Army Issues Call to Colors; Fledgling Flyer Deferments Terminate With Term's End

Air corps enlisted reserves who enlisted for subsequent appointment as aviation cadets will find their deferred status ended at the completion of the present term, according to a notice received here Tuesday by Dr. Carl F. Kossack, armed services representative.

The complete notice, which will affect about 100 men in the army air corps, reads as follows:

"It is directed that the deferred status of students in the air corps enlisted reserve who enlisted for subsequent appointment as aviation cadets be terminated at the end of the college semester, term or quarter, in which they were enrolled on December 31, 1942, and that they be called to active duty at the same time as other air corps enlisted reserves."

Dr. Kossack interprets this to mean that at the end of the term,

Marines Add Officer Class; Called July 1

Students who have reached 17 but not 18 may be enlisted in class III (d), marine corps reserve, for assignment to the candidates' class for commission provided they are fully qualified, according to word received Tuesday by Dr. C. F. Kossack, campus armed forces representative.

All such enlistments must be completed before March 15, the communication stated. Students interested are advised to see Dr. Kossack soon.

At present the marine corps contemplates assigning all class III (d), inactive reservists, to active duty July 1, as privates with pay and allowances. They will then be sent to a group of selected colleges and universities throughout the country to continue their college education following a curriculum approved by the marine corps.

Students in this reserve have been asked for information regarding the nearest railroad or bus accommodations. This did not mean that they were to leave immediately. The information was required for the purpose of issuing the necessary transportation when assigned to active duty on the tentative date of July 1, 1943.

Popular Farce Reopens Today

"The Whole Town's Talking" reopens tonight at 8 at the University theater following a successful opening last Friday night and a performance for the dads last Saturday.

The play is a farce woven around the efforts of the ingenue's father to marry her to his business partner, a small town boy who can't understand why he isn't attractive to women because he was such a pretty baby. Matters are complicated by the entrance of a hand-kissing playboy, and the glamorous movie star, Letty Lythe, and her director.

Outstanding Writings Featured at Art Show

Odeon became the great mediator last night by announcing the names of persons from both fields of writing, journalism and literature, whose manuscripts will be read and displayed Monday, February 22.

For years the University has been turning out men and women with marked ability in both fields of writing. There are several big names in literature today who got their start on the Emerald copy desk. Other writers that have flung their fame far began in Villard hall with the English department.

This year Odeon brings the two fields under a one night spotlight and the writings judged most outstanding will be read as part of the creative arts show set for next Monday.

Literary Achievement

Odeon's talent scouts named the following contributors of literature: Poetry: Peggy Overland, G. Duncan Wimpres, Claudine Biggs, Mildred Wilson, Cecil Sargeant, Marjorie Major, and Barbara Hampson. These poems will be read aloud.

Two short stories were selected to be read at the occasion: Wimpres' "The Journey," and Miss Hampson's "I've Never Stopped Looking."

In the essay writing field, Marjorie Major's fall term Jewett winning speech, "We're So Sorry, Dr. Kuo," Sue St. Pierre's "Shadow Jockey," and "The Crest of the Flood," by Ray Dickson, rated top spots.

Editorial Page

In journalism, the following clippings will be read as representative of the best in the Emerald: Editorial by Ray Schrick, "The War of Nerves," Al Larsen's feature, "Are College Students Tops?" and Janet Wagstaff's "Poet E. G. Moll Scores New Hits." One of Chuck Politz's columns, "Nuf Sed" will also be read.

On display but not read, manuscripts by these literary figures will be featured: Merlin Dow, Ruth Collins, Sally Clarke, Bert Moore, Mary Arkely, Darleane

Shirts

Why is it a fad that new shirts should be so darn stiff that it hurts?

And when they get soft, I do swear, They're always too dirty to wear.

New Location Still Unfilled; Help Needed

By ARLISS BOONE

Because 180,000,000 surgical dressings must be finished for the government by the end of March, a new location was found so that work could be done more quickly.

Yesterday morning the new University Red Cross room opened in the store next to the College Side. The only workers during the afternoon were 18 Sigma Alpha Mu men who did a fine job in turning out bandages.

Men Invited

The new room will accommodate 250 men and women each day. Although each girl is expected to put in one afternoon's work each week, men are welcome to help.

Women Leaders Pass Gavel After Thursday's Plebiscite

Marge Dibble, AWS prexy, Goldie Puziss, WAA, and Abbie Jane White, YWCA, will relinquish their gavels Thursday to next year's officers who will be elected Thursday in an all-coed assembly in Gerlinger hall at 11

Names of candidates for office will be kept secret until the actual assembly. No one, not even the office-seekers themselves, will know who has been nominated before the actual elections. Nominations from the floor will be allowed.

Ballots will be collected at the door, where Phi Thetas, and Kwamas, women's service honorary organizations, will check the qualification of each voter by the piggers' guide. No one will be allowed to leave and return again during the voting.

Following the assembly, the AWS and YWCA officers will be announced as soon as the votes are counted, while the WAA officers will be announced at their annual banquet Thursday night.

Mrs. Betty Herring, WAAC representative, will make an announcement at the assembly.

WAAC Officer Arrives

Mrs. Betty Herring, recruiting officer of the WAACs, announces that she is on the campus available for conference on Wednesday from 10:30 to 12 and from 3 to 5; on Thursday from 1:30 to 4:30. Phone the dean of women's office for appointment.

Mrs. Herring will be at the Eugene hotel for evening appointments.
