

Auditions For Choir To Open

Auditions for the University vesper choir will be held this week in the social room on the third floor of Gerlinger hall, according to Helen Luvaas, director. Hours will be 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday and 4 to 5:30 p.m. Friday. If these hours are not convenient for some students, they should contact Miss Luvaas and arrange for a special audition. Both old and new members must audition.

The University Vesper choir, which was just newly organized last fall, had such a successful experimental year that it was decided it would continue as a definite University organization, with the purpose of providing music for other campus activities throughout the year. In addition to their other appearances, they will present two concerts during the school year.

Any girl registered in the University is eligible to join the choir, providing she can meet the standards which have been set up. Membership will be limited to 30.

Written applications for membership will be received at any time by Helen Luvaas, and as applicants are approved they will be placed on the substitute list until an opening occurs. Membership in the choir is continuous so long as members attend the vesper services and choir rehearsals regularly, unless excused by the director. Regular rehearsals are on Tuesday evenings from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

Emerald Petitions Due Monday, October 2

Monday, October 2, is the deadline for petitions for editor of the Emerald to be turned in to the educational activities office in McArthur court. They must be submitted before 5 p.m. of that day. Along with the petition the applicant must have a certificate of eligibility from the registrar's office.

Frosh Forum Headed By ASUO President

Audrey Holliday, president of ASUO, will act as chairman of the campus freshman discussion group which is meeting for the first time this year at Westminster house, Thursday, at 4 p.m. The topics to be taken up at this meeting will be campus activities and orientation of any other questions concerning the University that the new students would care to discuss.

Mrs. Jim Bryant, who is advising the group, has said that the meeting will be out in time so that girls may attend the freshman tea at the YWCA, which is scheduled for the same afternoon.

This discussion group will be the beginning of a group which will talk over freshman problems all year. There will be speakers at every meeting.

Ore-nters Available

For those students who have not received a copy of Charles Politz' volume, "The Ore-nter," a limited supply is available at the educational activities office on the first floor of McArthur court.

Skerry Chosen Head Of Young Republicans

Harry Skerry last night was elected chairman of the Young Republicans club and Jean Taylor was named secretary, at a meeting in Gerlinger hall. Alpha Phi, Alpha Chi Omega, Delta Gamma, Kappa Kappa Gamma, Pi Beta Phi, and Gamma hall volunteered to help register voters for the coming presidential election.

Jobs Open On Annual

Tonight the third meeting for students who wish to enter into journalistic activities will be held—you guessed it—in 105 Journalism building at 7:30. This confab—to introduce students to the business side of the Oregana—follows in the footsteps of the meetings for prospective Emerald workers last night and for Oregana editorial writers Tuesday night.

The business staff is composed of people who work on ads, do office work, make page layouts, and make page collections. All students who are interested in this work should attend the meeting to sign up for a place on the staff, or at least to find out what it's all about, explained Marge Cowlin, business manager.

Simultaneously, Miss Cowlin announced that the Oregana will go on sale again this weekend, for the benefit of students who did not order one at registration. During this second drive all houses will be contacted. Approximately 85 per cent, or 1300, of the students registered have purchased the yearbook.

Last years Oregana editor was Helen Johnson. Her associate editors were Joan Dolph, senior in journalism and Adele Riggs, senior in business administration. The business manager was Edith Newton, senior in journalism.

There will be a meeting Friday for would-be reporters for The Emerald. Elizabeth Haugen, news editor, will be in charge.

'Coke' Party on Tap for Girls

Veterans Up Social Status

All veterans who are now students of the University, will meet Tuesday, October 3, at 5 p.m., in room 1, Johnson hall, to form an active social veterans' organization on the University campus.

The petition will be drawn up at this time to request University recognition of the organization from the student affairs committee. Virgil Earl, dean of men, is the group's adviser.

Veterans should contact Kenneth Geiger, acting chairman, phone 2267-R for further information regarding the meeting.

Four Positions Open On Red Cross Cabinet

Red Cross activities this year began with the announcement by Carol Wicke, chairman of the campus chapter, that four positions on the cabinet are open.

A sewing chairman, nurses' aides chairman, phone committee chairman, and an accident prevention chairman are needed. Any sophomore, junior, or senior girl may apply for the positions by writing a petition giving her qualifications and including a certificate of eligibility from the dean of women's office. The petitions are to be given to Carol Wicke at the Alpha Delta Pi house before Friday at 4 p.m.

