The Oregon casaba team is in good condition today after finishing the last heavy work-out of the week. The injuries suffered by Borrevik and Hamilton have healed, and although Hamilton did not take part in last night's practice game he will be ready to see action in the coming game with Oregon State. Another addition to the team is Bill Mayther, player in the East West Shrine football game. He had several years of basketball experience in Spokane and he will be ready to play in the coming series.

The Oregon State Beavers were very unimpressive in their pre-season games, winning three and losing five. Gill's men looked well against the Washington team at the Astoria Jamboree and they have had a high scoring team in all their conference games to date. They won two from Idaho and then lost two close ones to Washington State.

The Beavers have been hard hit by the armed forces taking three of their best guards. To fill the gaps left by these men, the reserve ranks of forwards furnished the men and were thus weakened. They were weakened by the loss of these men but the resulting combination worked as well and perhaps even better than the first quintet.

One of the most pleasing features of the road trip to Gill was that Allen Anderson, speedy freshman guard, found his scoring eye for the first time this season. He poured in 37 points against the Vandals and Cougars and may be the answer to the Beavers' need for a consistent scorer. Guard Fred "Happy" Lee and Forward Bernie McGrath also scored well in the opening conference games, each racking up 31 points.

In the last practice sessions the Beavers had, Gill stressed defense because it was this that caused their defeat in the two games with Washington State. In one game they held a lead of 24-14 at the half and then lost 45-41 as their defense fell apart in the second period.

To send the Beavers back to Corvallis still stinging from the snap of the Ducks bill will take every effort that the team can put forth.

Washington Teams Tied for Top Place

Standing:	W.	L.	Pct.
Washington	2	0	1.000
Washington State	2	0	1.000
Oregon State	2	2	.500
Oregon	0	2	.000
Idaho	0	2	.000

Washington and Washington State are tied for the lead of the northern division, Pacific coast basketball conference. Oregon State is at the .500 mark with two wins and two defeats. Oregon and Idaho have not as yet broken into the win column. At this early stage in the race it is still anyone's title.

WAA Banquet Set For February

February 17 in Gerlinger hall was the time and place decided upon for the W.A.A. banquet by the W.A.A. Council when they met Tuesday, January 11. At the banquet there will be the initiation of new W.A.A. members, installation of new officers, reports on the year's activities, and group and individual awards will be made. As yet it is not known who the guest speaker will be. Bonnie Umphlette has been made the chairman of the banquet.

At the meeting, the term calendar for intramural sports was made out. The basketball, badminton, and table tennis games begin January 10 and end February 15. Basketball will be played every Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday evenings at five o'clock. There will be two games going on at once with one played in the indoor gym and one in the outdoor gym. The badminton games will be played on Tuesday and Thursday at 4 o'clock, Wednesday at 7:30 in the evening, and Saturday mornings at 10 o'clock. The table tennis games will be played every afternoon. A bulletin will be posted at a later date for those wishing to play table tennis to sign up on in the P.E. department.

It was also decided at the meeting, that there will be an Outing Club fireside January 15 after the basketball game in Gerlinger.

Canis Lupus Collegicus

Now getting to the "wolf" of this thing, it is found firstly that a wolf, according to Webster, is a large doglike carnivorous mammal. Just show me a girl who would run around with a carnivorous mammal.

Secondly, (still Webster), we find that a wolf is "any of various larvae of certain small beetles or moths which infest granaries." Does anyone know a girl who enjoys an afternoon with some larva in a granary? And thirdly a wolf is "a harshness due to faulty vibration in certain tones in bowed instruments." Now our "swooner boomer" may have harshness due to faulty vibration, but he certainly is not a bowed instrument.

It's rumored that a certain committee would have a whole house full of faulty vibrations, but using our friend, Coe Jollege, as an example who ever heard of a doglike mammal, a beetle larva or a bowed stringed instrument, entertaining five girls at a dance, let alone kissing Jessie good nite on the porch (of all places).

So why call a "Wolf" a wolf when ten to one he isn't? (Isn't logic wonderful?)

Girls' Basketball Games Coming; Inter-house Play to be Stressed

It's in the sky—it's a man—it's superman—no it's a basketball. It comes toward the basket like a comet, bounces off the backboard, misses the basket completely, everyone passes out from the exertion, and the coach tears her hair and wonders if there is any hope for the team.

