

Health Service Workers Move

Four health service nurses and three additional health service employees moved in the first of this week to the nurses' home in its new location at 1344 Thirteenth avenue, near Onyx street. The building was moved in August from Onyx street near the heating plant, to leave the site free for a new building for the plant.

Following the move, new wallpaper and fresh paint were applied to the buildings. New cupboards were also added, and a landscaped lawn is planned for sometime in the future.

Besides the nurses, the occupants are the infirmary dietician and two University students who work in the infirmary kitchen for their room and board.

Browsing Room Scene of Party

Shouts of laughter attended the House librarians Hallowe'en party in the browsing room Tuesday when the latest spring styles were shown to the students that had assembled there. As the meeting was open to the general public as well as the House librarians the eastern end of the room around the fireplace was well filled with students that gnawed on the apples that had been passed out for refreshment, while they listened to a reading of Poe's grisly mystery story, "The Black Cat," and other entertainment provided.

The group plans to hold more entertainments of this sort in the near future.

Alaskan Photographs Sent by Sgt. Huffaker

On display in the geography department are photographs sent by Staff Sergeant Carl L. Huffaker, Jr., son of Dr. Carl Huffaker, professor of education. Sgt. Huffaker is with a photo charting squadron of the army air force overseas.

The pictures, taken in Alaska, are of interest to geography and geology students since they show alpine glaciers, the main ice streams, lateral streams joining, and the formation of moranes. Other pictures are of Manaos, a city 1000 miles up the Amazon and a former rubber capital.

Carl's brother, Vic, who was on the campus last fall, is also overseas, with an engineer combat battalion. He entered the army in January.

WSSF Chairman

(Continued from page one) tinue until Saturday, November 11. The WSSF is exclusively organized to benefit students and professors in war-stricken areas, and is supported by students and faculty members in the United States, South America, Canada, the Near East, and neutral countries in Europe.

A refugee student in Switzerland wrote: "Under the tragic circumstances of war, world student relief stands for the defense of culture to which humanity pins its hopes for the future."

If a person waited in one place on the earth for a total eclipse of the sun to take place, he would stay there for 360 years, says Dr. C. H. Clemmshaw of the University of Southern California.

Course Expert Heard on Air

Miss Mozelle Hair, head of the correspondence study department for the state system of higher education, was interviewed Tuesday on the "University Journal," a 15-minute program presented by the senior editing class every Tuesday night at 8:15 p.m. on KOAC. Edith Newton and Betty Robertson were the interviewers.

It was mentioned that more than 3100 students carried on studies last year through this correspondence, 831 of which were in the service. Miss Hair read several letters written from the South Pacific telling about the difficulties encountered in trying to keep up lessons.

She also told about the courses which are offered, how to register in correspondence work, and many other details about the extension division.

National Officer Visits UO Phi Beta Chapter; Special Meeting Held

Visiting on the campus this week is Mrs. T. E. Carnahan of Grand Rapids, Mich., national secretary-treasurer of Phi Beta, professional music and drama honorary.

In Eugene to confer with members, alumnae, and advisers, Mrs. Carnahan was a guest at the chapter meeting Thursday evening, and a luncheon guest of the alumnae on Friday. Marilyn Miller is in charge of arrangements for activities, Miss Louise Fitch for the alumnae, and Mrs. Theodore Kratt for the advisory group.

Mu Phi Arrange Formal Banquet

November 13 is the birthday of Mu Phi Epsilon, national music honorary, and as a consequence the local chapter is planning a formal Founder's day banquet Monday evening, November 6 at 7 p.m. to honor its seven new pledges and celebrate the beginning of its forty-first year of organization.

According to Helen Luvaas, president of the University chapter, Betty Bennett and Jean Carkin are taking charge of the banquet arrangements and Mrs. Alice Macduff, assistant dean of women, is in charge of patrons.

Old Oregon Features

(Continued from page one) A new monthly feature was presented in the October issue about Oregon professors, giving information on the year spent in New York by Mrs. Ottilie Seybolt of the speech and drama department; of the new professors and instructors, Donald W. Allton of the music school, Dr. Wallace S. Baldinger of the art school, and Miss Francis Van Voorhis of the home economics department; and news of other faculty members. The story was written by Betty Robertson.

Other articles were about the Jennie Beatie Harris loan fund for "women students with high GPAs and low bank balances," the new Eugene Civic Music association and its plans for the current year, and the ASUO dollar donations.

Mrs. Alice H. Ernst, associate professor of English reviewed the book "The Dove Brings Peace," written by Richard Hagopian, a 1940 graduate. The book is a collection of 17 short stories about a group of Armenian emigrants to a town in Massachusetts.

The sports story principally concerns the coming reunion November 11 of the 1924 football team, an underdog team twenty years ago which surprised everyone by trouncing Washington State and Oregon State. Another item in the sports story was of Ray Segale, who asserts that his experience in football at the University made things easier for him when he was participating in the recapture of Guam.

Science, Religion Discussion Topic

"Thinkers" are invited to attend this week's Westminster house forum. The topic will be "The Relationship Between Science and Religion."

This will not be a debate or a lecture with speakers taking up the time; instead it will be discussion thrown open to the students.

Mr. Donald Dodd, graduate assistant in chemistry and minister of the Fairmount Presbyterian church, and Mr. Alfred Whiting, professor of anthropology, will lead the discussion. The time will be 6:30; tea will be served from 6 to 6:30. All students are welcome.
