

The Corn Is Green

By BILL LINDLEY

I knew a Theta once . . . that was when I was a freshman, and actually read every poem in the lit book. I used to sit there and gaze into her soft blue eyes . . . my Aunt Elsie had a cow once with eyes like that—so expressive, you know. Pet (the cow) had darker lashes through, and she didn't use Maybelline either (I think).

Was It Bare?

Of course then Pet didn't really show too much in a bathing suit, especially the two piece kind with the bare midriff. But she had the most beautiful eyes.

Or would you rather talk about Thetas?

Well, this Theta and I had something in common. We were both flunking at mid-term. She was flunking because of a big frog man, and I was flunking because of her blue eyes, but of course she didn't know about that.

Sad Case

I was really getting to be a sad case. When the prof would ask for a quotation from Hamlet's soliloquy I would give out thusly:

"Hamlet, oh, Hamlet,
Wherefore art thou, Hamlet?
Oh Hamlet?"

I would drink cherry cokes by the dozens, but there could be no kick in them for me. Those blue eyes just seemed to haunt me. Used to, I mean.

But not any more. She's wearing her hair like Veronica Lake now.

Fugitive from Kitchen

We have a new cook at our house, so I am eating at the Lemon-O this week. The chief advantage there is that you can read the Police Gazette with your meals. In fact you can read any magazine with your meals except Esquire, for the reason that Doc does not like to have milk shakes dribbled all over his Varga pictures and his Hurrels of Linda Darnell and others.

So this Theta comes in for a coke or something and sits right next to me. Since I know her slightly I naturally want to say hello or something, but of course this is contrarywise to Emily Post, who is some old hen who seems to have the say-so in such matters. So I kindly offer this Theta my copy of the Police Gazette.

And she gives me that snooty look of which only a Theta is capable.

How did I know it was her picture on the cover?

Let me tell you about my dream.

I was sleeping along very peacefully the other night when suddenly I was back in the Forest Service, standing beside the roaring McKenzie River. In fact, I almost fell in.

But just then down the bank came a swarm of blue beavers. Imagine my surprise. "Gee," I thought, "if I could just get ahold of one of those blue beavers I'd bet his pelt will bring a lot of dough, I bet."

So I grabbed the dynamite fuse beside me and fixed it to the huge box of dynamite beside me.

And then . . . WHAM . . .

And there I was in the lunch counter, and the girl who came to wait on me? Oh quit guessing, you don't know.

It was Lana Turner.

So what did I say?

"What's your phone number?"

"Ooooooooooww!!!"

"What time do you get off to-night?"

"I've got a pass for the Heilig."

You're wrong. I said: "A choc shake."

So she went behind the counter and kept putting ice cream into the mixer and milk and several gallons of milk.

But when she came back and looked at me with that old wolfish gleam in her eye, what did I say?

"That's a pretty small milk shake," I said.

Railroad Issues Schedule Changes

Beginning February 15, the Southern Pacific will go on new longer operating schedules. The lengthening of travel times on the coast was necessitated by the increasing volume of war traffic. The new train departure times for Eugene are:

Southbound: The Klamath, 12:15 p.m.; Cascade, 8:48 p.m.; the West Coast, 11 p.m.; Oregonian, 1:55 a.m.; and the Rogue River, Oregon local, 12:05 a.m.

Northbound: West Coast, 5:55 a.m.; the Cascade, 9:38 a.m.; Oregonian, 1:48 p.m.; the Klamath, 6:28 p.m.; and the Rogue River, 3:30 a.m.

Four Men Pledge

Pledges announced by the dean of men's office this week include Donald Koberg and Lowell Chase, Theta Chi; and George Hart, Pi Kappa Alpha; and Jack Olin, Alpha Tau Omega.

Gallery Displays Robinson Exhibit

Annual showing of the Dorland Robinson memorial exhibition is now open to the public at the Little Art gallery at the school of architecture and allied arts.

The University acquired the exhibit in 1922 when Miss Robinson's parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Robinson, of Jacksonville, gave a portion of her work to the school as a memorial collection to be shown once a year.

