

From the Pulpit

By FLORA KIBLER

It's Junior Weekend — and Mothers' Weekend — and we're thinking up the very nicest things that we may plan a most pleasant weekend for them. Why not take your mother to church this Sunday? The Eugene churches are planning lovely services.

At the Baptist church, Dr. Vance Webster is speaking at 11 on "The Privileges of a Christian," and at 7:30 on "Whom Shall I Marry?", the first in a series on the greatest questions in life.

The lesson-subject at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, is "Everlasting Punishment," at the 11 a.m. and 8 p.m. services.

At the First Christian church, a visiting pastor from Kansas City, Dr. Norman Stacey, is speaking at both the 11 and 7:30 services. Dr. Stacey is leading a series of meetings Sunday through Wednesday of this week.

The Congregational church's speaker will be Rev. Sidney A. Buckham, of San Mateo, a possible candidate for the pastorate of this church. His message at 11 is on "The Challenge of Tradition."

Dr. Earle Parker, pastor of the Methodist church, is leading a Communion meditation at 11 o'clock. At Wesley Foundation, 7 o'clock, Dr. C. Crumbaker is speaking on "The Economic Factors for a Lasting Peace."

The Lutheran churches of Eugene are holding worship services as usual this week.

Father Ernest S. Bartlam, pastor of St. Mary's Episcopal church, is speaking at the 11 o'clock service, on "This Life—What Next?"

Mass at St. Mary's Catholic church is at 8, 9:30, and 10:30 a.m., as usual. Pastor Dr. Norman K. Tully of the Central Presbyterian church, will speak at 11 on "Looking Back on Easter," and at 7:30 will lead another in a series of mission studies.

At the Unitarian church, Dr. W. B. Merriam will speak at the 11 o'clock service on "The Quest for Certainty."

Westminster house is having a service at 9:45 honoring their mothers; Mrs. Genevieve Turnipseed will speak. At the 6:30 forum group, Dr. Robert Leeper will lead a discussion of "Psychological Aspects of Post-War Reconstruction."

effect, are palm trees of the jungle closing in on the ancient sun temple.

Honored guests for the prom will be her royal highness, Queen Mary Bentley, and her four princesses, Frances Johnston, Kay Jenkins, Mary Wright, and Sue Sawyer.

The dance will be in traditional formal costume. White coats, tuxedos, or dark suits are acceptable for the men.

Flowers and corsages for the dance have been banned by the committee as "unnecessary."

Several special awards will be presented during the course of the evening. The Koyl cup, presented to the outstanding man in the junior class and the Gerlinger cup awarded to the outstanding woman in the junior class, will be given to those two fulfilling the requirements.

The Dr. Burt Brown Barker awards, given to the man and woman with the best scholastic qualifications, will also be presented at the prom.

Providing the music for the dance will be Bob Platner's orchestra from Corvallis.

Tickets are now sale at living organizations for $1.40. They will also be sold at the door tonight.

they come home. Civilians in war industry, particularly women, wonder whether they will still have jobs when it's all over.

A recent Gallup poll reveal that 79 per cent of today's war workers think their present jobs will continue after the war. Related to this confidence, which may decrease as demobilization sends millions of men back to the labor market, is the Gallup finding that more than half of the public has not heard of the National Resources Planning board's report on postwar plans which provides a stepping stone to full employment.

Down at CIO headquarters on Washington's natty Jackson place, however, Phil Murray is worrying about mass unemployment of women after the war.

A Situation

"There is a serious possibility that at least 10 million workers will lose their jobs within three months after the hostilities cease," he says. "That will affect women more than men. They will automatically be dismissed when war contracts are cancelled or completed. As newcomers, women will have relatively few skills and comparatively little seniority."

All this adds up to a need for full employment after the war. "If something near full employment can be achieved," Murray feels, "then women will continue to be welcomed into industry and the professions. Age-long barriers against women tend to disappear when their services are really required."

So long as men who are able and eager to work are not assured of jobs, however, women will continue to suffer from economic discrimination.

'You Won Anyhow'

News of college students' fervid devotion to freedom continues to filter through from the European underground. One of the most recent reports received in Washington tells of more executions of University of Munich students accused of distributing leaflets calling Adolf Hitler a murderer.

Among students who paid with their lives for speaking out against Hitler were a medical student, Hans Scholl, his sister Sophia, and another medical student named Christoph Froh.

The students showed great courage during the court proceedings. When Hans Scholl was sentenced to death, he called to his judges: "Soon you will stand where I am standing now."

After the executions, the words "You won anyhow" were painted in large letters on the university walls.

Old maps have been replaced by new maps and globes that give the students an airplane view of the world.

Rare Collection

A priceless collection of engravings of famous actors and actresses of a generation ago and scripts of plays, many of which are now out of print, popular on the stage many years ago, has been presented to the University of Utah speech department.

The collection includes an edition of 80 steel engravings and etchings of famous actors and actresses in their most noted roles and scenes from many plays.

Included with each picture is a discussion of the interpretation of each artist in his most famous role and details of costuming and production.
