

Speech Judges Award Prizes

Winners of the Jewett speaking contest held last term have been announced by W. A. Dahlberg, acting director of speech. First prizes of 25 dollars each went to Marjorie Major and L. I. Liedemen; second prizes were won by Clarence Vernon and Esther Quier; third prizes went to Sue Bryan and Robert S. Buchwach.

"Money sufficient to buy a war bond" went to first prize winners, according to Mr. Dahlberg, while second and third prize winners received enough to buy stamps.

The Jewett contest is an international contest for students registered in beginning sections of speech on the University campus. Winners were selected from each section. These winners then met in a competition with each other, and from this contest final winners were chosen.

With weather a military secret, the AWS can't guarantee sunshine, and in case of rain the sale will be postponed.

The new women were welcomed by WAA adviser, Miss Helen Petroskey. She spoke on their responsibilities to the organization.

Recognition was given to the volleyball champs, Highland house.

The women were reminded that all houses must have two representatives to be trained as timers and scorers at the meeting tonight in the social room of Gerlinger hall at 4. Also the first officials clinic will be held this afternoon at 5.

Frosh Get Green Light

1. To do away with freshman class organization for the duration.
2. To do away with freshman class organization for good.
3. To organize the freshman class as usual.

Just Presented

Worth did not recommend any of the three plans. He merely presented them for council discussion.

Freshman class organization will proceed now under Worth with the possibility that nominations, elections, and ratification of the constitution may take place by next Thursday night.

Wouldn't Work

In turning down proposals to abolish the freshman class for the duration or permanently, members argued that an additional two terms' delay over to the sophomore year would probably not eliminate the political rub of elections; that one of the council problems is keeping student government alive despite the war; and that class spirit should be increased, not decreased.

Included in the council motion for organization by January 15, "subject to the discretion of the first vice president," was a provision for two days' previous announcement of the meeting in the Emerald.

Dean Jewel Organizes Kaiser-Town Schedule

Dr. J. R. Jewell, dean of the school of education, has been appointed by the federal government as consultant to organize the school system in the newly-erected Vanport City, and to select a superintendent for the schools.

Vanport City, which has been made a separate municipality, was built by Henry Kaiser to house part of his shipyard workers. When the city is fully occupied, which will be about March 1, it will contain approximately 45,000 people, from 4,000 to 4,500 of which will be children of school age.

Teachers for the Vanport schools are being selected from all over the country, and no teachers will be hired who are at present under contract. An examination will be held on the campus at the school of education, January 16 for teachers in this vicinity who want to try for a position at Vanport City.
