

Good Taste Misplaced

By MARY ANN CAMPBELL
DEPARTMENT OF RECOLLECTIONS, Snowstorm division . . . Memo: So, we had a big blizzard and all the gals found out excuse to wear slacks on the campus, which is what they'd always wanted to do anyway. . . .

Some of the slack costumes were pretty good . . . There were several variations on the red shirt-green slacks combination; some clever bonnets made their appearance; and the best looking of all were the gals who put on dark blue ski suits, a dark blue ski cap, and let their mittens and socks be the only gay colored thing about them. . . .

Mr. Stalsberg, our efficient cashier, arrived at work on Friday unruffled by the weather . . . He came sailing sedately along through the heavy snow, arrayed in the most correct business clothes imaginable . . . overcoat, hat, leather gloves . . . and he was on skis.

The little paper boy could be seen trudging over the snow in the early morning moon-and-starlight, pulling his papers behind him, in a large orange crate on his sled. . . .

The hoar frost that foggy morning was unusual and certainly attractive . . . frozen fog is a real rarity in Eugene, apparently. . . .

One gal, who went out one icy evening to discover how much fun tobogganing can be, ended in a minor crash at the foot of the hill on her first trip down, and now has four stitches holding her wound together directly over her right eye. . . .

The Snow White created by David Stone and Don Hoffman isn't such a recent and original idea after all . . . Once Lorenzo de' Medici asked Michelangelo . . . MICHELANGELO, mind you . . . to toss off a little statue of snow . . . all this being in Florence some 400 years ago . . . (This item, courtesy Dr. Beall). . . .

And then there was the Senior, in a flippant mood, who asked his freshman room-mate:

"How's your education???"

Salute . . .

Military Ball Draws Weekend Attention

By LOIS HULSER, Society Editor

The thrill that comes once in a college career will go, Saturday evening, to the girl who wears the silver eagle at the Military Ball. George Carey's music will accompany the coronation of the Little Colonel and her staff of two majors and two captains. Identification bracelets will be presented as permanent gifts.

Since only part of the uniforms have arrived, junior men will wear tuxedos when they march under the drawn sabers of Scabbard and Blade for the traditional ceremony. Following the custom of the year, flowers will not be in order.

All co-op skating party is scheduled for Friday night. Phi Gamma Delta entertains dates at a fireside. Exchanges for the week include Delta Gamma-Theta Chi; Alpha Phi-Sigma Alpha Mu; Alpha Tau Omega-Delta Delta Delta; Kappa Sigma-Alpha Chi Omega; AOPi had preference.

Alpha Delta Pi-Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Alpha hall-Alpha Xi Delta; Beta Theta Pi-Chi Omega; Campbell club-Alpha Gamma Delta; University house-Canard club; Susan Campbell-Gamma hall; Kirkwood co-op-Orides; Phi Delta Theta-Kappa Kappa Gamma; Sherry Ross-Sigma Kappa; Kappa Alpha Theta-Delta Upsilon and Phi Gamma Delta-Pi Beta Phi.

Sez the freshman, all eager to please, "I'm sorry, I don't take any. . . ."

Two Girls Pledged Miss Kendall Resigns

An announcement from Dean of Women Hazel P. Schwering revealed that Lois Winsley, Honolulu, has pledged Alpha Delta Pi, and Barbara Daws, Olympia, Alpha Xi Delta, both this week.

Five Men Pledge

Pledges announced this week by the dean of men's office include Elmer A. Hendrick, Sigma Phi Epsilon; Robert S. Bailey, Phi Sigma Kappa; Edwin Allen, Kenneth Hume, and Jack J. Crocker, Alpha Tau Omega.

New Formals Shine Against ROTC Uniforms

By BARBARA BEALER

With winter term, evening dresses are unpacked, rejuvenated, borrowed, and loaned for the succession of formal dances presented on the Oregon campus. Coming attraction for the weekend is the Military Ball, when Scabbard and Blade men run competition with their women for fashion honors. Even in ROTC uniforms, the boys will find it hard to outshine many of these coeds:

Reba Nickson plans on wearing a red sequin dinner dress, severe but smart with its three-quarter length sleeves . . . Peggy Heitschmidt will stagger the stag line in a black net number, completed by wide bands of chartreuse and fuchsia grosgrain ribbon running horizontally across the bodice and the top of the skirt . . . Sarajane Kendrick chose a pink organdy with the new long torso waistline, full skirt, and straps . . . Peggy Cornell's black velvet is strapless, and boasts a rushing of pink around the top of the bodice and the bottom of the skirt . . . Katherine Stewart prefers an aquamarine taffeta with a halter neck. The skirt has black birds on the skirt . . . White will be much in evidence also—Virginia Wright's dress is white net, with a full skirt and sequins on the bodice . . . Martha Harold will wear a more tailored dress of white crepe. The skirt is the new peg top style, while the top is augmented with a red grosgrain ribbon across the top . . .

I Cover the Campus

affair: It's off! . . . Dick and Deborah aren't going steady, after all . . .

SONG OF THE WEEK: A lively new ballad called "Let's Get Lost" . . . It would appear that all Jack Billings and Marj Young do in their spare time is play tag with each other . . . Li'l Vic Huffaker's new nickname is Victor Immature! . . .

Mary had a little lamb
With sweet peas on the side
When the waiter brought the check

Mary nearly died.
LAUGH OF THE WEEK: The Chi Os distinguishing themselves as the only house to show proper deference to the social status of Beta Theta Pi.

Bob Fugit was one of the few individuals to guess the climax of the Mac's stirring mystery dramma, "The Undying Monster" . . . My doctor informs me, it is time to sign off . . . So patience, Jack, who knows, but you, YOU and you! may be in print tomorrow.
