Besides these officers, an executive board was named. Joyce

Miss L. Tyler To Give Talk

Miss Leona E. Tyler, known on the campus for her love of chamber music, her large record collection. and her reputation as a good cook, will speak on the subject of "Approaches to Psychological Measure- forums and assemblies will be arments" at the University lecture ranged. series at 8:30 p. m. Thursday in 107 Villard.

Miss Tyler, assistant professor of psychology, is a graduate of the University of Minnesota where she is remembered as having been considered one of the ablest students under Dr. Donald Paterson, author of "Learning Tests with Deaf Children", and other books. In connection with writing her doctor's thesis Victor P. Morris, dean of the school there, she worked with interest tests for high schol girls and through this became especially interested in various types of personality tests.

In her lecture, Miss Tyler will discuss the different attempts which have been made in the last 25 years to measure personality, interest inventories and personality questionnaires, and projective methods such as ink blot tests will be covered. These forms of measurements are being used in evaluating applicants by the armed forces, educational institutions, and industry. Many forms have been widely published in national magazines and general public attention has been drawn. recently to the questions of personalities.

Miss Tyler believes that "People need to understand what can be done with these tests, what they are for, and the extent of their limitations."

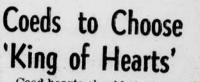

Whittle, freshman in liberal arts. Keith Murphy, Anne Scripter, freshman in liberal arts, Jo-Anno McCrady, Marilyn Glenn, freshr, an in journalism, and Janice Hough, sophomore in music, make up the board.

The new officers' first meeting will be held Thursday afternoon at 4 at the Delta Gamma house. Plang for the remainder of the term will be discussed and a schedule for

Plans for securing the signature of every University student on Chief Justice Owen J. Roberts' pledge for peace will also be digcussed.

The pledge calls for a world organization consisting of the United Nations and such neutral countries as may be admitted by them leaving the Axis powers the status of territories on probation until the organization admits them to membership.

It further states that no member nation may secede from the organization and that all should give up the right to commit acts of war against other nations. It provides for the establishment of an international police force and the gradual abolition of economic and political imperialism throughout the world and declares the necessity of preventing the Germans and Japanese. from preparing for a "third world war of conquest."

Coed hearts should start hopping to get their dates for the Heart Hope February 11, from 9 to 10:30, general Chairman June Johnson announced. The committees are considering setting up a date-bureau whereby all "free and floating" men may sign their names and obtain a date for the Hop. ## Houses Will Nominate Emerald 'Cover Girl'

Living organizations are reminded to nominate their candidate for Emerald cover-girl and to turn her name and picture in to Elizabeth Edmunds, at the Emerald business office, by 5 p.m. today.

Contestants will be judged for "sheer beauty"-face, figure and photographic possibilities and the winner's picture wil cover the entire front page of the Emerald's spring edition, February 18. The girls will appear before the judges in person.

A committee of army men will pick the campus queen who will be the 1944 Emerald cover-girl Marcy Hartwick won this honor in-1942 and Virginia Howard in 1943.

Lieutenant Fred V. Cahill Jr., instructor in political science in 1941-42 at the University, is now serving in the armed forces somewhere in the South Pacific. The exact nature of his work is not known, but it is administrative and it concerns all the branches of the armed forces that are located in the Pacific.

Lt. Cahill was inducted into the army at Fort Leavenworth,

Kansas, in June, 1942. He received his basic training at Sheppard field, Texas, and was then assigned to the army air corps and sent to Chanute field, Illinois, to a school in meteorology. Following his grad-uation from this he was a weather Weekends Close uation from this he was a weather observer at the army air base in Pueblo, Colorado.

In January, 1943, he was appointed to a special assignment under the department of the adjutant general and sent to a school of censorship at Fort Washington, Maryland.