BOB CAVINESS . . .

. . . sophomore from McMinnville and a member of the 1943 frosh quintet, is an outstanding forward on the 1944 Oregon team.

And this happens about every evening around four or five o'clock in the girls' gym where you will find members of the various living organizations on the campus practicing for the coming basketball intramurals. The time is growing closer and closer for the opening game of the girls' basketball season, and as the time grows nearer the hustle and bustle around the gym of the practicing teams is growing more and more intense.

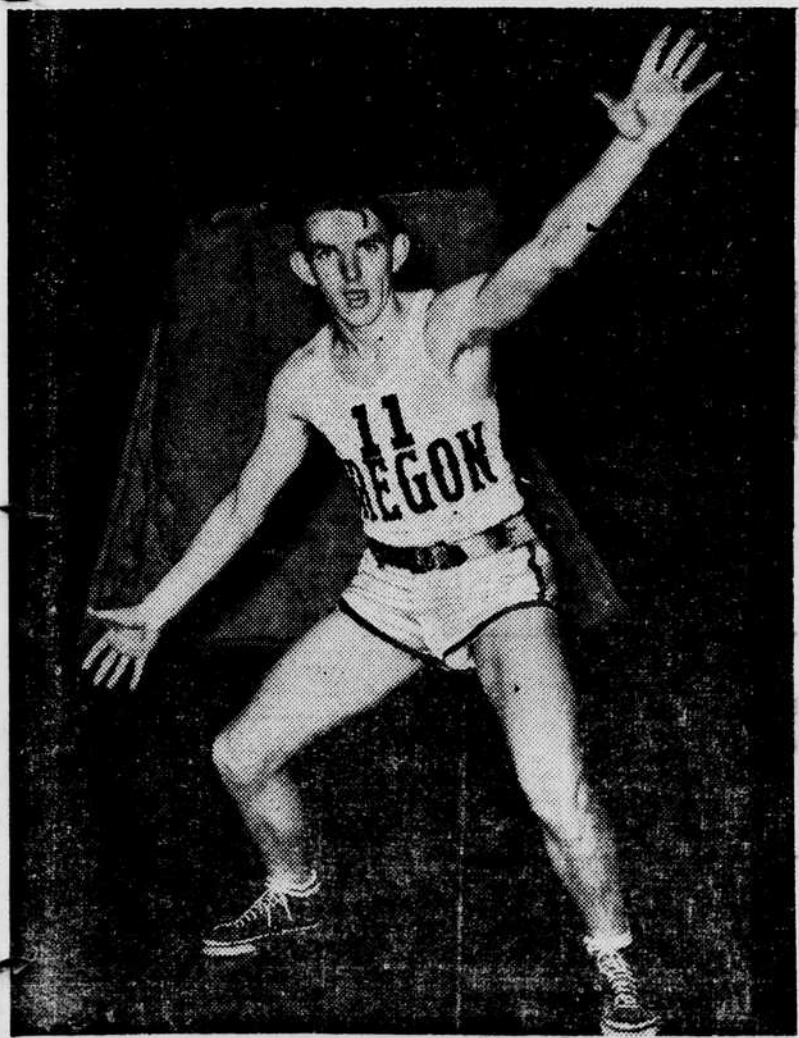

Tuesday night many of the top teams were out warming up for the coming games and practicing tricky plays that will fool anyone. The combination of Marianna Blenkinsop, guard; and Uereno Flower, forward; for University house will offer a definite threat to any team.

Of course, we should never forget Mary Alderson who referees many of the games and is always around to help some poor unfortunate basketball player keep her legs from getting tangled when she has the ball. According to Mary, the versatile Georgie Adams, who plays either forward or guard for the Ordes, will be one person for any team to watch for.

Tuesday night the ADPI's and the Gamma Phi's played a spirited practice game. Although there was no score kept the game was as exciting and well played as any league game. ADPI guard Barbara Bentely and Gamma Phi forward Judas Saucher offered

All of the teams practicing show that the coming intramurals will really be the source of much excitement and good sport.

The endowment of Northwestern university totals $30,000,000.
