

Groups Slate Talk Topic

Students interested in discussion of current problems have a choice of several topics this weekend:

Dr. L. O. Wright, professor of Romance languages, will tell members of the Town and Campus group of the First Christian church, "What Mexicans Think of Us," Sunday at 6 p.m. at the YMCA.

Sunday morning from 9:45 to 10:45, and Sunday evening from 6:30 to 7:30, Westminster house opens its doors for a panel on "The Meaning of Proper Discussion," and a continuation of the analysis of Dr. Cushman's talk on "The Basis for Moral Values."

Monday evening from 9:30 to 10:15 will be a "fireside sing." Mr. Donald Dodd, minister of the Fairmount Presbyterian church, will lead the singing.

Lost Items Found At Art Building

The architecture and allied arts building located on University street and 12th avenue is running a close second to the heating plant building as a lost and found center. These articles were found in or around the library and may be claimed upon proper identification in the architecture and allied arts building:

Two billfolds, two lipsticks, one fountain pen, a pocket comb, one ring and a coin purse.

Besides the bandanas, combs, and lipsticks turned in to the heating plant building, literary material has also been found. The names appearing on different books and pads are as follows:

Wynn MacLay, Eleanor Spiekerman, Barbara Erwin, Joan Deaville, Beverly Bennet, Bob Davis, Jean Bray.

Army Cites

(Continued from page one)
General B. K. Yount, commanding general, AAF training command, Fort Worth, Texas.

A number of the trainees are now taking radar training in Canada, while others are on active duty or taking gunnery and weather observing.

Sportswriter Dubs SC 'Trojans' for Spirit Shown In 1912 Football Game

When the fighting eleven of 1912 rushed out on the field to represent Southern California, there were no cheers for the Trojans. Not a single onlooker burst into the Trojan Fight song and the Trojan Big "T" yell couldn't be heard from the stands.

The reason—the Trojans weren't Trojans. They were called Methodists because of the affiliation of the university at that time with the Methodist conference.

The man to give the SC student body and athletic teams their famous name was Owen R. Bird, former sports editor of the Los Angeles Times.

In one of his sports stories he wrote, "Owing to the terrific handicaps under which the athletes, coaches, managers of the university were laboring at this time, and, at the same time, appreciating their splendid fighting spirit and the ability of the teams to hold their own against the overwhelming odds of the larger and better equipped rivals with their colors gloriously nailed to the mast, it seems to me that the name 'Trojan' most fitted the players."

When Bird dubbed the 1912 varsity men Trojans, the name stuck, and for 32 years Southern California men and women have carried on the spirit of Troy he described.

Art League Mixer Held

The witches whirled, the spooks howled, and everyone had a swell time at the Allied Art league mixer last night, held in the little art gallery at the art school.

Chuck Politz started the evening's games off with an apple-eating contest, which won Ada Anderson a jug of cider. Another jug was presented to Patricia Bowers, who made a good guess to the number of beans there were in a jar. Between dancing and consolation with the fortune teller, Mrs. Tellalla, many attempts were made to pin a hankie on the nose of "the little fat man" and Judy Hendrickson came close to winning a dollar bill.

Walls so recently adorned with masterpieces of painting were redecorated for the evening with surrealistic works done in black and orange, and dry leaves made the floor more danceable.

Barrels of jugaboo cider and Joe's gutter glow ale, along with endless piles of donuts at the food bar rounded out the evening, which, according to president Gordon Bennett accomplished its purpose in showing the freshmen what a good time the Allied Art students have.

'Spook' Dance

(Continued from page one)
cessions sponsored by individual houses.

Men may obtain tickets at their living organizations or at the door for this second all-campus dance of the year. Admission is $1.20 a couple.

'Skin of Our Teeth'

(Continued from page one)
vention of mammals, Mrs. Antrobus clutches her purse and the social mores in a frantic and constant crusade to "save the family." Dorothy Weygandt, poised and mature in the Mona Lisa tradition, gives a convincing picture of the woman through the ages who has

Portland Nurse Gives Figures

Miss Henrietta Doltz, director of nursing education at the University's nursing school at Portland, announced Wednesday that 65 pre-nursing students were enrolled this term. Miss Doltz, who came to Eugene to interview students, announced that a growing interest in this course is evident.

She also revealed that 30 students have been accepted by the medical school for the October 2 class, 29 of whom will be affiliated with the cadet nurse corps. These women will train at the medical school for 11 months, after which they will graduate with a bachelor of science degree. The members of this class will graduate from either the University or Oregon State college, depending on where they matriculate for their pre-nursing training.

