

One P.M. Per Pends Consent

Highlights of yesterday's ASUO assembly at McArthur court included Marie Rogndahl, singing "Shadow Song," and the introduction of a new yell by the rally squad. Miss Rogndahl was called back for two encores.

Opening the assembly, Audrey Holliday, ASUO president, asked students to "get in and pitch" for the variety show which will be student written and directed.

She announced that an exchange assembly will be held at Oregon State college November 29, and OSC will come here either November 30 or December 7. Any group willing to sponsor an ASUO assembly Thanksgiving evening was asked to submit a petition.

Miss Holliday reported that only the student affairs committee is left to pass on 1 o'clock permission, the student council and the heads of houses having already given their approval.

With a record of more bonds sold last year than any other university or college in the country, Ed Allen, chairman of the campus 6th war loan drive, outlined plans to keep that record this year. In addition to the campus contest, students will present a show at the Victory center in Portland. All bonds sold at that show will be credited to the University. The drive will last from November 20 to 29.

The Kappa Alpha Theta quartet sang "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi," and the Chi Psi song. Barbara Pearson, sophomore class president, announced that the sophomore "Whiskerino" will be November 11, with a prize for outstanding beards.

Next Thursday's assembly will publicize the World Student Service fund, Marguerite Wittwer, WSSF chairman, announced.

Father Tobin Says Man Must Meet God

"The kingdom of heaven exists, not only in the afterworld, but now and all around us," affirmed the Rt. Rev. T. J. Tobin, vicar general of the Portland archdiocese, at the invitational luncheon Thursday.

Speaking on "Christ's concepts of the kingdom of God," Father Tobin first stated his assumptions: That there is a God, that there is a hereafter, that Christ was divine, that everyone can find the truth.

He went on to point out the close relationship between mention of the Kingdom in the New Testament and in the Old Testament. He retold the story of Christ's sentence to death, repeating His words, "I am King, but not in this world."

In his address at dessert in Alumni hall, Father Tobin said that the following four points must be accepted by the public before peace can be realized:

The universality of man, good faith in the keeping of private and national pacts, a higher natural law above individual laws, the fundamental equality in certain natural rights — life, liberty, the pursuit of happiness.

"Our relationship to our fellow men must be corporate. As Christians we are members of the mystic.

Victory Show Aspirants Asked to Audition Today

Another audition for talent to participate in the UO war bond show in Portland this month is scheduled for 4 today in Gerlinger hall. Anyone who can play an accordian, a harmonica, or any other musical instrument, is especially urged to attend.

The names of those chosen for the Victory show in Portland will be announced in the Emerald Tuesday, November 7. Their expenses for the trip will be paid.

AWS to Direct Trade Dinners

Beginning next Wednesday night, women's houses will hold weekly exchange dinners with each other under the sponsorship of the AWS, according to Mary Riley, president of the women's association. Lois McConkey, sophomore in liberal arts, has been chosen to schedule the dinners among houses.

Women's houses who have arranged to have desserts with men's houses will be left out of the schedule. Such desserts are not included in the AWS plan, and must be initiated by the houses.

Partner houses for the exchange dinners will be announced in the Emerald. Social chairman from each pair of houses should contact each other to make individual arrangements, Miss Riley said.

Since some houses have dinner at 5:30, and some at 6 p.m., the time must be agreed upon. The number of girls to exchange will also vary.

Entertainment at the dinners is up to the social chairman. The object is to have fun, according to Miss Riley.

Emerald Staff Makes Change

Flora Furrow, sophomore in journalism, has been named assistant managing editor, to replace Jean Lawrence, who resigned because of conflicting activities. She will take over the "putting the paper to bed" department of the Emerald Wednesday nights. Another addition to the staff is Mary Margaret Ellsworth, who will be Thursday night copy editor.

Perhaps the most remote from Emerald readers are the members of the night staff—those who work at the University press at night. They set headlines, take and read proofs, and end up with a good share of printer's ink on their fingers.

Maryan Howard is chief night editor this year, and her staff is as follows: Monday—Mary McClintic, night editor; Pam Williams, and Marcia Mills; Tuesday—Miss Howard, night editor, and Shirley Peters; Wednesday—Pat Maloney, night editor, Beverly Carroll, Jean Bauer, and Sue Welch; Thursday—Aileen Koch, night editor; Friday—Louise Robson, night editor, and Yevonne Gindt.

Romeo, Brummel, Sinatra-Might all Well Heed Him

Even Washington, D. C. gigolos read of, and admire, U. of O. coeds. The following letter, signed "Love to them all, _____," was received Thursday by the dean of women.

