Post-Game Firesides Head Weekend Plans

Dear Diary: This may be winter term but the coming weekend is nothing but informal. Friday eve is the first home game and the sports theme is dominating Oregon society. After the cheering is all over Delts, DUs and Sigma Chis will entertain their dates at firesides.

Come Saturday, Susan Campbell is having a fireside after the second big game. Frosh are having their annual mixer, strictly for the younger generation—no date—stated for Gerlinger. The first house dance of the term will be Alpha Gamma Delta's kid party.

Good Taste Misplaced

Brrrr . . . Yes, isn't it???? Now we all know just how the Russian front feels, and we can all be very, very careful to stay as far as possible from the Russian front . . . at least during the winter!

One sad-eyed, frozen gal observed, as she started out on a ten-block hike, "Well, I guess I'll just have to shiver my timbers down there!"

Quote from Dr. Huffaker . . . "The first requisite for a good football player—that he shall be only two sizes smaller than a horse!" Presumably, this does NOT mean a polo pony. . . .

D'you suppose that the Little Colonel of this annum will be small and a brunette . . . as usual? Or could a blonde have a chance just to break the monotony?

Anyone with an interest in collections of the unique, unusual, and bizarre and fantastic, in general, should have found some wonderful examples among the assorted flights of fancy on the heads of the glamor girls at the Senior Ball. Most of them were . . . well . . . Different. . . .

It was one of those three-for-a-quarter "convict" snap-shots. . . Lee Flatberg finally woke from his editing class slumber when he discovered that Virginia Bryant was back in school . . . Those Phi-Delt twins have been named the prize piggers of the week . . . What's this mysterious list that Warren Smith is compiling? . . .

Tom Hazzard, a candidate today for Ted Loud's vacated yell king post, has some very original and promising ideas.

That's the traditional thirty for this morning, and if those two gentlemen have read this far, we've got a heavy crew of bodyguards working day and night.

Unfortunately, since there are other men who are giving the instrument a treatment almost as different from Bud's as his was from the earlier work, he has been often maligned as corny, when, in reality, it was he who pointed the way that everyone is following today.

For Lane county fans we include today an impression of Spike Jones.

Red Earmuffs Prove Enemy Of Frost Bite

By BARBARA BEALER

As Sunday morning dawned bright and shining, Oregon coeds donned spring raiment and rushed from their respective houses, only to return with frozen fingers and frost-bitten noses.

Winter is still with us, only snow, not rain, appears to be the forecast for this week. Students who find it hard to keep warm should take a tip from these girls.

Dolores Lassen flashes a pair of fireman's red earmuffs around, not only keeping ears warm, but adding color to any outfit . . .

upper-classmen get asked to Mortar Board's Smarty Party, instead of just the freshmen? The poor old sophomores, juniors, and seniors like good food and eating in general as much as anybody . . . even if they do have brains!

Bette MacTavish's brilliant red polo coat is another eye-catcher . . . Jean Villair and Marty Beard may be seen wearing bright green coats made of precious nylon—they're warmer than most plain wool ones . . . Beverly Haaheim keeps ears warm by wearing a red wool Scotch peasant hat . . . Sk' sweaters ornamented with many different designs, will also diffuse the north winds . . . Mittens, in varying sizes, shapes, and colors, are another ornament to any winter costume. Bunny fur, boxing gloves, and those which look like floor mops are a few of the more popular types.
