"Citizenship Recognition Day," a program to honor new voters and recently naturalized citizens, will be presented Sunday, April 16, at the Roosevelt junior high school on 18th and Agate street at 3 o'clock.

Sponsoring the program is the Eugene branch of the American association of of university women. Mrs. Karl Peterson is chairman of the committee arranging the assembly.

According to Mrs. V. N. Also 133 new citizens have been naturalized since that time.

"We feel that it is especially appropriate for the association of university women to sponsor this program since the majority of the new voters will be women," Mrs. Freeman said. The purpose of the meeting is not only to honor the new voters and new citizens but also to stimulate voting interest and registration blanks may be obtained at the meeting by those who have not already registered for voting.

Running smoothly according to schedule, last night's class of '45 assembly nominated Marty Beard and Arliss Boone, sponsored by the Greek block, and Alice Harter and Edith Newton backed by the ISA for the two top class offices.

Marian Gage, junior class president, called the meeting to order and Nancy Ames, president of the ASUO, read the constitutional articles concerning the nominations and called for the candidates.

Since only four positions, president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer, are open each candidate will get an office; the voting will be merely to decide who is to be the prexy of next year's senior class. That is, unless someone takes advantage of the rule that a nomination may be made in the form of a petition signed by 25 members of the class and submitted to the ASUO president by 5 p.m. today. This is a rule that applies only to this class.

Surprise note of the assembly was Paul Lum's speech appealing for class unity and his motion that a comprehensive history of the class be written.

Lum, junior in liberal arts, stated his disapproval of the neglect of men on the campus and the breaking of formerly strictly upheld Oregon traditions. Before the

Bidu Sayao's Time Taken By Music Career

Operas, recitals, and concerts consume the time of Bidu Sayao, Brazilian coloratura soprano who will sing at McArthur court Wednesday, April 19, as a featured artist on the series sponsored by the educational activities board.

She knows 15 French and Italian operas, but she has not sung all of them yet at the Met. She has sung in every major opera house in Italy, Paris, Buenos Aires, and Lisbon.

Her singing career began when she was 14 and first started to take music seriously. With the help of a sympathetic uncle she studied secretly until she was so far on her way that her parents did not try to stop her.

In her native Brazil she helped to break down prejudice against women with careers.

She has commented on herself that she was a "determined little girl" with "only a little voice, a small and light voice."

She is a mixture of "pure Brazilian," Swiss, and French. Her family is one of those associated with the history of Brazil and President Getulio Vargas is an old friend of the family.

Her home is a great white marble house that fronts on Botafoga bay of Rio de Janeiro across from Sugar Loaf mountain. The family also has a banana plantation near the city. It was at the plantation that she learned her favorite sport, ASUO Assembly Set for 4 p.m.

Tapping of new Kwamas and the introduction of finalists for the Junior Weekend court, will add a note of newness to the ASUO nomination assembly to be held in McArthur court at 4 p.m. today.

On the political side there will be nothing new, only the formal announcement of the Greek and Independence candidates for ASUO president, first vice-president, second vice-president, and class representatives on the executive council. Just to add a bit of variety, maybe someone making a nomination speech will forget his candidate's name. That has happened.

Kwama President Phyllis Evans asked that all freshman women attend the assembly since the names of new members will not be announced until that time.

The class of '46 will meet tonight at 7:30 in 207 Chapman to nominate their new officers but the assembly time and place for the class of '47 has not yet been announced.
