

Dipping Out; Race Unclean

Warnings have been issued by both Dr. Fred N. Miller, of the students' health service, and Dr. W. J. Cloyes, Lane county sanitarian, against swimming in the mill race.

A number of students have been treated at the infirmary during the past few weeks for illnesses which seem to have come from swimming in the mill race.

"It is more important than ever during these times when man's power is very much needed for our country to eliminate anything which is likely to result in serious illness, impairment of efficiency, and loss of time," Dr. Miller stated. "Swimming in the mill race should not be indulged in by any student."

Recent water samples from the mill race submitted to the Oregon State Board of Health hygienic laboratory for analysis by the Lane county sanitarian were reported as containing bacteria which proved that the stream was polluted.

According to Dr. Cloyes considerable sewage goes into the river above the mill race intake and along the mill race at various points in Eugene. "Contaminated waters are often responsible for the transmission of certain diseases and intestinal upsets including typhoid fever, dysentery, diarrhea, cholera, and infantile paralysis," Dr. Cloyes said.
