Nancy Ames

(Continued from page one) Library. Led by Adele Riggs, number two ASUO candidate, and Marguerite Wittwer, as song leader, the group serenaded the soldiers in study hall with campaign songs and slogans.

To the tune of "Annie Doesn't Live Here Any More" with suitable words of Greek variety Sue Welch led the grand climax of the Greek rally yesterday evening in front of Johnson hall.

Climaxing a winding snowball rally of some ten or twelve cars, trucks, banners, and plaid-shirted coeds and pajama-shirted college men, the Greeks packed onto the steps of Johnson hall and overflowed onto the lawn.

Amid cheers, songs, and jive supplied by a rhythm band with Cliff Mallicoat on the bass viol and Jack Howels at the ivories, a trio of harmonizing coeds gave out on several Greek songs, and the candidates were introduced to the some 300 rallyites by Charlene Pelly.

Master of Ceremonies Ralph Rafgan called the candidates up on the platform preceding Miss Ames' speech. Prizes were given to the best sign, a red umbrella with white letters to the verbal effect of "Let's keep out the Reign" and to the loudest pajamas.

Literally falling apart in the excitement an effigy of the ISA presidential candidate Audrey Holiday was presented to the Greek throng. Just before the ASUO presidential nominee Phyl Horstman was called to the platform a disturbance was created by two pro-Independent supporters from the ranks of Eugene grade schools who ran away with several "Taylor" and "Horstman" signs chased by irate Greeks.

'No Epidemics,' Say Infirmary Directors

Contrary to all reports that might be flying around the campus unconfirmed, there is not an epidemic of chicken pox. The ailments for April 17 seem to be only minor ones and possibly cases of too much weekend. Those confined are, Jean Taylor, Terry Hubbard, Betty Dundas, and Mary Winn. G. I. members are, Bart Dannenfels and Bob Pollard.

Library Contest

Judges for the contest have been chosen from each department on the campus. They are Ernest G. Moll, acting head of the English department and chairman of the committee; Dr. Leona E. Tyler, associate professor of psychology; H. M. Shafer, associate professor of education; Arnold Elston, associate professor of music; and A. R. Moore, resident professor of general physiology.

The winning libraries will be displayed at the Co-op store for a few days following the contest.

Pallett to Attend Parley to View Military Credits

E. M. Pallett, University registrar, left Saturday for Chicago to attend a meeting of the American Association of Collegiate Registrars. The main topic to be taken up during the four-day meeting will be the matter of academic credit for military service.

"The academic requirements committee of the University is anxious to follow a nationally established policy in regard to academic credit to be granted for various types of military experience," Mr. Pallett stated, "and it is hoped that in this meeting a policy will be established to assist us in handling this complex problem."

The problem concerns the future program for the men who have had army or navy training and return to college. Mr. Pallett expressed also the opinion that the University should be adjusted to this problem before the men begin to come back.

Speaking at the meeting for the army organization of courses and study regulations will be Lieutenant Colonel Thomas R. Palfrey, training division 6th service command. Lt. Commander Earl J. McGrath, education services secretary of the bureau of naval personnel, will speak on the same problem for the navy. Also two high officials of the armed forces institute will be there to discuss methods available to aid institutions in evaluating training and education in the armed forces; and Dr. Alexander G. Ruthven, president of the University of Michigan, will talk on the needed adjustments in University procedure.
