

Browsing Room Adds New Books

Twenty books from the private library of Ethel R. Sawyer, first librarian of the browsing room of the library, have been donated to the room's Ethel Sawyer collection by Miss Elizabeth Hansen of Portland.

Twenty-seven new books have been purchased for the collection this year through the fund set up by Miss Hansen in 1942 to keep the library up to date, announced Professor E. G. Moll of the English department, who with Horace G. Robinson and R. D. Horn administers the fund.

Most of the new books in the collection, which numbers over 600, are on poetry, drama and the dance, fields in which Miss Sawyer took an active interest.

Library Opens

Status of this department has wavered because of decreased enrollment the past two years, but it was decided to put it on a definite schedule this fall. Last year it was operated under army supervision.

To use the open-shelf reserve, an instructor must select a group of books and have them put on the shelves under his name. Students may select the books they need and check them out for the amount of time specified. The length of time allowed varies from overnight to three or four days and is designated by the instructor.

They Found

(Continued from page one) "We lost everything in the great revolution of 1911," he said. "Our hacienda, which was one of the largest in the country, was confiscated. My father was shot and my mother was blown up. A stick of dynamite was thrown into a car in which she was fleeing to Guadalajara."

"How did you live?" we asked. Faithful to his job, Gonzalez pointed out a famous church to us before resuming his narration. "I went to the United States," he finally said. "I nearly starved, but I worked hard and finally came back. I owe everything to the United States."

He drove us out to the site of his grandfather's hacienda. The buildings were still intact, but they now housed the National School of Agriculture. In the great square of the courtyard we could easily imagine the bustle of servants and peons as the Don and his lady returned from a horseback ride or from a drive into the city. Gonzalez seemed to be meditating. We

CAMPUS CALENDAR

Dorothy Rasmussen, chairman of Red Cross surgical dressings, announced yesterday that Red Cross work in the third floor of Gerlinger begins at 9 a.m. Saturday and girls are requested not to start work after 10:30 a.m.

Members of the Yeomen executive council will meet today in the council room of the Side at 4 p.m.

The ISA war board committee will meet with coop houses' bond salesmen at 4:15 p.m. today at the Side.

didn't feel like disturbing him. "The old days are gone for good," he said at length. "The revolution was a good thing, in spite of all the blood. The landowners were grinding the people mercilessly. They still are. There will be another big revolt and probably several."

It was getting late and we had to get back into the city. As this working man with the ancient lineage let us out, he said, "May I show you the volcano at Paricutin sometime, senors? I only charge 70 pesos for a three-day trip."

We suddenly felt a bit flustered. We mumbled some excuses and hurried away.

Dr. L. Richard Cipes, former instructor at the New York university college of dentistry, says there are several features of penicillin therapy which make it particularly applicable to dental use.

First classes at North Texas State Teachers college, Denton, were held on the second floor of a hardware store.

Yeomen Choose 1944-45 Officers

The elections are over and the newly-organized Yeomen find themselves officially functioning with a new roster of officers. Heading the list as president is Ted Kent, junior in business administration.

Other officers are: Jack Craig, junior in journalism, vice-president; Wally Adams, sophomore in journalism, secretary; Harry Eisminger, freshman in business administration, treasurer; Don Taylor, sophomore in physical education, sergeant-at-arms. Taylor appointed Bob "Irish" Rynnion, freshman in architecture, as his assistant.

Jim Tucker, freshman in journalism, was elected to the newly-created office of corresponding secretary and Paul Lum, senior in sociology, became parliamentarian, by a unanimous ballot.

Don Taylor was appointed temporary social chairman to work with Orides on their annual formal dance, November 18.

Jack Craig, Marion Huff and Evans Cantrell were appointed temporary publicity, athletic, and song chairmen, respectively.

Father Tobin Says

(Continued from page one) tical body of Christ; Christ is the head and we are the members. We are all interdependent. The way in which we treat our fellowmen directly affects the whole organism," he continued.

Touching upon the relation of Christianity to the world order, Father Tobin declared that the present unrestrained capitalism is definitely wrong, because it sets two classes against each other.

"We must restore the sense of belonging to a corporate whole, a loyalty to a higher order than merely to labor and employers' unions. Government should rarely have contact with the individual," he said.

Following his address a spirited discussion of the subjects introduced was launched. A similar session was held at the Alpha Delta Pi house Thursday afternoon, with 30 students participating.

NEW RADIO RELAY LINK FOR TELEPHONE AND TELEVISION

Tiny radio waves, shorter than any used before in commercial telephony, will link New York and Boston in a new experimental "jump-jump" relay system for the transmission of telephone speech and television programs.

These waves travel in straight lines like beams of light. Because of the earth's curvature, the distance will be spanned in a series of straight-line jumps between transmitting and receiving stations about 30 miles apart.

The Bell System plans post-war improvements in ways like this, to extend its nation-wide service by providing more Long Distance telephone facilities for peacetime needs.
