

Have It Around

translated by Glockenhorst in the sixteenth century from the original Greek, and was supposedly written by Nebulos as a hymn to some forgotten god.

Have It Around

A bull there was, and he made his lair
With a nag of a roan, in an atmosphere rare,
A product that gave the air its force
Was produced by the bull, with the aid of the horse.

Chorus:
Oh, toss it around,
Throw it around,
Have it around the infield.

Take me back to those happy days by the stable;
Days celebrated in poem and fable,
Where that scent I remember (I remember in full)

Was produced by the horse by the aid of the bull.
(Chorus)
The bull and the nag are kin to this ode,
For bull, nag, and writer produce by the load,
And the same pungent tone is a part of all three:

The bull, the nag, and especially me.
(Chorus)
If my meaning's not clear to the casual view,
And you don't get the drift, then here is your cue:

Stop reading a minute, and in that lull
You should recognize the presence of bull.
And you'll know the true meaning of have it around:

These writings down by the stable were found.
(Chorus) (Joyously)
Oh, toss it around,
Throw it around,
Have it around the infield.

His experiments in scientific refuse disposal are still proceeding. Recently introduced to the public was his partitioned plastic garbage pail for rationed and unrationed refuse.

He still requires his collectors to take showers daily. Essence of a special mixture of tweed and Overcooked Turnip. His inhalation-halting nose-clothespins for customers are cherished by housewives the world over.

Double Life

At the present time Mushtonkin is busy with his two hobbies: the creation of exotic new scents, and the designing of the ultimate in modern garbage cans.

His experiments in this former field have resulted in the tantalizing new perfume, "Evening in a Paris Sewer." Houbigant and Guerlain are bidding like mad for its acquisition.

His burgundy velvet garbage can executed on special commission from Marlene iDetrich is the last word in garbage can luxury. It not only automatically counts the point value of the food contained, but it has special com-

Mushtonkin is proudest of his creation for Mae West, a monogrammed pink quilted refuse retainer modelled after the owner's own anatomical advantages and equipped with a winking lid. J. Whitney Buffscull, Vogue's authority on garbage can architecture, describes this can as "Sexy, but definitely sexy."

Mushtonkin's Christmas cards, a flying sky-blue garbage can scented with Shalimar are received by notables throughout the world, and Mushtonkin K. Spinoza stands at the head of his profession, the epitome of American success and ingenuity.
