

● Personnel Man Offers Students Full Time Jobs

Graduates of '43 will have an opportunity to apply personally for a position with the Puget Sound Power and Light company when Mr. Rideout, personnel manager with the home office in Seattle, arrives here Tuesday, April 20, to interview seniors for full-time employment.

According to Miss Janet Smith, employment bureau secretary, Mr. Rideout will be available for interviews all day Tuesday when he may be reached in the employment office in the YMCA building. Any man or woman who graduates this June and is interested in personnel work for Puget Sound Power and Light may make an appointment with Mr. Rideout by phoning Miss Smith at the bureau.

Positions Terrific

The positions, said Miss Smith, have "a terrific scope" of coverage in many fields. Jobs include work in accounting, sales, maintenance, production, and several other divisions.

The business administration school, which has been among the top-ranking schools of its kind for the past several years, will be able to offer its graduates chances at jobs to be taken immediately upon graduation, Miss Smith declared.

Conference Personal

During interviews, Mr. Rideout will confer personally with each student. Scholarship, activity, and employment records will be and employment records will be considered. Recommendations from professors, employers, and University executives kept on file in the office for the future benefit of seniors in getting situated after graduation will be consulted during the conferences.

In regards to filling out applications for the positions, the firm considers scholarship as the most important requisite, with industry, accuracy, initiative, and personality falling in behind in that order.

Randolph-Macon Woman's college will soon celebrate completion of its fiftieth year.

troversies. Also to be included among the indications of a conservative war is the lack of vision placing this nation in its actual relationship to the rest of the world.

Isolationism

If the war lasts long enough, the strong taint of isolationism which still characterizes our thoughts may be partially dissolved. America's leaders may possibly glimpse the necessity of subordinating our nationalism to the common good of the human race, including ourselves.

Our founding fathers recognized the advantage of unification in a larger political organization. They had the wisdom to actually adopt a limitation of sovereignty.

Essential to effective progress in the direction of peace is a perspective of the type of world in which we live. The tremendous impetus given to modern civilization by the coming of the steam age little more than two hundred years ago hastened the economic unification of the world.

For centuries man has been building through world-wide trade an indestructible world economic union. Specialization of occupation may, perhaps, have blinded us to the delicate and absolute interdependency of all men on earth, but the world has become an economic whole.

The interconnections of all people by economics, culture, science, and religion can easily be observed and accepted. But it seems particularly difficult for us to become aware of the necessity of a world political organization, the purpose of which would be, at least, enforcement of unarmed and orderly settlement of all international differences.

Hitler wants to control for the benefit of a few people an already unified society. America should awake to the implications of her democratic concepts.

This should not be a conservative war. We must work and think now for a better United States and a more successful world. We had better recognize the world as it is and join the struggle to meet its needs. This is our chance.

defeat, the Sherry Ross squad overcame Alpha-Sigma hall, previous upsets of Sigma Nu. In a big third inning the Sherry Ross sluggers got to Oswald, Alpha-Sig hurler, for eight runs and the winning margin. Smith of SR smacked a homer with the bases loaded to lead the attack. Unkeles, Mickey and Arnett also played stellar ball.

Armed Forces Learn Via Mail

Through the United States armed forces institute, USAFI, in Madison, Wisconsin, 76 colleges and universities are under contract to give correspondence courses to service men.

By registering through the USAFI half the cost of fees and supplies will be paid by the government. Some men prefer to contact the school of their choice directly but in that case they must pay their own expenses.

Statistics prove mathematics, English, and meteorology to be the most popular studies although requests are also made for geography and various other studies.

These courses are available to all officers and enlisted men and women of the army, navy, marines and coast guard. The only requirement is four months' service for those in the army, two months for the navy.

Miss Mozelle Hair, head of the correspondence department of the general extension division, is handling service courses.

NEW WAVES-SPARS BOOKLET OFFERED BY ALL NAVY RECRUITING STATIONS

The same ratings, pay and opportunities for advancement which in the past have led thousands of men to "choose the Navy" are now open to enlisted women in the WAVES and SPARS. Women from 20 to 35 years of age are eligible for enlistment.

"Never in history," says Secretary of the Navy Knox, "have American women been offered such a chance to serve their country. Never has there been such an urgent need for their service."

Full information about training and opportunities for useful work is contained in the new booklet, "How to Serve Your Country in the WAVES or SPARS." It is obtainable at all Navy Recruiting Stations and Offices of Naval Officer Procurement.
