Public Wolves to Win Waxings

Any loud howls heard today will not be indications that coyotes are invading the campus, but only the male population at the University practicing up in anticipation of winning the title "Public Wolves Number One" at the Nickel Hop. Winners will be determined on a percentage basis, whether there are 50 or 500 in the organization, and they will recieve an additional prize of $5 worth of records.

Early dinner will be served in all living organizations, and the girl's houses will be open to invasion promptly at 5:45. Each man, as he enters the house of his choice, will be given a ticket in exchange for his nickel. On this ticket he should write his unit or house and return it to the girl at the door. The Hop is over at 7:45 and winners will be announced after final tabulations of these tickets is made. Contributions of the Nickel Hop will go to the AWS scholarship fund.

'Bond Girl' Sale Increases Donations

Oregon's memorial fund was increased to $1580 by the bonds contributed by the living organizations as an entrance fee for the "Bonds Away Girl" contest. Receipts totaling $550 in maturity value were turned into the educational activities office.

The fund, created for a memorial to University of Oregon students who give their lives in the present world war, was started last year by donations of $262.50 each by Scabbard and Blade, military honorary and the senior class, and $500 from the interfraternity council.

Monday and Tuesday, BWOC's on the campus will go to the living organizations during lunch and dinner to promote the sale of bonds.

Urged to Attend Campus Events

Service Alums

Alumni servicemen in town are especially invited to all campus events today, according to the alumni office. Keeping the spirit alive, the alumni association has arranged a short program as a token Homecoming. A letter was sent to all former Ducks, asking them to come if possible, but no special effort was made to bring them here because of transportation and housing difficulties.

The annual business meeting will be held at 3 p. m. in Guild Hall. The group will consider alumni problems for the duration and (Please turn to page four)

Late Scheduling Done By Student Committee

All petitions for social events were due Saturday, January 8.

Any house or organizaton which wishes to schedule a social event during the winter term should now contact Dean Onthank's office and the student affairs committee, according to an announcement from the dean omen's office.

VOTING HAS BEGUN . . .

... on the above candidates for the title of "Bonds Away Girl" in the campus bond drive. In order to count, bonds should be bought at the Co-op and the receipt taking to the educational activities office. Each $25 bond counts 25 votes.

Oregons Ducks will be waiting in the Igloo tonight where they will attempt to overthrow the Beavers of Oregon State in the first game of this season's "Civil War" series. The Webfoots will have a great height advantage over the Stater's and are favored to win. Starting at 8 p. m. the game will be broadeast over station KWJJ.

Stag Jive Tonight To Follow Game

Dinner at the independent houses was interrupted last night by a cavortin' crowd of high-powered Henries who presented a typical picture of a few ducks talking over the ISA Canteen mixer tonight. The skit, made up of Ervin Webb, Don Slater, Bill Buell, Dick Nielsen, Rollin Wood, and Vernon Kisabergh, gave an "in-a-nutshell" introduction to the first nodate dance of the year.

Gerlinger hall, scene of the event, will probably be filled, according to Mrs. Seiffert, hostess. For not only is this the first such affair at Oregon, but, judging from reports from the houses and the army barracks, it will be an overwhelming success. No admission will be charged.

. Girl's houses will go en masse to the basketball game, and to the mixer afterwards. Attire is strictly campus clothes, for informality and comfort. Girls are requested to leave fur coats at home, and the soldiers are asked not to bring overcoats, as there will be no facilities for checking.

Owen Bailey and his thirteenpiece all-soldier orchestra, has been practising for days to be in top rhythm and W. R. Baker, master of ceremonies, will see that everybody meets somebody.

"This dance is developing into a really big social event," exclaimed Hoyt C. Franchere, faculty adviser of the ISA. "I'm definitely in favor of it, and I know it will have a good backing, by both civilian and soldier students and faculty."

In their 40 years of basketball rivalry the Webfoots and the Beavers have proved some of the most torrid hoop hostilities in the northern division, Pacific coast conference. They will open the series with both teams hoping for the first sweep in many years. Oregon's 1937 team was the last to win all four games. OSC accomplished the feat in 1933. In the last 8 seasons Hobby's men have won 18 as against 14 for Slats

The Beavers have recently lost Frank Marshik, 6-foot-6 freshman from St. Mary's high and John Hendricks, alternate with Marshik at center. Another man that will not see action is George Sertic, guard from St. Mary's. Ho is ineligible for the Oregon series because he transferred from Orcgon last fall.

The Webfoots with Borrevik at 6-foot-9, Bray at 6-foot-4, and Mayther at 6-foot-2 should have complete control of the backboards. At the present time Glen Patton, Jr., at 6-foot-1 from Junetion City, is the only man on the Beaver squad taller than the Duck guards. With their tall men gone the Beavers should have more speed; and with Bob Reiman and Allan Anderson, a couple of six-footers who are capable ballhawks, they will still be able to make the game a terrific battle.

The starting lineup for Oregon will not be announced until game time. Borrevik is an almost sure starter, but Mayther has shown well in scrimmage and may start. The forwards will be either Danner, Bray or Caviness. The probable starters at guard will be Phillips and Hamilton, but Henwood, Koch, and Wimberly, who scored 18 points in the last full-game scrimmage, may see action.

Dr. Breen Praises Liberal Arts In First Lecture of Forum Series

By FLORA KIBLER

"Liberal Arts are the heart of this University; arts as actual results of creation, liberal-freeing the mind from ignorance", Dr. Quirinus Breen stated last night. Dr. Breen, as first speaker in the ASUO-sponsored forum series on Oregon's higher educational system, emphasized knowledge and intel-

Houses Pile Into Drive With Stacks of Scrap

Partially spurred on by the war board's prize of six records to the house turning in the most scrap and with special emphasis on paper, coeds filled a large truck with bundles of paper, cans, and waste fats in Friday's drive, and collectors were only able to cover half of the houses.

Alpha Delta Pi, Gamma Phi, and Hilyard house have turned in the most scrap as yet, but the winning house will not be announced until the scrap from the remaining houses is collected Monday afternoon at 2 in the same truck with University women again assisting in the drive.

lectual activity for its own sake. He touched on a subject which has lately been growing in the minds of many Oregon students, that of the apparent oblivion and deadness of this campus in regard to actual knowledge. Dr. Breen spoke of a now-legendary history group which flourished on this campus a year or so ago. It included students Nick Rjasanvsky, Don Treadgold, Pete Howard, Gordan Torrey, who were so enthusiastically interested in some learning that they'd "rather talk about it than eat."

"The trouble with this campus is that we're too provincial . . . most of us have not yet come to intellectual maturity," he said. "Our generation needs to be badgered about knowledge, like the gadfly of Socrates. People enjoy temporal or sensual things, but
