

Tonight Last Opportunity To View 'Dark Victory'

"Dark Victory's" reappearance tonight at 8 in Guild hall, marks the successful completion of the second production by the University theater in accordance with their ambitious four-year plan to acquaint University students with every type of dramatic work.

Of the four plays scheduled for this year two have now been presented, a comedy, "Out of the Frying Pan" and a drama, "Dark Victory". Left to be considered are the experimental drama, on which work is already being started, and the musical review in the spring.

W. A. Dahlberg, director of speech and dramatic arts, in commenting on the production said, "I think it excellent. I was particularly impressed with Mr. Krasnowsky and Miss Kern. To me the play 'Dark Victory' represents one additional step in the University theater's new policy." Mr. Dahlberg continued that he especially wanted to congratulate Director Horace Robinson in his cooperation with the drama department on this new program. He also described "the old maid," Margie Robinson's portrayal of the old housekeeper, as excellent.

Mrs. Eyer Brown, treasurer and former president of Eugene's Very Little Theater also pronounced the play "very splendid", adding that it was the "most restrained and consistent thing I've seen in a long time."

Likes, Dislikes Key to Individual

"I am interested far more in the constructive, forward-moving drives that give shape and color to an individual, regardless of whether he is happy or not," asserted Miss Leona E. Tyler in her lecture last night in one of the University lecture series.

"It seems to me that we come closest to getting at these by means of the inventories of the likes and dislikes which have been worked out for measuring vocational interests."

Miss Tyler, who, as assistant professor of psychology, has made a special study of the development of various methods of evaluating personality during the last 25 years, stated that there is abundant evidence that people can be differentiated in this way. She said that although we tend to think of a person's likes and dislikes as being ephemeral and changeable, they are not; from adolescence on they are as stable as anything about the person.

According to Miss Tyler, those years of trial-and-error research have resulted in three main types of personality test technique: the readjustment or symptom questionnaire, the interest inventory which probes your likes and dislikes and interprets through them your vocational tendencies and personality traits; and the projective tests like those where the individual is given abstract ink blots and asked to tell what he sees.

Experimental Drama Set for Spring Term

An experimental drama, as yet unannounced, was accepted unanimously by the University Theater guild as their third production of the school year on the nomination of the advisory board yesterday evening at the winter term group meeting, faculty adviser Horace W. Robinson announced following the meeting.

The play was read through for comprehension by the assembled members of the Theater guild and selective casting will begin immediately. Mr. Robinson has announced that anyone, man or woman, who would care to try out for the production should get in touch with him or some member of the guild. Candidates for tryouts need not belong to the guild or be enrolled in any dramatic courses at the University.

The first part of the meeting was devoted to the hearing of reports from the advisory council on the new personnel card filing system being inaugurated, the Guild Gazette, the organization's paper being sent to service alumni; the vaudeville unit, and map and publicity projects.

Fifty Coeds Help Nation Fulfill Nursing Demands

By WINIFRED ROMTVEDT

Between 50 and 60 pre-nursing students enrolled at the University are helping to meet the nation's requirements for nurses, both service and civilian. Most of these students are freshmen. By July 1, it is necessary that 65,000 students nurses be attending schools in the United States, and this quota has not been reached, Miss Henrietta Doldz, acting director of the department of nursing education, said Thursday.

Washington State Whips UO 38-33

Washington State scored a 38 to 33 victory over the Oregon Webfoots to square the series at one apiece. This win puts the two teams back in a tie for third place in the conference standings.

Washington State passed incessantly to solve the zone defense that the Ducks were using. It was not until the last two minutes of play that the Webfoots changed from their zone to a man-for-man defense, and even this seemed to be a benefit to the Cougars.

Until the last six minutes of play, when the Staters grabbed a lead they could hold, the ball game was very close with the lead changing five times in the first half and three times in the second. The 19 to 17 score at the half saw the Cougars on the long end.

Borrevik, because of his performance the night before, was held in check and as a result only scored four points. High man for Washington State was Carstens with 14 points and for Oregon Humphreys with 7.

ASTUdents Invite UO Faculty, Personnel to Military Formal

Tomorrow's gala formal, the annual Military Ball, is open to faculty members and University personnel, as well as to civilian men and military students from other units on the campus.

Representatives of the ASTP men who are sponsoring the Ball announced that students with out-of-town dates need show only one University affiliation or army identification card per couple.

As previously announced in the Emerald, this is the only admission requirement, because army regulations prevent the performance of an army band for a profit-making affair. The band, is entirely composed of army men under the direction of Owen Bailey, Co. A.

As in former years, the Military Ball promises to be the largest attraction of winter term and Tye Simpson, publicity chairman, indicated that preparations are being made for an attendance of 800 couples.

Fellow ASTP men will accord the basic III engineering students the honor of heading the grand march which will be led by Major W. S. Averill, commandant of the unit. These men comprise the first group of students who will complete their entire three terms of basic engineering at the University of Oregon.

Don Dittman and Sy Klemmer will appear in one of their famous dialogues. Chairmen in charge of the event have promised that McArthur court will have sufficient checking facilities for the Ball. The program begin at 9 a. m. and lasts until midnight.

Patrons and patronesses for the evening include: Chancellor and Mrs. Frederick M. Hunter, Acting President and Mrs. Orlando J. Hollis, Col. and Mrs. Charles L. Sampson, Maj. W. S. AWS Assembly To Hear Marine

"A Woman's Place in the War as a Marine and the Training Necessary" is the theme of a talk to be given by marine Sergeant Adaline Franks Thursday, February 10, at the AWS assembly in the music auditorium. Doubling the attraction will be marine Sergeant L. L. Pittenger who will speak on the affiliation of the two branches of service. This is a timely subject as the marine's birthday will be celebrated on February 13.

Mortar Board will present a skit, the name of which has not been announced as yet. Guests will be AWS cabinet members from Oregon State who will tell about some of their activities this year. Another speaker has been scheduled but his name has not been announced.

"Since this will be the only AWS assembly during winter term, all women students should arrange to attend," said Miki Campbell, AWS president.

Scholarships in Many Varied Fields Offered to Women Graduate Students

Scholarship possibilities for women graduate students have greatly increased in the past few years, and now more than ever there are opportunities for graduate work in many varied fields, Karl W. Onthank, dean of personnel has reported.

Dean Onthank stressed that students of this year's graduating class, or former graduates, should, if they are interested, make out applications immediately for graduate scholarships as some of these applications must be in by March 1.

Most colleges and universities make their scholarship awards during March or April and some even earlier and have a deadline date after which no application will be received, so it is advisable to plan carefully and begin early in search for a scholarship, he said.

An example of the many scholarships available to students who have completed their University requirements is the business administration scholarship to Bryn Mawr college. One or two such scholar-
