Loretta Young and Brian Aherne are shown in a scene from "A Night to Remember," which starts Sunday at the Heilig theatre.

Heilig Books New Comedy Thriller Film

Comedy, mystery, and suspense are all combined to make top-notch entertainment in "A Night to Remember," which opens Sunday at the Heilig theater.

Jeff and Nancy Troy (Loretta Young and Brian Aherne) rent a basement in a Greenwich Village apartment where strange incidents have led former tenants to believe that the place was haunted.

The housekeeper keeps mumbling about monsters in the night and many of the tenants view the couple with suspicion. Jeff decides that here is real material for his book.

Then Nancy overhears a man threatening someone to meet him at their apartment, and tells Jeff so he can investigate.

In the course of the investigation the Troys become involved in a murder which takes place in the apartment. The unraveling of the crime not only makes good material for Jeff's book but excellent entertainment for Heilig audiences.

The picture will be carried over to the Mayflower theater Thursday for a four-day run.

'Palm Beach Story' Due At McDonald Sunday

Literature flourishes best when it is half a trade and half an art.
—William Ralph Inge.

The McDonald theater is due to rock with laughter when Preston Sturges' latest comedy venture, "The Palm Beach Story," hits the local screen.

Claudette Colbert and Joel McCrea star in this hilarious tale of a young wife who leaves her husband for a trip to Florida. Aboard the train she meets the members of the Ale and Quail club, Florida-bound on their annual outing, and they adopt her as their mascot.

During the night the private car of the club is disconnected from the train, and Claudette speeds on into the night. She meets a wealthy millionaire in the morning, and decides to take a trip on his yacht. Meanwhile her husband has begun a pursuit, which ends when he meets her on the dock after she leaves millionaire Rudy Vallee's yacht.

From then on the film progresses in typical Sturges fashion to a slapstick climax which brings the picture to a surprise ending.

Also on the bill is "My Heart Belongs to Daddy."

'Heart of the Golden West' Next at Heilig

Roy Rogers, the king of cowboys, is the star of "Heart of the Golden West," a musical western which features laughs, romance, and songs.

George "Gabby" Hayes and Smiley Burnette assist with the comedy, and the Sons of the Pioneers handle the musical background for Rogers' songs.

"Mug Town" completes the bill which starts Thursday at the Heilig theater for a three-day run.

Rapper Will Direct "Rhapsody in Blue"

Irving Rapper, who won high critical and audience approval for his direction of "One Foot in Heaven" and who recently completed "The Adventures of Mark Twain," has been assigned by Jack L. Warner, the executive producer at Warner Bros., to direct "Rhapsody in Blue." Jesse L. Lasky will produce this story of the life of the late George Gershwin, thus re-uniting the producer-director combination of the "Twain" picture.

Preston Sturges' romantic comedy, "The Palm Beach Story," starts Sunday at the McDonald theatre. Claudette Colbert, Joel McCrea, and Rudy Vallee are the featured players.
