

Meteorites Subject Of Friday Speech

Meteors and meteorites will be discussed by Dr. A. H. Kunz, head of the chemistry department, Friday, March 31, at 8 p.m. in a lecture entitled "Missiles from the Heavens." In his spare moments from his duties as professor of chemistry Dr. Kunz has developed a deep interest in astronomy.

With a keen nose for news of what's going on in the heavens the speaker has gathered much information about those mysterious visitors from other parts of the universe.

Students, faculty, and townspeople interested in meteors and in meteorites are invited to attend the lecture, which will be given in room 101 Chapman hall.

Plaque to Honor Service Women

Honoring University women in the service, a plaque is to be secured to hang in Gerlinger hall. Arrangements will be taken care of by Phi Theta Upsilon, junior women's honorary, and heads of houses. The latter will be in charge of obtaining the names of University service women and their respective branches of the service.

Anthropological Talk Will Be Given April 3

"Language, Culture, and Patchwork Quilts," an anthropological lecture to be presented on the campus by Alfred Whiting, assistant professor of anthropology, will be given Monday, April 3, sponsored by the University Sigma Xi chapter.

As announced by the speaker, totemism and the question of whether this practice among primitive social groups is due to cultural or linguistic factors will form the main theme for the lecture.

The talk is scheduled for 8:15 Monday evening, in 101 Condon hall.