Wilma Hooker, Juanita Johnson, Marene Kjelmlyr, and Gladys Lund, all of Eugene, have been accepted into the degree curriculum classes. Other members of the class are Dorothy Elston, Leaburg; Verda Jackson, Springfield; Helen Schow, Oakland; Virginia Schulz, Aurora; Alma Starvich, Marshfield; and Dorothy Wilson, Heppner.

kept on having children and cooking bark and grass to keep them alive through floods and wars.

The Children

Shubert Fendrick, in the role of Henry Antrobus alias Cain, the able son of Adam, does a very commendable piece of work in presenting a convincing portrayal of a difficult character. Although a newcomer to the stage, Shubert displayed a genuine feeling for his part.

Henry's sister Gladys is a brat of the gangly adolescent variety who never quite seems to grow up. Marilyn Rowling, who played Gladys, remained correctly juvenile and bothersome throughout the whole play . . . and act which is probably difficult to sustain . . . and she did well.

The supporting cast is impressive. Director Horace Robinson's work deserves the biggest orchids.

OREGON DAILY EMERALD

Night Staff:

Louise Robson, night editor
Louise Robsin, night editor
YeVonne Gindt
Barbara Borrevik

Copy Desk Staff:

Norris Yates, copy editor
Jean Kuck
Jean Ashworth
Jean Simmonds
Betty Stewart

Advertising Staff:

Patsy Maloney, day manager
Claire Sering
Betty Hanks
Pat Powell
Bebbe Fulmer
Katharine Snyder
Bette Hoxie
Jo Ann Luke
Maryanne Hansen

Office Staff:

Jean Beaver
Ann Stevenson
Virginia Peterson
Helen Hicks

ASUO Sets Up

(Continued from page one)
men, were selected as assistant managers.

The council unanimously passed a resolution underwriting an all-student production for a reasonable amount. Gene Conklin, senior representative to the council, and Jean Taylor, second vice president of the ASUO, were asked to appoint committees to prepare for the show, which probably will be given during winter term.

War Board

Carol Wicke, chairman of the campus war board, told the council that the Oregon-Oregon State war bond drive will probably be held from November 20 to November 30. The contest will be on a per capita basis. House competition, with queen candidates similar to last year's "Bonds Away Queen" contest, will be run simultaneously. An extra appropriation was allotted to the war board for the drive.

Students at the University of Oregon have more opportunity to study than students of any other University. What else can you do when it rains?

Smith Discusses Pacific Problems

Dr. Warren D. Smith, head of the geology and geography department, spoke last night at 8 p.m. in Condon hall on the "Area of the Pacific."

The various types of islands, vegetation, people, and the political and economic situations after the war were described by Dr. Smith. He also discussed the part the United States will play in the Pacific after the war.

Slides were shown of maps of the structure of the shores of the Pacific ocean, pictures of natives, coral reefs, map of New Guinea and continental islands, buildings and villages, caves, Japanese islands, and maps on the degree of earthquakes.

Dr. Smith was introduced by Miss Ruth Hopson, outgoing president of the Natural History society. Preceding the lecture, Dr. Smith was elected to the office of president of this society.

UO Alumna in WAVES, Pays Visit to Campus

A recent visitor on the campus was Seaman (3rd class) Frances Sale Courteau, of the Waves. Miss Courteau received her degree from the University in 1935. While on the campus she was active in the Allied Art league and Wesley house.

Before entering the Waves, Miss Courteau was employed by Southern Pacific in San Francisco. She went on active duty in January, 1944, and received her boot camp training at Hunter college, New York. Wave Courteau received additional training at the University of Indiana, and is now stationed at the Puget Sound navy yard at Bremerton, Washington.

HEILIG

"Wagon Trails West"

with Wild Bill Elliott
— also —

"South Seas"

with Janet Martin

REX

"Andy Hardy's Blonde Trouble"

with Mickey Rooney
— plus —

"Song of Nevada"

with Roy Rogers

MAYFLOWER

"The Impatient Years"

with

JEAN ARTHUR
LEE BOWMAN

McDONALD

Jane Wyman in "Crime by Night"

— plus —

"Janie"

with Edward Arnold

ATTENTION STUDENTS!

THE UNIVERSITY THEATER is presenting •

'The Skin of Our Teeth'

by

THORTON WILDER

directed by

HORACE W. ROBINSON

TONIGHT AT 8:00 P.M.

also

October 31 and November 1

at

JOHNSON HALL
GUILD THEATER

Admission 60c (inc. tax)