Peggy Magill, League Head, To Go to Meet

Peggy Magill, chairman of the campus Total Victory league, will attend the Northwest International Relations conference, March 24-25, to be held at Holy Name college, Spokane, Washington, as the representative from the University of Oregon.

Miss Magill will present to the convention an invitation, offering the use of the facilities of the University for the 1945 conference, extended by Dr. Victor P. Morris, faculty adviser and chairman of the international affairs committee. The 1940 convention was held here on the campus and received considerable attention at that time.

Advance notices on the conference stated that speakers on international problems, round table discussions, and representatives from the Carnegie Endowment will be on the program. Miss Magill expressed the hope that she would be able to bring back many good ideas to help our own campus movement and also that the Total Victory league would be of interest to other representatives.

Miss Magill organized the league during winter term under the sponsorship of Dean Morris and the late Dean Eric W. Allen. She defined it as "a group primarily organized to learn about postwar problems and to help prepare for action to be taken on them after the victory is won. The league has no connection with the Peace Now movement."

Concerning the Total Victory league, George Turnbull, acting dean of the school of journalism, said, "Dean Allen interested me in this movement several weeks ago. I shall be happy, both for the sake of the idea itself and because it was so close to the dean's heart, to give it all the support I can."

Student Union Plans Get Rolling; Class Committees Hear Reports

Two of the class Student Union committees went into action Monday with the announcement that the freshman committee is planning to contact all living organizations this week to compile a list of ideas for facilities, and that the junior committee will contact heads of schools to find out their present facilities.

At a meeting of the all-campus committee and committee chairmen of the class committees, reports were made on the proposed activities of the two classes.

Wallace Johnson, chairman of the freshman committee, stated that his committee would give an account of the history, purpose, plans, and a list of facilities now planned for a Student Union building to the living organizations. The various houses will be asked to have forums to discuss facilities and to turn in to the committee a list of those they desire.

The junior committee, headed by Florence Hintzen, will contact the heads of schools and other organizations to find out what facilities they have and what they need.

A sophomore committee meeting will be held Wednesday at 4 p.m. in the Student Union office.

Dorm Repair In Progress

Carpenters are refinishing and hanging doors in Susan Campbell hall preparatory to the return of the building to a girls' dormitory next year. The present plan is to convert all units to civilian use starting fall term, said Mrs. Genevieve Turnipseed, director of dormitories, today.

As many units as needed for civilian men will be open in John Straub. At present Sherry Ross is occupied by 53 medical and dental students and Sigma hall is the orderly room. Hendricks will house the air corps until May 30.

Cost of repairing damage from the fire will be from $2500 to $3000. Carpenters and painters are refinishing floors and repairing the basement. The army has moved all its equipment out. Bathtubs, replaced by showers for

March 31 Opening Date Of 'Great God Brown'

"House light down" will be the signal Friday, March 31, for the opening night of Eugene O'Neill's powerful drama "The Great God Brown" starring Frank Krasnowsky with an outstanding Theater guild cast, including Louis Vogler and newcomers, Mary Ellen Foland and Jeanne Briggs.

The story of a visionless, penny-god who lives and destroys himself in the desire to possess the powers of love and life of his friend, "The Great God Brown," is an unusual production of an unusual play.

Special stage sets, music and lighting are being combined with outstanding Guild hall talent to make this spring term production exceptional entertainment.

The University box office, located in Johnson hall, will be open beginning March 28, at 10 a.m. The admission price is 60 cents. Seats may also be reserved by phoning 3300, extension 216. Horace Robinson, acting head of the drama department, is directing the production.

Short Story Contest Winners to be Listed

Judges of the Marshall-Case-Haycox short story contest will probably announce the winners in three weeks, said W. F. G. Thacher, professor of English and advertising, who is in charge of the contest.

Ten entries are being considered. The contest ended March 20.

The contest offers three prizes aggregating $100. They will probably be for $50, $30, and $20 each.

Judges are Miss Juliette Gibson, instructor in creative writing and journalism at Eugene high school, Glenn Hasselrooth, reporter for the Register-Guard, and Mrs. Arthur Hunter, daughter-in-law of Chancellor Hunter.

Membership Drive Commences Today

This year, undertaking the greatest task in its history, the Red Cross is asking $200,000,000 from the people of America; $1000 from University students. According to the campus drive co-chairmen, Mary K. Minor and Dorothy Rasmussen, more than the usual minimum $1 membership fee should be expected from every student.

