

Financing Post War Plans Discussed in Review

A new aspect of the postwar planning organization, financing the postwar projects, has been introduced by Dr. Victor P. Morris, dean of the school of business administration, in the lead article of the current issue of the "Oregon Business Review," published by the bureau of business research. He said that ideas and blueprints must be supplemented with cash and no program is complete without its financing completely organized.

Dr. Morris, who is chairman of the state committee on postwar adjustment and development, encouraged at the interest being shown in the problems which will confront business and government at the end of the war, warned those interested that unless immediate preparations are taken for establishing a "stock-pile" or "back-log" of public works, the plans will be mostly fanciful.

"No group should regard itself as having done its job of preparation for the postwar period until all three phases are completed or well on the way to completion. It is highly essential that we do not deceive ourselves with our long lists of projects totalling millions of dollars when in fact only a small part of the money resources are yet even seriously thought about, let alone actually in hand."

Dr. Morris stated further that each political unit and organization should adopt its own financial resolutions in accordance with its individual resources. The important thing to remember, he stressed, is that the moves to accumulate these cash reserves should be made now rather than to wait for financial backing through bonds.

Hike, Discussions On Weekend Slate

Westminster is planning another of its Saturday afternoon hikes for this weekend. Any students wishing to join the party are invited to meet at Westminster house at 4 p.m. Saturday. Everyone should bring 25 cents for food.

After the hike the regular open house will be held with a play given by Eugene high school players as the feature of the evening. The play, "Sunset Becomes Rhythm," will begin at 8 p.m. and will be over in time for Mortar Board.

At 9:45 a.m. Sunday the Student Discussion group, led by Thelma Nelson, will take up "The Complete Life." Rolls and coffee will be served at 9:30.

"Conscription of Women" will be the topic for the evening discussion at 6:30 p.m. Bill Deskin and Marian Gage will lead the forum and tea will be served at 6.

CAMPUS CALENDAR

The Methodist church will present a musical Palm Sunday program at 7 p.m. Sunday, followed by recreation at Wesley house.

The high school play that was to be given at Westminster house tonight has been postponed.

Hegdahl, UO Alumnus, Returns From Orient

Lt. Col. Rudolph Hegdahl, who was graduated from the University in 1934, visited his wife in Eugene last week on a two-day leave. Colonel Hegdahl has just recently returned from the India-Burma sector where he was sent in January, 1942, as a special staff officer on the general staff.

In describing India and his experiences to a Register-Guard reporter he commented on the unsanitary practices and general uncleanness in India. This is one of the first shocks to American soldiers billeted there, he said.

He also commented on the prevalence of beggars and the use of children in the profession, many of which are borrowed for the effect.

Colonel Hegdahl was a member of Delta Upsilon social fraternity while on the campus. He was called to active duty in 1940, entering the service as a first lieutenant. Receiving a transfer to the air corps as an administrative officer, he was assigned to Hamilton field, in California, and then later to India. He reported to Santa Monica, California, at the end of his leave.

Forty-eight hours of machine shop work were included in an economics seminar on production problems at Mount Holyoke college.

Essays Indicate Student Problems

Hundreds of college and university students believe their most critical problems after the war will be in finding employment. This observation made by Dr. Frederick C. Mills is based on the entries submitted by college men and women in the Pabst Postwar Employment awards, a national competition offering $50,000 in prizes for postwar employment plans. Dr. Mills heads the faculty members of Columbia university's economics department who are acting as consultants to the board of judges for the awards.

"We are extremely gratified," said Dr. Mills, "to find such a tremendous interest shown by college students in this public-spirited enterprise. The problem of postwar employment is a critical one and it is most encouraging to find among these students an appreciation of its importance and an understanding of the major factors affecting employment opportunities." Plans have been received by the awards committee from students of almost every college and university in the United States.

On the board of judges of the Pabst Postwar Employment awards are: Clarence Dykstra, president, University of Wisconsin; Wesley C. Mitchell, professor of economics, Columbia university; Beardsley Ruml, chairman, Federal Reserve bank of New York; and A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

Announcement of the 17 winners, with a first prize of $25,000; second prize of $10,000 and 15 prizes of $1,000, will be made on April 12. Presentation of coveted awards will be made over a national radio program. The winning plans will be turned over to the proper government agencies and research bureaus on postwar employment.

Ensign Wyatt Proves Sailors Can Swim

Ensign Eddie Wyatt of Roseburg, a former swimming instructor for a year at the University of Oregon, had a chance recently to prove his nautical prowess, according to his fiancée, Betsy Stefan, of the dean of women's office.

Ensign Wyatt was at a Pacific port just ready to board his ship, when he discovered two UO friends and stopped to talk to them. Suddenly he saw his ship pulling out to sea, so he dove into the water fully clothed, swam to the ship, and was helped on board by a rope thrown down to him.

Outing Club to Hike To Coburg Hills

Members of the outing club will hike up to the top of the Coburg hill Sunday. Those wishing to go should be in front of Gerlinger at 9 a.m. with their lunch, Dot Dixon, president of the group, announced. The hikers will hike out to the foot of the hills and then hike to the top, returning home around 4 p.m.

Captain Robert M. Crawford of the army air corps, composer of the official song of the United States army air corps, attended Case School of Applied Science and Princeton university.

War Emergency Council To Continue Program

Continuance of the University war emergency council was voted at a meeting of the group Tuesday. Meetings will be held at the call of Dr. Quirinus Breen, chairman, who is also to appoint an executive council consisting of three members in addition to himself and A. L. Holman, secretary.

Problems of the campus, particularly those dealing with the returned soldiers, were discussed at length. Alert to help service men and returned service men who come to the campus, the council plans to build a long-range program of postwar planning. Mr. Holman, who is YMCA secretary, was instructed to obtain religious and preference cards for the new pre-medical and dental army students on the campus. Karl W. Onthank, dean of personnel, outlined plans discussed in a meeting of war emergency councils of the northwest in Portland recently.

The University war emergency council is composed of representatives of all religious agencies, both on and off the campus, which work with students. Also represented are the dean of personnel, dean of men, dean of women, and the University. The council was organized to avoid duplication of activities, and to help the agencies to be more effective in their rehabilitation work.

The marine pilot was the first flier to land a plane on a new American airfield on the Treasury islands last month when he took in a load of supplies and mail before the field was completed.

Hewitt was commissioned a second lieutenant in June, 1942. He was raised to first lieutenant in January, 1943 and to a captaincy in April, 1943.

While on the campus he was a member of Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

Courses in war economics, economic geography, transportation, income tax procedure, general accounting and international economic policies are but a few of the studies to be presented this fall by the University of Kentucky college of commerce which have a direct bearing on the war effort.
