

"Undiscovered Voice" Returns

After living just off New York's blazing Broadway for three months, singing to 20 million people every Sunday, rehearsing on the stage at Carnegie hall, and chatting with Thomas E. Dewey in his own spacious offices, Marie Rogndahl has returned to Oregon.

She has eaten ravioli, minestrone and anipasto in Joe Ramano's Italian restaurant, Russian borscht in the Russian Tea room, and on her 21st birthday, September 5, Marie dined at the subterranean French restaurant Voisin. That night the city had a blackout and Marie recounts the harrowing dash to find a cab and to reach home before the lights went out.

In summing up New York, the honey-haired coloratura said she like the city because of its many opportunities in radio, opera, the theater, and other arts. As for entertainment, she suggested, "I think you could live in New York for a year and go to a different place every night."

Three weeks before coming home to Oregon, Marie tramped with 40 other members of the "Hour of Charm" through Buffalo, N.Y., Fort Wayne, Indiana; Detroit, Michigan; Toronto and Montreal, Canada; playing one-night stands. In Detroit they did four and five shows a day, "which was a grind," and had only 40 minutes between shows to relax and get something to eat.

Enthusiastically greeting each of her friends who came into the library, the singer exclaimed to one of them, a student of nursing, that if it weren't for music, joining the nurses corps and going overseas would be the "first thing she would do."

In planning for the future, the bright-eyed singer intends to graduate from college by June, learning the scores to perhaps three operas under Professor Sigurd Nilssen, but she has nothing definitely planned and no contracts signed.

One disconcerting thing still occurs. Whenever Marie is asked for her autograph she gets embarrassed. Marie has not changed.

"Hello" Theme Chosen for First Dance

An all-campus dance, a delayed substitute for the traditional "Hello" dance, is planned for Saturday night, October 21 in Gerlinger hall from 9 until 12. Skull and Dagger and Kwama, sophomore men's and women's honoraries, are sponsors of the affair, and their respective presidents, Nick Weddle and Roseann Leckie, are in charge.

Music will be by George Carey's campus orchestra, and "Hello" will be the theme of decorations. Announced admission is $1.20, including tax.

During the dance, Skull and Dagger will tap five new members.

To help both men and women find dates for the dance, a date committee of Jean Watson, Barbara Pearson, Russ Monahan, and Bob Bissett has been appointed. Anyone desiring such service should call one of the committee members.

Other committees working on the affair are: decorations: Nadyne Neet, Beatrice King, Leon Williams, Nick Weddle, Dorothy Rasmussen, Marjorie Cowlin, Jocelyn Fancher, and Anne Scriptor; patrons and patronesses, Elsie Ball and Marjory Allingham; publicity, Jean Lawrence and Marilyn Sage; and tickets, Florence Hintzen, Patricia Metcalf, Martha Thorsland, Beverly Carroll, Marilyn Sage, Milton Sparks, Lou Gellos, and Margery Skordahl.

Bunion Race Swings Into Second Half

While floodlights played across the gridiron of the high school football game and Erskine Hawkins swung out at the armory, boy met girl in the 11 houses which sponsored the Bunion Derby last night.

At several of the houses the ration was three men to each woman, and from the coed viewpoint the Derby was a success.

The continuation of the Derby this afternoon from 12:30 to 4, at the remaining houses will be equally successful if the men follow the schedule planned by Dennis Johnson and Betty Butler, co-chairmen.

The houses open today are: Kappa Alpha Theta, Alpha Gamma Delta, Kappa Kappa Gamma, Alpha Chi Omega, Pi Beta Phi, Delta Delta Delta, University house, Hendricks hall, and Susan Campbell hall.

The men's groups will begin at the specified houses as follows: Sigma Nu at Kappa Alpha Theta; Kappa Sigma at Alpha Gamma Delta; Phi Gamma Beta at Kappa Kappa Gamma; BINFSAOMUO at Alpha Chi Omega; Campbell co-op at Pi Beta Phi; and unaffiliated men at Delta Delta Delta.

The men will stay 15 minutes at each house. Then they will follow the schedule in the order named (see paragraph four) until each house has been visited once.

Talent Parade Features Men At Frosh Party

A wholly masculine talent parade, featuring Bob Moran, talented carrot-topped freshman, as singing master of ceremonies, will entertain frosh women tonight at 7 in Gerlinger at the first party of the year exclusively for freshman girls.

