Orides' 'Hopalong' Tells Sad College Memories

By BETTY ANN STEVENS

"I'm glad I'm almost out of college," announced Jeanne Smith, Orides president, following their meeting in the Alumni room, Gerlinger, Monday night.

She giggled at our amazement, and added, "Because every year is a little worse."

"A little worse?"

"Yes, the first year I got flu; the second year I got flu again . . . a little worse; the third year, poison oak, and this year a broken ankle," she explained, eyeing quizzically the seven-pound plaster cast encasing her left leg.

"If I'd fallen on my head," Jeanne continued good-naturedly, "at least I wouldn't have ended up in a cast . . . Sure, go ahead and autograph it. Everybody has."

"How I did it? Well, it's awfully silly. I fell off the bottom step of the bleachers during a game and slid. I heard later about some fellows who wondered if I were just looking for sympathy when they carried me out. When I didn't come back they observed, 'guess it was on the level!'"

Able to walk without crutches now, Jeanne said that the cast will come off the day after finals. "Then, contrary to most coeds, I'll be able to walk after finals are over. . . I'll be cast aside," she quipped.

"I'm taking mostly sophomore courses now . . . just playing around," she informed us absently. "Things like child care . . . I've already had household management."

This brought the conversation naturally around to Art Four-yer, in the medical division of the air corps. She explained, "We don't want to be engaged until after the war's over."

"Where he is? Well, I think he's in Trenton, New Jersey, but I got a letter today and it has me a little worried. It was censored, and I'm afraid he's on his way somewhere. . . He did work in the sick and wounded office, but it doesn't have any connections."

From Portland, Jefferson high school, Jeanne's parents moved to Eugene when she came down to school.

Business ad. major Jeanne . . . also an ex-Phi Theta . . . plans to do office work "in either Portland, Seattle, or Alaska," after June.

AWS Notes

FROM THIS DAY FORWARD: An enterprising freshman will write this column. A new reporter elected . . . remember elections today, Gerlinger, 11 o'clock. To put it unobtrusively, Be There (exclamation point). It's not compulsory, but you should go or else, probably.

LAST WORDS: of present office-holders before giving up their positions today.

Marge Dibble, AWS president: "It's been a grand year, and I've enjoyed every minute of it."

Corrine Nelson, AWS vice-president, "The same goes for me."

Miki Campbell, AWS secretary: "I'm probably the only secretary they ever had who couldn't type."

Barbara Lamb, AWS treasurer: "Hey, I did that last year . . . thinking up quotes, I mean."

Gerd Hansen, sergeant-at-arms: "I'll always 'member dusting the AWS office and trying to keep track of Emeralds for the scrapbook."

Goldie Puziss, WAA president: "It's been fun and inspiring too."

Abbie Jane White, YWCA president: "I've enjoyed especially the people you meet. It's something you get out of school that can't be valued."

And as for "us," in the inimitable language of the press, "we" hope you've read this sometimes,

Confession

I'm tired of making up verses,
Of reeling off miserable lays;
I'm tired of cooking up misery
For the campus's curious gaze.
I'm bored unto tears with this rhyming
Of romance and similar tripe,
And I'd stop, but I know of no other
Way of getting my name into type.

TUNING UP FOR SPRING?

Pick a pastel skirt to match those new spring sweaters, and to go with those new spring whims! Montgomery Ward has lots and lots of new plaids and plain colors, and pleats all around!

CHECKING OUT?

Wear your checks big and bold this spring. A black and white checked taffeta formal . . . with a fresh and fluffy white ruffling around the neck and short sleeves; or checked taffeta skirt, gay red bodice, and white jersey blouse. Both of these and more besides are to be found at The Broadway!

SIMPLE SUBTRACTION

On goes a new Jantzen foundation—and off go inches! Any similarity between you and a glamour girl is deliberately intentional. Jantzen "Glamour Hips" does wonders with your curves. So drop in at Miller's and see these most glamour-making girdles and panty-girdles.

I DO—

If you are planning a wedding soon, I do suggest that you look at the very pretty bride's suits at Beard's. They have one especially lovely one in powder blue. The jacket has fancy plastic and rhinestone buttons, and the collar and pockets are hand made open work, braided from the material of the dress.

A ROSE IS A ROSE, IS A . . .

Rose Buds and Petals—their fragrance renewed with choice rose oils, will perfume your lingerie and hankies with a dainty garden scent. Herbarium Garden has an attractive glass container which is meant to be used for two ash trays. At Tiffany-Davis this is on special for 29c.

"T"EEED FOR STYLE

DeNeff's have some very scrumptious "T" shirts, each with one colored stripe around the top. These Beach-comber "sweater" are ONLY $1.50, and they come in such good looking combinations as yellow with brown stripes, beige with wine, oatmeal with green, blue with navy.

JIVE, JIVE . . .

Jive and Conga are now too very lovely shade soft "lace elegant" hosiery. This month they were featured in Mademoiselle, and already Hadley's have them. The mesh is very sheer . . . really "elegant."

HERE, SPOTS!

Knock about this spring in a gay cotton dress. Swell for picnics, classes and Saturdays, are the polka dot dresses at Penney's. They are trimmed in white rick-rack braid, and have full skirts. Also, very cute ones in flower prints, and only $1.59—better buy yourself several
