, Eberhart was a regular center on the freshman team and played on the varsity for three years. He was captain in his last season and was named on numerous all-star selections.

In raising basketball referees above floor level, Mr. Eberhart explains, they are able to follow plays easily and see every bit of action. The crow's-nest is also an excellent training ground for future referees. They can help in the crow's nest and get valuable experience in officiating. Another advantage of this system is that it will prolong the careers of good referees who have heretofore had their careers cut short when their legs gave out.

UW Coed Cops

The first Washington coeds—five of them—have appeared to take police work out of the 300 who have enrolled since this field was introduced a year ago, according to the Associated College Press.

Professor V. A. Leonard reports the manpower problem in the police fields is becoming critical and that a number of posts in police organizations can be handled by trained women, while, of course, they are indispensable in handling cases involving women and children.

Paintings Exhibited

Paintings from the works of Arthur Miller, ex-student of the University, are being exhibited in the third annual exhibit of Arkansas oil paintings and sculpture at the Museum of Fine Arts, Little Rock, Arkansas.

He painted them while at Camp Robinson, Arkansas, but he is now studying x-ray technician work at Fort Andrews, Massachusetts, as a private.

Miller, who came to the University from Salem, majored in architecture and allied arts. While at school he exhibited two canvases, "To Dust Returneth" and "Passing Storm."

Ex-Emerald Editor Wins Photo Contest

Paul Deutschman of the Eugene Register-Guard has been announced one of several first place winners in the Associated Press newspaper photograph contest, held at Seattle.

Deutschman is a former editor of The Emerald. His winning picture was placed in the non-metropolitan feature class, taking first prize in that division. The photo was of a technician installing a whistle, and is marked by the contrast of light and dark in the foreground.

Install Scout Training

A cooperative training program for the Boy Scouts of America has been worked out between University of Texas officials at Austin, Texas, and Boy Scout executives, T. H. Shelby, dean of the university division of extension, has announced, through the Associated Collegiate Press

The division will install training courses for scout leaders and executives in such fields as health education and recreation leadership, while two branches of the division—the package loan library and the visual education bureau—will acquire and supply to scout troops library materials and films relating to scout training and activities.

Also under consideration is a proposal that the interscholastic league, another university extension agency, will supervise first aid and other emergency training for the scouts.

Dr. Breen Called 'America Builder'

Dr. Quirinus Breen, assistant professor of social science and history, has been cited as one of the Hollanders who helped build America in a book by Dr. Bernard H. M. Vlekke and the Rev. Dr. Henry Beets entitled, "Hollanders Who Helped Build America." This book, published by the American Biographical company, devotes a half page to the life of Dr. Breen.

According to the book, Dr. Breen was educated in the primary schools of Chicago and Grand Rapids. Later he was graduated from Calvin Seminary and received his Ph.D. at the University of Chicago in 1931. He was appointed to his position at the University in 1938.

Histories of such persons as President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Hendrick Van Loon, author of many history books, are also presented in this book.
