

Art Show Now on Display Highly Praised by Reviewer

By MAYRE BROWNLEE

Even if you've never been to an exhibit in the Little Art gallery at the art school, you should plan to see the present one before December 5. It is a one man show of water colors by Miss Ruth E. Halvorson, art supervisor of Portland public schools, and is definitely worth your time.

Miss Halvorson is described by her friend, Miss Maude Kerns, of the University art school as a sensitive, vivacious personality who paints with rapidity and skill. She took her masters degree at Columbia university studying with Charles Martin, who has helped her to develop a vigorous way of using water colors.

Her work is extremely powerful, possessing a strong rhythm; she paints directly, with a French brush and a full palette of colors. Miss Halvorson achieves striking effects of dark against light, warm against cool colors. The nature forms are strong, and because of the way she conceives and composes quickly, one is impressed by the great movement in space, and her intense emotional feeling concerning nature.

The artist is represented by three groups: printings done in Mexico one summer, under Charles Martin; a set including two pure abstractions, and a few semi-abstractions, showing interesting use of volumes and planes in space, painted in Provincetown, Mass. The third group was painted mainly in Eastern Oregon and includes beautiful studies of trees, mountain peaks, and river gorges.

New Members of WAA Will Soon Be Initiated

Old members should go with new members to the WAA initiation Friday, November 24, at 7:30 p.m., according to Wanda Lue Payne and Dagmar Shanks, co-chairmen of the meeting. But each new member does not have to have a definite sponsor to attend.

Following the business meeting will be initiation of new members. A program, which will include a sports movie and refreshments are also in store for those attending.

Mary Elizabeth Davis and Pat Howe are in charge of the entertainment; and Barbara Stephens, refreshments.

This Kitten Almost Went to College

Patricia Highberger, Westminster college freshman, can now claim the title of "the girl who let the cat out of the bag."

Unpacking her suitcase after returning from a trip to her home in Youngwood, Pa., Miss Highberger was very much surprised to see her six-weeks-old Angora kitten, "Cinders," emerge from the bag which had been packed more than five hours before.—ACP

India Prints Now Shown

An exhibition of 15 colored wood-block prints of India by Charles William Bartlett is on display in the small gallery room of the art museum this week.

This display includes several views of the Taj Mahal, one of which, done in pastel colors, was given to Mrs. Gertrude Warner, director of the museum, by Mr. Bartlett.

Born in Bridgeport, England, the artist studied on the Continent. He went to India in 1913 and later to Java, China, and Japan. He died in 1940 in Honolulu.

Mr. Bartlett learned the technique of colored wood-block printing in Japan. He was one of the first western artists to adopt the Japanese methods in this art.

Merriam Plans Month Sojourn In California

Dr. J. C. Merriam, consultant on the values of science, plans to leave the campus Monday to spend a month or two in his office at the California Institute of Technology. There Dr. Merriam has files of papers and reports gathered during 45 years of research on the geology and history of the John Day country in Oregon and of other parts of the Pacific coast.

Several professors in the institute are his students, and he has worked with them for several years.

To his authorship of several hundred books Dr. Merriam hopes to add a book developing the idea of evolution which comes as a result of wars, and drawing on material gathered in the John Day country.

Among his best-known books are "The Living Past," which is used in several courses on the campus, and "Protection and Use of Primitive Nature."

As a young student Dr. Merriam became interested in the Pacific coast in 1899, when Professor Condon told him about his experiences in the John Day country. He was on the faculty of the University for 27 years, and in 1920 went to Washington, D.C., as president of Carnegie institute. Since leaving the east five years ago he has divided his time between Oregon and California.

YWCA Schedules Last Meeting for Tuesday

An important meeting of all YWCA Activators will be held Tuesday at 4 p.m. in the "Y" bungalow. This is the final meeting of the term.

The date of the Christmas party will be announced, the term's activities will be completed, and projects for winter term brought up to date. Charleen Davidson, chairman, emphasized all members should be present.

At the beginning of winter term, a vice-president and treasurer from the freshman class will be elected.

ISA Plans Turk Fete

What would you do with a turkey—a grey, gobbling, personality plus turkey—if it so happened that you became the owner of one?

The prosaic thing to do would be to serve the poor bird, roasted and stuffed, for Thanksgiving dinner. But looking at that idea from the turkey's angle, it's a darned bad deal. After all, who would want to spend Thanksgiving day being voraciously eaten by hungry college coeds?

Quote McGillicuddy, the turkey in question, "Humanity is slipping if it shows no more consideration for the fate of a poor downtrodden turkey."

If you feel you could plan a good future for McGillicuddy, or if you'd just like to meet him—come to the ISA mixer Wednesday night in Gerlinger, where he will make a personal appearance and, incidentally, receive a new owner.

Living organizations have been sent invitations to attend the dance with an eye to the possibility of gaining "Mac" for their own. Ten members from a house must be present at the dance to be eligible to enter competition for him.

Dances Cancelled

Because of the recent death of Dean Schwering, Orides and Hendricks hall have cancelled their dances which were scheduled for tonight.

House dances are still scheduled for tonight at Delta Gamma, Delta Delta-Delta, Highland house, Alpha Omicron Pi, and Gamma Phi Beta.

CAMPUS CALENDAR

The date of the YWCA Christmas party and plans for the occasion will be discussed at the meeting of "Y" Activators, Tuesday, at 4 p.m. in the bungalow.

There will be a meeting of all social chairmen at the Tri-Delt house, 7:30 p.m., Monday.

All Christmas seal representatives will meet at 4 p.m. Monday in the ball room at the College Side inn.

Once each year the freshmen of Louisiana State university stage a Freshman day at which a king and queen of their own choice reign over the festivities.

Campus Groups Plan Meetings

W. B. Merriam, professor of geology and geography, will lead the forum at Westminster house Sunday 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. on the topic, "The Influence of Russia on Religion."

Wesley House

The entire Wesley house group will participate in a worship service at the Methodist church Sunday evening at 7:30. The theme of the service will be "Thanks-Living", and will be a pageant with musical numbers and a choral speaking-choir.

Doris Craig is chairman of the worship committee, which is handling the program. Wilma Langfelt will direct the choir and the organist will be Dorothy Schuler.

National Official Visits Honorary

Mrs. H. V. Kline, national inspector of Mortar Board, senior women's service honorary, was on the campus Thursday visiting the local chapter.

Thursday at luncheon Mrs. Kline, who is the sister of Wayne L. Morse, senator-elect from Oregon, was entertained at the Anchorage by members of Mortar Board. During the afternoon she was on the campus conferring with Gerd Hansen, president of the University chapter of the honorary, and with other members of the group.

Mrs. Kline, whose home is in Washington, D.C., came to the campus from Portland.
