

Piñata Opens Gay Weekend

Bob Koch, former King of Hearts, will get a vote of confidence Friday noon at the campus luncheon when, as prime minister, he will officially open Junior Weekend. Roger Dick may never have been south of the border but he will crown Queen Mary Bentley in the South American way. She will be attended by her princesses Frances Johnston, Kay Jenkins, Sue Sawyer, and Mary Wright. Mortar Boards will give the rose to outstanding junior girls, chosen junior men will join the Friar chain, and skull and bones men will parade. The historic court of the old campus has seen many a sunny luncheon which indicates it could happen here.

Terrace Dancers

Even stack dwellers will come out of the library at 1:30 Friday when maestro Dickson inquires what's cookin' on the old back burner and Four Knights and a Dream narrate Ten Mad Russians. Terrace dance will conclude at three, so collegians can adjourn to the diamond to see Bubalo pitch those steaming balls from the mound. The Master Dance recital is also on the afternoon schedule.

The traditional song fest will present more than 30 choruses in competition at the Igloo Friday eve.

Tug-of-War

Thirty-five underclassmen are eagerly awaiting Saturday as the big day when they will pull thirty-five upperclassmen into the cold and muddy spring waters of the millrace to give the Big Boys an uncompromising defeat in the annual tug-of-war.

The Sunlight Serenade in the sunken gardens of the music school will present a classical orchestra concert from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m.

Promenade

All tradition is summoned for the formal Junior Prom with a 1 o'clock curfew. Bob Platner is bringing 13 bandsmen and two vocalists from a nearby institution to play for the big occasion. It's reported there are musicians in the crowd and those who

AWS Notes

Either Kathie Dunn or Auctioneers Roy Paul Nelson and Tex Goodwin, or all three deserve a pat on the back for the $35 total taken in at the AWS auction last Tuesday in front of the Side.

After an hour of steady auctioning, the only remaining articles from the large pile of "valuables" were a few old books (which nobody would bid for) and a couple of other non-essential items.

Lost and found articles can start collecting again (resting safely on the shelves of the UO heating plant building), but another auction won't be held until next school year.

Phi Theta Upsilon, junior women's honorary, are tapping new members (outstanding women from the sophomore class) today at the ASUO installation of officers at 11 a.m. in McArthur court.

New members of Kwama, sophomore women's honorary, will be tapped at the Mortar Board ball. Indications from Nancy Riesch, chairman of the ball, are that the scheduled date of the affair, Saturday, May 8, might be changed to Friday, May 7—but more about that later.

Short silks are in order for the Mothers' tea to be held in Gerlinger hall from 3 to 5 p.m. Saturday, according to Mary Bentley, who is Junior Weekend hospitality chairman. Besides the Phi Thetas and YWs, who are serving for the tea, the AWS council will also help—it was decided at the council meeting Monday.

Perhaps of interest to many coeds is the fact that small flowers may be worn in the hair for the Junior Prom—but nothing elaborate, says the campus social chairman.

Twenty-four coeds at the University of Chicago are learning the art of jiu-jitsu, some because "it's a handy thing to know" and others to prepare for the WAAC or the WAVES.