Contributions of any size from single pennies on are welcome, the chairman stressed, and small Red Cross flag pins will be given to all who contribute. The campaign starting today will continue until next Wednesday, following which the war board will award a cup to the house turning in the largest support. Second prize is $2.50 worth of records.

Aiding the chairmen in the drive are: Bette Hayes, phone committee; Doris Chapler, posters; Roseann Leckie, collection; and Marguerite Wittwer, publicity.

During the war emergency the Red Cross centers its attention on services for the men overseas: hospitalization, blood plasma, medical supplies, food and medicines to prisoners of war, postal service, and assistance to disabled men and their families.

Foreign war relief for our allies and stricken neutrals is provided. Disaster and emergency relief stations are maintained for civilian war aid, and on the home front the usual health, education, and safety measures are stressed.

The following Red Cross representatives will contact members of their respective houses: Doris Hoiland, Alpha Chi Omega; Carol

Athletic Rumors Denied by Hollis

"No final or official action concerning basketball for next year has been taken, either by the athletic board or by myself," Acting President Orlando J. Hollis said Tuesday. This statement was made in answer to a rumor in Greg's Gossip in the Portland Oregonian Tuesday that all University coaches have been asked to go on an indefinite leave of absence starting July 1.

Such action regarding salaries and personnel could not have been made because the budget has not yet been presented, Mr. Hollis explained. The athletic budget, however, will be presented at the next meeting of the athletic board on Monday, March 27.

Although basketball next year cannot be assured because of the uncertain number of civilian men, the acting president remarked, "no one has been placed on a leave of absence yet."

The only regular coaches now on the faculty are Howard A. Hobson and J. A. Warren. An athletic manager, A. B. Cornell, is also maintained at present.

Canada Made 'Tougher' By War, Sage Asserts

By MARGUERITE WITTWER

"Canada is coming out of this war a tougher, harder working nation," said Dr. Walter N. Sage, head of the history department at the University of British Columbia, in his lecture before a large group of faculty members and students last night in conjunction with the regular University lectures series.

"We are in our fifth year of war; we are beginning to feel it, but we are not kicking and, God willing, we will be there when it ends. Canada's future is intimately bound up with the settlement after this war; we have a lot to lose if this settlement contains the seeds of another; a third or fourth world war. It is not going to happen again if men of goodwill throughout the world can find the solution.

"One solution would be to follow the Golden Rule on a basis of give and take. All we ask for is a chance to live in a peaceable world where our grandsons will not have to do what our sons are doing now. It is up to you and me to do some thinking and praying. It demands courage. It demands faith and love of mankind, and a dream of universal brotherhood."

Dr. Sage emphasized the fact that Canada is not, as commonly,

Artist Fred Gong Visits UO; Newly-Made Second Lieutenant

Second Lieutenant Fred Gong, outstanding Oregon artist who enlisted in the army air corps after his freshman year here, returned for a brief visit to the campus and his faculty friends Monday.

Dapper, smiling Fred Gong brought national attention to Oregon when he won the $1000 first prize in the 1940-41 Youth Forum contest sponsored by the American magazine. His winning mural entitled "What my community contributes to the nation," depicted the three main industries of the Willamette valley—fishing, agriculture, and lumber .The spirit of the Oregon Trail was represented by a pioneer covered wagon seen in the clouds above a background of the Three Sisters mountains and the Columbia river Bonneville dam.

The mural was painted under the direction of Mrs. Ruth Halversen while Gong was a student at Lincoln high school, Portland. A trip to New York with visits to Washington D.C. and other places of artistic and historic interest with all expenses paid was given to Mrs. Halversen and young Gong.

Returning to Oregon, Fred Gong registered in the art school and soon became recognized on the campus for his abilities; he was elected a member of Sigma Delta Chi, men's journalistic honorary, and became art editor of the Ore-

French Film Set For UO Thursday

Slated to be shown on the campus Thursday evening is "Daybreak," titled in French, "Le Jour Se Leve," the last film success produced in pre-war France. The picture stars Jean Gabin, popular in French and American film production, now serving with Free French naval forces.

As announced by Miss Augusta Nelson, instructor in Romance languages who is in charge of plans for the presentation, the film will be shown with subtitles for the convenience of non-French speaking members of the audience.

Sponsored by Pi Delta Phi, French honorary society, and the department of Romance languages, the picture is the first French-produced movie offered on the campus this year. The film is scheduled for one showing, Miss Nelson stated, and will begin Thursday evening at 7:30 in 207 Chapman. Tickets, priced at 30 cents, are on sale in Romance language department offices in Friendly hall.
