Tripling the Lane county quota, the war board's hanger drive has proved a terrific success, Betty Bevil, chairman, stated Monday. Over 6000 hangers were turned into the drive.

Alpha Phi, with 477 hangers, and Sigma Alpha Mu, with 720 hangers, headed the living organizations in the drive, followed by Delta Gamma, with 400 and Sigma Alpha Epsilon, with 210.

Flood's Fury Dazes Ducks

By THORN KINERSLY

Oregon ducks and drakes donned raincoats, hats and boots; doffed jackets, headgear, and evensweaters; then dressed up in their wintery raiment as the Eugene weather varied to suit Californians, Portlanders, out-of-staters, and the occasional natives.

First, living groups' radiators were draped with drying handkerchiefs and scarfs, jackets and raincoats, brogues and boots,

Another Reserve Group Opened to UO Students

By TED BUSH

Men interested in the meteorology units of the army air force will be interviewed by Dr. Frank Webb in the basement of Fenton hall today. Dr. Webb will interview all men, those who have not as yet sent in preliminary enlistment papers as well as those who have completed them.

All men who have sent their papers to the University of Chicago must see him because he has additional forms which they must complete.

Dr. Webb will meet men in groups. Each meeting will start on the hour. During the meeting he will explain the requirements and interview each man personally.

An additional basic group has been opened to enlistment. The new group requires two years of high school mathematics and one year of science for enlistment. The math must include algebra and plane geometry.

All men who have sent their papers in to the University of Chicago must see Dr. Webb in the basement of Fenton hall today.

Dr. Webb has additional papers for them to complete before their enlistment can be completed.

The pre-meteorology group is for men from 18 to 30. Men who apply for enlistment must satisfy all the requirements for the previous group and also have one year of college math and have completed one year of college. The required math includes college algebra, trigonometry, and analytical geometry. Under the University curricula, Math 103 or 200 are necessary to qualify under the analytical geometry group.

The advanced meteorology requirements include all of the

Eugene Boys

Major Taylor was the son of Dr. and Mrs. Howard R. Taylor of Eugene. Dr. Taylor has been head of the department of psychology for many years and is also dean of the graduate school.

In an AP dispatch received Monday, the story of Major Taylor's death was told. As pilot of the fortress, "Dry Martini," he had just participated in one of the war's heaviest raids over Europe. On the return trip he was killed in an engagement with Nazi fighters. The co-pilot, who sustained wounds during the same attack, took over the controls and brought the bullet-riddled plane back to its base.

Military Miss Soon to Rule

The army has its WAACs, the navy has its WAVES, and Scabbard and Blade has its Little Colonel.

The as-yet-unknown Little Colonel will have her big moment when she reigns supreme at the Military Ball, January 30.

Five Finalists

Five finalists will be chosen by Company L and Scabbard and Blade, military honorary. These will not be announced until the names appear on the ballot the night of the dance.

The highlight of the evening will be the decoration of the Little Colonel by Captain Pat Cloud and the runners up, of whom two will be majors and two captains. These will be elected by the popular vote of the dance goers.

Tickets Now on Sale

Tickets are now on sale according to Bob McKinney, ticket chairman. They can be secured from any senior advanced ROTC

News Notes

When we were young we used to wait

To greet the paper boy
For a reading of the comics
Brought us all some daily joy.

For the latest year or so
We've brought the paper in
A rush to read of war and such
And who was going to win.

But nowadays we greet the boy
With raucous shout and din
To read the latest details of
The case of Errol Flynn.
