

Morris Creeps Up On Scoring Quinn

Bill Morris, crack Washington guard, gave Fred Quinn, Idaho's scoring chief, some uneasy moments this week when Idaho and Washington clash, by indicating designs on the league scoring leadership which Quinn has undisputedly held for three weeks.

Morris flipped home 14 counters against the Vandals Monday night to bring his season total to 126—just four behind Quinn with 130, who sunk 12 in the same game.

Oregon State's Lew Beck, who is third with 112 was tied with Morris till that point-conscious Husky pumped his total to within shouting distance of Quinn.

The start of the 100-yard breast-stroke which Ralph Huestis won handily and established a shiny new Pacific Coast conference record. The new champ is shown getting off to a bad start at the left, which didn't seem to handicap him once he hit the "soup."

Rooks Clip Frosh Five, 44-42

Late UO Spree Cut Short by Final Gun

By MART POND

Minutes count, but there weren't enough of them Tuesday evening as the Frosh were edged by the Oregon State Rooks on McArthur court by a scant two points, with the boys from Corvallis holding a 44-42 advantage.

Another description of a contest that teamed a well-shaped Rook squad against the Ducklings, who for the first three periods of the tilt were just managing to keep in sight of the high scoring Frankie Roeland and his Beaver cohorts. This Corvallis youngster ran up a sizeable score during the game, scoring 13 tallies in the first half and an additional five during the last two frames.

The Frosh squad under the tutelage of the astute "Sandy" Sandness had a great deal of difficulty holding on to the ball after working it down into Rook territory. The usually high scoring forwards for the freshmen, Ken Hume and Ed Devaney, had the grand total of two points between them for the first half, which ended 17-22 for the Rooks.

Sending his starting team into the fray at the beginning of the second period, the Rooks' Luke Gill had the situation well in hand for the third quarter with his proteges running up an impressive 11 point lead over the Ducklings before Frosh "spark plug" Johnny Miller brought his team back into contention with some potent floor generalship.

After failing to connect for any points during the evening, Ken Hume of the Frosh roster, began to augment the tallies of one Dean Sempert and together they pulled the Rook advantage down, only to have Jack Love of the State boys hit the hoop for additional points.

With 3½ minutes to go, the score read, 42-31 for the Rooks, and then Bobby Hodgins, Dean Sempert, Ken Hume and Bob Caviness brought the score to 42-40 with a minute left in the contest. Fred Haney, center for the Rooks, pushed in a lay-in for the Staters, but his tally was erased on the free throw efforts of Bob Hamilton and Caviness of the Ducks.

The gun sounded as Ken Hume was unreeling a howitzer from his own fore-court, but his effort was futile and the contest ended with the Rooks holding the chips for this third game of the "Little Civil War." These "Aggie" boys now have a one game advantage over their Duckling rivals.

The summary:

Poor Gus! This ND Race Gets Him

Help is wanted—and badly—by Mr. Gus Q. Fan, whose head is whirling worse than if he'd been on an all-night bender. Gus has been trying to dope out this crazy ND casaba race, but every time he settles on one outfit, "boom!", his favorite slips into the muck below and a new club rises in its stead.

At present it's narrowed down to a two-team joust between Washington and Washington

State. But just a shade below, and certainly not out of it yet, are the Oregon Ducks and OSC Beavers.

Now in an effort to clarify Gus' perplexed condition, hoop skirmishes have been booked for this weekend which should make matters more lucid. That state feud opens its third round when the Orangemen and Duckmen pitch into each other in Corvallis

Friday night and then follow up with a fourth meeting Saturday in Eugene's hoop headliner.

Up nawth at the Pullman hemp house, Idaho's battle-scarred cellarites will be trying to stage a "giant killer" act with Washington State's high-flying Cougars as the object of their wrath.

Maybe after this weekend Gus' head will stop whirling so fast!

I-M Quintets Rally Forces For Casaba Playoffs Today

By ART CARLSON

The time has come! After a whole season's play, the deserving finalists have now come to the long-awaited day of the playoffs. By spending the last five days resting in anticipation of today's conflicts, all squads appear to be in best-season form.

A few of the more nervous coaches ordered short practice sessions yesterday, but the majority considered themselves "sharp enough to lay off for another day and not to risk 15-cent-hour sprains and bruises.

Both courts 40 and 43 will see spirited action continuously from 4 to 6 as every league title-holder is slated for battle on this opening day of eliminations.

Out of the 12 teams selected for play from the original 26 "A" representatives and the 30 entered in the "B" ranks, there are half a dozen Greek outfits rated as toss-ups, but the Awful Awfuls is really the only strong independent contender.

Triple Bill

An exciting and well-spent afternoon is promised all basketball enthusiasts who enjoy seeing triple-headers. For the non-partisan, the best bets can be had on the Sigma Chi-Sigma Nu "B" game, the Beta-Theta Chi "A" encounter, and the tiff between the Awful Awfuls and Sigma Nu's "A" quintet.

The day's complete playing schedule is listed elsewhere on this page.

DUs, Betas Victorious In Handball Playoffs

Rubber balls will soon quit bouncing so consistently in the PE building as intramural handball ends its short, tough season. Yesterday Delta Upsilon and Beta Theta Pi eliminated their final opponents in the respective brackets.

The upper division completed its schedule as the DUs stamped all opposition out of their Sigma Chi challengers as Ed Moshofsky edged Jim Sheppard, 21-10, 22-20. The rivals of lower 18th street then called it quits by Sigma Chis doubles forfeiture to the DU combine.

Nus Lose

In the other half, the Sigma Nus lost their chance as both singles matches went wrong after their doubles combination of John Bubalo and Hank Steers took the measure of Paul Beard and Frank Jacobson, 21-10 both times.

Beta's Duden came back to soundly trounce Whitman, 21-5 and 21-6, while Rathbun put the clincher on by showing Maier a "bad time," 21-9, 21-12. It is interesting to note that none of the individual matches had to go the full limit, but required only the minimum in the two-out-of-three series.

Both teams will recuperate today, awaiting tomorrow's championship battle.

UO Mermen Get Set For Vaunted Husky

By ROLLIE GABEL

With the advent of the toughest dual swimming meet yet to scare up some foam with the Oregon swimming squad, Coach Mike Hoyman has been putting the boys through their strokes more strenuously than ever. This Oregon-Washington meet is scheduled for this coming Saturday at Seattle. The following Saturday the championship meet at Pullman, Washington, is in line.

Coach Mike Hoyman still isn't satisfied with winning every dual meet that has come up so far this season, and he still isn't satisfied with having two of his boys, Ralph Huestis, and Chuck Nelson, break Pacific coast records.

This Thursday at the men's pool at 4 p.m. the coach has scheduled another of his time trials, but these time trials have a special and significant meaning behind them. The time trial will not be like the others that the team has been holding, in that there will just be a couple of events with special emphasis being placed on the 400-yard freestyle relay event.

The reason for the emphasis on this particular event is that Coach Mike Hoyman believes that the team has the "stuff" to break this record also. The present time on this event is 3:42.2. Last night in a trial swimoff team composed of Allen, Gautier, Houston, and Nelson made a time of 3:48.8, a difference in time of one and six-tenths of a second. Coach Hoyman believes explicitly in being consistent, and in the time trial Thursday he is "going to break this record, or is going to break the necks of the boys on the squad." This will keep the weekly record of breaking records still untarnished.
