

House Libe Heads Meet

Nancy Boles was reelected president of the House Librarians' association in their first meeting of the term held Tuesday in the browsing room of the library.

Elected to serve under Miss Boles were Nancy Landry, Phyllis Perkins, and Phyllis Donovan respectively.

The association was begun by the interfraternity council, which contributed $400 toward starting a traveling library to be distributed to the living organizations on the campus. Since then, many other individuals and units including Phi Theta Upsilon, Mortar Board, and the class of '44, have contributed to the fund.

Miss Bernice Rose, head of circulation and browsing room, is advisor to the club.

Male 'Yell King' Petitious Wanted

The two positions now open on the rally squad are for men only, according to Jean Taylor, second vice president of ASUO. Apart from this qualification, applicants may be from any class and should have had previous experience on either high school or college yell teams.

Football Loop Adds Teams

Arrangements were completed Tuesday afternoon for the opening of Oregon's streamline intramural football league with the adoption of rules and regulations for league play by the four men's organization representatives and two independent sponsors.

Schedules will be drawn up by the team captains Thursday morning at 11 o'clock in the physical education conference room and competition is expected to start the early part of next week.

Campbell club, Phi Gamma Delta, Kappa Sigma, and Sigma Nu held practice sessions Tuesday evening in preparation for the opening of the season, and two independent teams, Boyd's and Huff's, were added to the circuit. Competition is expected to be tough in the six-team league with approximately 300 men on the campus capable of filling the various positions.

Teams will field seven players, one of whom shall be game captain, instead of the usual six-man squad, and quarters of eight minutes will be played instead of the 15-minute quarters as in college play.

NCC Enrollment at All Time High

Northwest Christian college has an all-time high enrollment, according to Dr. Ross J. Griffith, new president of the college, when speaking to the Eugene Kiwanis club.

Maintenance of high academic standards and a building program to expand physical facilities are some of the projects now in planning.

Among the proposed plant expansion projects will be building of dormitories to be built in units. Reserves already are accumulating towards the building of these projects, the speaker said.

Plan for Dance Aired by Board

Possibility of a dance with music supplied by a big name orchestra was evidenced at the educational activities board meeting Tuesday afternoon when the board approved use of McArthur court for such a purpose if the responsibility rested on an organization downtown rather than upon the University.

No further action was taken on the matter.

The board also approved the printing of 1200 Pigger's Guides (student directories) to be distributed the first of November. The book this year is edited by Jean Lawrence and under the business management of Anna Mae Winship.

Appointment OK'd

The board approved the appointment of Frannie Maier as advertising manager of the Emerald, Ruthe Foreman as managing editor of the Oregana, and Betty Lu Siegman and Nancy Brownell as associate editors of the Oregana.

The concert series planned for the year was also approved.

The Oregana will be lithographed instead of offset, according to a decision of the board.