War Stems Sale Of Co-op Books

"Due to the shortage of help and the difficulties of publishers in getting paper and packing materials, the Co-op is unable to supply all textbooks immediately, explained M. C. McClain, manager of the Co-op.

Orders are sent by telegram and night letter for texts ordered during the day. Students should ask at the Co-op for books they have placed on order. If published in San Francisco it takes five or six days for books to arrive, if published in the east about ten days.

The Oxford Anthology of English Poetry is out of print at present and will not be in for an indefinite period. A supply of English dictionaries, English Composition, and Shakespeare texts are available, however.

If a student drops a course after having bought his text the Co-op will buy it back at full price if there is no name written in the book.

Mr. McClain thanked students for their patience in waiting for their texts and requested them to further cooperate by not expecting to be notified of the arrival of books, as the Co-op is too short of help to do this.

Emerald Draws Eager Beavers

Enthusiastic would-be Emeraldites overflowed Room 105 Journalism building last night at the Emerald meeting for new students.

George Turnbull, acting dean of journalism and Emerald adviser, gave a short talk on Emerald spirit and the value of being a good reporter.

Before introducing Mr. Turnbull, Anne Craven, acting editor, welcomed the prospective shackrats, and Roseann Leckie, business manager, extolled the praise of the ad staff.

Cards stating name, phone number, and available working hours were filled in by the students, and the staff will be filled out from the material.

Flying Speech Squadrons Hi-light New 'Y' Policy

By VALERIE OVERLAND

There was the typical freshman coed with her pigtailed, her extraordinary harlequin glasses, her plaid skirt, and the everlasting bobby socks. It was the dining room of any house on the campus and the wide-eyed little girl in the Sloppy Joe was one of the slightly wacky members of the sensational flying speech squadrons which are touring the campus during the noon and dinner hours this week plugging today's Y party. How the squadron lands is something like this.

You are sitting along with some thirty odd girls getting that daily calory down in time for your 1 o'clock when the above-mentioned freshman bursts in with a graver, more sophisticated edition of a coed in tow. The skit that follows always plays up some big event that the YW is presenting in the near future. For the flying speech squadrons are part of the peppier and more adventurous YW policy being inaugurated by its president, Joan Dolph. Every noon, the stu-

YW to Welcome All Newcomers

The YWCA will open its doors this afternoon at 4 to all women students for a coke party, first all-campus function of the Y this year. New students are especially invited.

Free cokes and entertainment under the direction of Martha Thorsland will be provided. All attending will receive a booklet entitled "How to be Red-Hot Good" written by Joan Dolph, YWCA president. Advice useful to new women is contained in the mimeographed pamphlet.

Purposes of the party are to acquaint new women with the YWCA program on the campus and to interest them in the coming membership drive of the organization.

City Churches Plan UO Parties

To acquaint University students with the church of their choice in Eugene, local churches have each arranged to give a special program Friday night, September 29.

The Wesley Foundation house, 1258 Kincaid street, has prepared an informal party of games and dancing starting at 8 p.m. with the theme "Prairie Schooner Scoot," to be carried out in refreshments, decorations, and entertainment.

The "Louisiana Garden," setting for the Baptist church's program will have a southern flavor in which formal clothes are to be worn and refreshments will be served. This reception-party will also begin at 8 p.m.

There will be a reception line on the Congregational church patio from 7:30 to 10 p.m. and University students are invited to spend the evening or as long as they can. An informal background of organ music will be rendered by Helen Luvaas. Refreshments are also planned.

Chancellor and Mrs. Hunter will lead the reception line, while the following University students will also greet visitors: Betty Bennett, Virginia Beattie, Norma Aalvik, Ruth Van Buskirk, Ann Wright, Joyce Clark, Elizabeth DeCou, Barbara Erb, and Joyce Whittle. Mrs. E. E. DeCou is chairman of the event.

Theater Guild Sets Meeting For Tonight

Drama enthusiasts will gather tonight at 8 p.m. in Guild hall, Johnson hall, for the first fall meeting of the University Theater guild.

Business at hand includes reading of the play to be produced this fall, election of officers, and a preview of the year's program.

As there are no drama requirements for membership in the University Theater guild, all students interested in acting, producing and managing, stage crew, costumes, singing, dancing, and other forms of entertainment are invited to attend the meeting. Horace Robinson, assistant professor of speech and dramatic arts, is adviser for the group.