Mediums included are oil, water color, and pastel. Among the subject matter are still life studies and interiors.

Companion display of the exhibit is a group of reproductions of Rembrandt's etchings.

OSC Swim

this Pacific coast record.

The 60-yard free style event that will be swum by Chuck Nelson is an event that Chuck will try to cut down the time on tomorrow, and as a result break the existing record. The time for this particular event is an even 30 seconds, and in time trials Chuck has come very close to this time. He has never actually broken it, but has come so close that Coach Mike Hoyman believes that there is a very good possibility of his breaking it.

Robinson Record Holder

The Northwest record in the 440 freestyle event is held by Robinson of last year's swimming team, with a time of 5:06. Robinson set this new record in last year's Northwest championships.

Last year Dick Smith pushed Robinson into breaking his record, being a mere second behind him in that meet. Smith at the time did break the existing record, but was beaten by his teammate Robinson with a second better time.

Dick in recent time trials has put the time down below this 5:06 mark, but this time was unofficial. At tomorrow's meet then, Coach Mike Hoyman expects new records from his boys, and undoubtedly will get them.

Coach Hoyman is really making the boys work out in anticipation of the meet with the University of Washington which is scheduled for February 20. This Washington meet will be one of the tougher ones of the season, and will require much more effort on the part of the Oregon boys than the meets that they had or will have with Oregon State or other teams in the conference.

Army Has Dr. Beck Test Training Film Utility

Dr. Lester F. Beck, associate professor of psychology at Oregon, on leave in Washington, D. C., is completing a survey on the use of films and other visual aids in various branches of the army. The present survey for the army engineers will determine the effectiveness of the program. After completing a visit to Camp Lee, Virginia, Dr. Beck plans to travel to various parts of the nation checking the efficiency of visual education programs and making suggestions for improvement.

Another phase of his work will be the checking of army film libraries and the development of a series of study questions to go along with films.

President Erb Attends Labor Board Dinner

Dr. Donald M. Erb, president of the University, in in Portland today to attend a war labor board dinner at the Congress hotel.

Wayne L. Morse, dean of the law school, now on leave of absence, will be honored at the dinner, as will Roger D. Lapham, Dalmond R. Garst, and Martin Durkin, all members of the war labor board.

Patriotic Rodents

Even mice are becoming patriotic, at least that's what the bandmaster at Montana State university found out when he saw bits of paper lying around the attic where his 941 complete orchestrations were stacked. Upon examination it was found that only one was destroyed and that was Gilbert and Sullivan's tale of court life in Japan, "The Mikado."

Shut-Eyers Draft Rules

The Order of the Half Shut Eye, official censor board of the Oregon's Lemon Punch cartoon contest met last night in secret session, decided on official censor policy. The subsequent iron-clad rules were adopted by the "Shut-eyers":

1. All drawings of relaxing figures with telephones must be holding French telephones.

2. All drawings of blood must be clearly identified as Axis, not Allied blood.

3. Drawings dealing with over-friendly Irish actors, marijuana-smoking band leaders, and irritated ex-movie queens are not desirable, but highly acceptable.

4. All drawings containing curves are more acceptable than drawings containing straight lines.

5. No drawings of gasoline, tiers, sugar, or coffee are to be so exaggerated as to promote undue free play of imagination.

6. Prohibited: all drawings in invisible ink. Anything by Flip Corkin.

Reports were given by guest speakers Mae West and Bertrand Russell. A report by Mr. Hayes was read—by the janitor man in the next room.

Added to the order's membership was Oregon Associate Editor Helen Johnson. Reason—stabilizing force. Offsetting the feminine element are order members J. Wesley Sullivan, Jack Billings, Roy Paul Nelson, Bob Linde, and Charles Politz.

Deadline for the contest is Saturday noon. Drawings are to be made with black india ink on white cardboard, 8 by 11 inches or larger and handed in at the Oregon offices.

New Time Table Issued For War Railroading

Miss Margaret Firth, new instructor of education at University high school, has arrived from Grand Allen, Nebraska, to take the place of Mrs. Wilna Kincaid. Miss Kincaid joined the WAVES and left January 8 for training.