Madam: If you will agree to raffle off one of those attractive houris (nymphs) pictured in "Life" 10-30-44, I will pay for a dozen chances. I would be for any candidate that they are for I have been in and lived in some 60 countries, and I consider myself an authority on beautiful women, and I tell you I never have seen such rose petals as these. I shall always think of Oregon and your school as synonymous with women, yes, wonderful ones."

WSSF Campaign Helpers Named By Chairman

Betty Bushman and Jane Ellsworth were appointed publicity co-chairmen of the World Student Service fund drive Thursday by Marguerite Wittwer, general chairman.

Ervin Webb and Charlotte Wicke, sophomores in liberal arts, were named co-chairmen of the solicitors in the campaign which starts Monday, November 6.

Marion Fong, sophomore in liberal arts, will be solicitor chairman for the independent women's living organizations, according to an announcement made at a meeting Thursday afternoon.

Solicitors for the following campus living organizations were chosen: Alpha Chi Omega, Helen Maxim; Alpha Delta Pi, Charlotte Wicke; Alpha Gamma Delta, Eula Ledbury; Alpha Omicron Pi, Mary Louise Uhls; Alpha Phi, Beverly Carroll; Alpha Xi Delta, Marion Robson; Alpha Gamma Delta, Mary Louise DeGrace; Chi Omega, Virginia Beattie; Delta Delta Delta, Pat Percival; Delta Gamma, Joan Farmer; Gamma Phi Beta, Gloria Fick; Highland house, Doris Craig; Hilyard house, Audrey Mathews; Hendricks hall, Doris Spearow; Kappa Alpha Theta, Margaret Metcalf; Kappa Gamma, Nancy Baker; Orides, Charlotte Calder; Pi Beta Phi, Dorothy Davis; Rebec house, Eileen Dick; Sigma Kappa, Helen Huestis; Susan Campbell hall, Mary Jane Drake; Sigma Gamma Rho, Dorothy Schuler.

The seven new Mu Phi Epsilon pledges are: Johnette King, Luella Prescott, Lois Roeder, Mary Louise Stone, Marion Saltness, JoAnn Whitson, and Dorothy Schuler.

Oregon State Withdraws From Race

Unanimous support was voted to the World Student Service fund drive at the ASUO executive council meeting Thursday afternoon.

It was revealed at the meeting that Oregon State has decided not to compete with the University of Oregon in a per capita bond contest. However, the exchange assemblies previously planned for the contest will still be held during the sixth war loan drive.

Oregon has been invited to send delegates to a three-day Anglo-American conference at Eastern Washington college in Cheyenne. The conference will discuss student views on Anglo-American relations. No decision on sending delegates was reached by the council, and the matter was laid on the table so that the speech department might be contacted for possible delegates.

Lois Evans Earns Post

Lois Evans, junior in journalism, has been appointed associate editor of the Oregonian to replace Nancy Brownell, Editor Edith Newton announced November 1.

Two UO 'Foreigners' They Found Nobility Under a Peon's Garb

By NORRIS YATES

He didn't look like nobility, but he was the nearest thing to it that we had found in the New World.

"My blood is nearly pure Spanish—straight from the conquistadors, and from them on back through Heaven knows how many generations of high-born Spaniards," he said in excellent English, twisting his fat body in the driver's seat to look at us.

He was working as a chauffeur-guide, and his suit wasn't too neat or too clean. He was driving us through Mexico City and showing us the sights at the rate of 20 pesos (about four dollars) a day. "Us," were Paul Callahan, graduate assistant in social science, and myself, two bewildered foreigners who spent three weeks in Mexico last September.

"My grandfather was president of Mexico for a term before Diaz," said our new acquaintance. "Manuel Gonzalez, the 'One-Armed,' as they called him. He was the only man of his day with guts enough to stand up to Diaz."

"Wasn't that in the days of the great haciendas?" we asked. Gonzalez sighed.

Meeting to Plan Odeon Scheduled November 6

Plans for Odeon, student creative art show, will be made at a meeting, 4 p.m. Monday, November 6, room 107, Friendly hall. Faculty members and students who are interested in participating in the program this year are asked to attend.

W. A. Dahlberg, director of speech and arts, who worked with students on Odeon last year, said he anticipates a successful program this year.

Odeon was started with the intention of giving recognition to students with creative talents. A four-hour program and exhibit was sponsored by Odeon in February of this year.