Included in the host of talent will be Evans Cantrell, Oregon's own swoon crooner, Cliff Mallico, and Jack Howell, boogie-woogie pianists, and Bob Smith, who will lead a group of fraternity men in the singing of Oregon and fraternity songs. Special requests for fraternity songs will be granted.

The party will be informal. Guests will sit on the floor and are requested to enter the gym via the sun porch door. To accommodate those women who have dates later that night the party will last only an hour.

Kwama, sophomore women's honorary which is sponsoring the affair, is considering the possibility of supporting a series of future programs and forums designed to aid freshman girls. The party tonight will be the first in that series.

Four Houses Hold Mixers

Wednesday night was by no means dead for several of the women's living organizations. "We didn't know there were so many men on the campus," one coed said.

Three sororities—Kappa Alpha Theta, Delta Delta Delta, and Delta Gamma—opened their doors for dancing to campus men, fellows from houses, those living out, and pre-meds. The Tri Deltas entertained from 7 to 8; the others danced from 9 to 10:30.

Smooth cooperation was shown between Campbell club, men's co-op. (Please turn to page four)

Vacancy Occurs In Co-op Board

Appointment of someone to take the place of Pauline Gordon, who did not return this year, on the Co-op governing board was discussed at a meeting of the board Wednesday afternoon. No definite appointment has been made.

Another subject of interest was the question of where the Co-op should be situated when the Student Union building is completed. Two possibilities are including it in the Student Union building and leaving it where it is.

The cash rebate of last year, the low stock of supply, difficulties in getting stock, and the fact that mailing service is again open at the Co-op were also discussed. Mr. McClain mentioned that he has only one full-time worker at present, and would like to have two or more boys work for him full time. Interested persons may see him in the Co-op during the day.

Ballot Time Lament

Ohioan Advocates National Housekeeping Fall Program

Slamming bureaucracy as an un-American term, Gov. John W. Bricker, Republican vice-presidential candidate, told listeners at McArthur court Thursday: "We need a governmental reorganization at Washington. It will have to be done in a Republican administration. Turn Dewey loose on that job next November."

Answered by applause from the audience which crowded the floor of the court, Bricker continued. "The Republican party is the liberal party in this country. The New Deal is reactionary."

A lot of shady deals in Washington now need to be cleaned up, and Dewey can do it, asserted the tall Ohioan.

"Bureaucrat is not an appealing name to American. It is related to autocracy in our minds. It connotes untied power of government. Many well-meaning persons in the government employ have become involved in the bureaucratic system, and very often that system compels them to do things on the odd side," Bricker said, and related several instances illustrating misuse of federal power invested in some of the "pestiferous" bureaus.

"Not only are the three million and more bureaucrats stuffed into corners and hallways to the point of suffocation, but the bureaus themselves are piled one on the other until they have spread into cities all over the country, the candidate emphasized.

The Vesper choir services are presented once a month throughout the school year. At each service, a short meditation will be given by a religious authority.

Raoul Jobin, Met Tenor, To Give Series Concert

Campus music lovers are due for a treat when Raoul Jobin, famous tenor of the Metropolitan Opera company, makes his appearance as the first star of the present series October 26.

Mr. Jobin was born in Quebec, Canada. He made his first operatic debut in France, where he appeared for the Paris Opera company as Tybalt in the opera "Romeo and Juliet."

Immediately after, he left on a fifteen-month opera tour of Europe, during which he made 111 appearances. From 1934 until the outbreak of the present war, he was leading tenor of the Grand Opera Comique of Paris, in addition to continuing his tours.

His debut in the western hemisphere was made at the Teatro Municipal in Die de Janiero. Later he came to the United States and appeared for the Metropolitan Opera company in 1940 opposite Grace Moore in the opera "Manon." His success was overwhelming and he has been one of the foremost tenors of the country ever since. He has played in all the large opera companies of the continent, as well as being a guest soloist with the principal symphonies.

Mr. Jobin has also been warmly received over the airlines, appearing on many outstanding programs. Among the more recent are the "Celanese Hour," and Sherwin and Williams "World of Song."

Students will be able to hear a preview of the great star on October 15 when he will appear on the Standard Hour. He is scheduled to sing several excerpts from the opera, "Faust."

The campus performance will be at McArthur court and will begin promptly at 8:15. Admission is limited to ASUO card holders and members of the Eugene Civic Music association.
