

By JIM TUCKER

In this corner . . . Jim Bartelt, new member of the basketball squad. He comes to the University from Ashland, Oregon, where he was center on the state champion Ashland team, and was selected on the all state basketball team made up from the participants in the state tournament. During his last year in high school, Jim made a good showing in the Southern Oregon conference, often scoring a total of 20 points in a game.

When asked by our reporter what he thought of the U. of O. team's chances for the coming season, he said that they looked better than last year because of a fast and tall team. Like most basketball players, he is modest and declares that his opportunities for making the squad are just average.

Jim is a tall, six foot one brunette. As far as the women are concerned, he prefers brunettes.

And in this corner . . .

Into the department of returning lettermen we step for our next player, Bob Hamilton. Bob was last year's conference leader in the scoring division and he says that this distinction depends on the conditions of the league (giving himself very little credit). "It's all just luck," he remarked. Bob is a junior and comes from Marshalltown, Iowa. This five foot, eleven inch, speedboy thinks the outlook for the team is good, very good.

"High school ball in Iowa," he remarked, "is very good for high school competition."

Romance Professor Is Native of Spain

Senor Manuel Leon Lopez, recently appointed to the Romance language department, is a native Spaniard born in Granada, Spain.

Before coming to the United States, Senor Lopez went to elementary school in Santiago, Chile, but his college education was acquired at Ohio Wesleyan university, where he earned his degree as bachelor of arts, and at the University of Illinois where he earned his master's degree. He has also studied at the University of Chicago and Columbia university.

Although satisfied on the whole with Oregon, Senor Lopez told his classes that he had been told there was a great deal of rain in Oregon. "I've been here six days," he said "and it hasn't rained yet!"

Senor Lopez comes to the University from the University of Arizona. Prior to his position there, Senor Lopez served on the staffs at the University of Illinois, Duke university, Ohio Wesleyan university, and Florida State College for Women.

"How can American operating companies meet the competition with other countries that operate under lower costs than we do?" was one topic of discussion, according to Mr. Lomax.

The rights of steamship companies to operate airlines, and foreign trade zones were also considered.

"At present," he said, "New York is the only state in which goods are allowed to be imported; reprocessed or repackaged, and ex-or tariffs. If that practice is exported without payment of duties tended, we will benefit by an increased amount of trade."

Mr. Lomax left for New York October 13.

Coop Receives Holiday Books

The light-weight books by contemporary authors, which arrived this week at the Co-op, are ideal gifts for servicemen still in the United States, according to Mrs. Blake O'Hagen, in charge of the rental library.

The books had been ordered for gifts for overseas servicemen but, because of a delay in transportation, were not received in time for Christmas mailing.

Mrs. O'Hagen urged students to survey the supply early, and to place orders for other books.

Lomax Back From Naval Conference

Mr. A. L. Lomax, professor of business administration and national vice-president of the Students' Port of the Propeller club, returned Thursday from New York City, where he had been attending an American merchant navy conference on postwar problems.

"How can American operating companies meet the competition with other countries that operate under lower costs than we do?" was one topic of discussion, according to Mr. Lomax.

The rights of steamship companies to operate airlines, and foreign trade zones were also considered.

"At present," he said, "New York is the only state in which goods are allowed to be imported; reprocessed or repackaged, and ex-or tariffs. If that practice is exported without payment of duties tended, we will benefit by an increased amount of trade."

Mu Phi's Will Give Concert

Mrs. Marion F. McClain, research associate in history, will give the concert in the recorded series at the library browsing room Sunday at 4 p.m. This program is one of the series of recorded events held weekly under the sponsorship of the Mu Phi Epsilon patronesses association.

The program for Sunday is featuring German composers. The theme of this year's series is music representing different countries. The schedule for this week's concert is as follows: "Trio No. 7 in B flat major (Archduke)" "Sonata Appassionata," Op. 57, and "In Questa Tomba Oscura," all of Beethoven. "Am Meer," Schubert, and "Wanderlied," Schumann.

Hostesses this Sunday will be Mrs. Wayne L. Morse from the Mu Phi Epsilon patronesses; Miss Alfhild Wahl, Mu Phi Epsilon active chapter; Mrs. William Chilcote, University library staff; Miss Phyllis Perkins, secretary of house librarians.

While we are still mauling the subject of politics we might mention that we noticed, in attendance at the meeting of the Young Democrats last Friday night, a large canine, believed to be a police dog. He didn't say whether he was a Republican spy or a Democrat. When the nominees for secretary left the room for the vote, however, the dog left with them. The police dog got no votes.

75 World War II Veterans Now Enrolled at University

Of the 75 veterans on the University of Oregon campus, 50 are provided with books, equipment, and supplies, plus an allotment, all under the GI Bill of Rights, while the other 25 are here under the rehabilitation act, another government-sponsored measure.

Oregon veterans total 64, five from Washington, two from California and Idaho, and one each from Missouri and Colorado.

The various courses in which they are enrolled include liberal arts with 22. Seventeen are taking business administration, 11 architecture and allied arts, nine law, three each in music, journalism, and physical education, and one in education.

As for the branch of service these veterans are from, the army is best represented, with a total of 39 ex-members. The army air corps is next with 15, the navy 12, marines 4, coast guard 1, and naval air corps 1.

For those girls who can't make up their minds between the army and navy, there is even one student who has been in both services.
