Dr. Noble, who will speak Thursday at 11 a. m. in McArthur court, is an authority on the history and culture of the Far East, and will speak on "Our Enemy, the Japanese." Channing Tobias, scheduled to speak the following Thursday will present a balanced picture of the racial problem.

Dr. Noble was born in Korea and received much of his education there; later he received his doctorate in California. He knows the Japanese language and was an instructor in both Japan and Korea. With the outbreak of the war, betterment of his race, Channing Tobias was born in 1822 at Augusta, Georgia, and attended the public schools there. He holds a bachelor of arts degree from Paine college, Augusta, Georgia; a bachelor of divinity degree from Drew Theological seminary, Madison, N. J.; and two honorary degrees, a doctor of divinity degree from Gammon Theological seminary, Atlanta, Ga., and a doctor of literature degree from Morehouse college, Atlanta university, Atlanta, Ga.

"To see and hear an outstanding member of his race is an opportunity students should not miss," Karl W. Onthank, head of the assembly committee, stated. are leaders whether they have rank or not.

"It gives me a sense of satisfaction to find that the AST's welcomed the opportunity to join combat assignments," Kilburn added. "I have had several Oregon graduates under my command, and they have proved themselves highly qualified and energetic."

Advocates Total Victory

A graduate of West Point and the Army War College in Washington, D. C., and a veteran of World War I, General Kilburn is an interested student of military history. He remarked that at the end of the last world war he personally had anticipated the present conflict because World War I was terminated by appeasement. "This war," he believes, "must mean the complete defeat of the philosophy that through becoming strong and ruthless a government can dominate the people."

Asked about the possibility of a third world war, Kilburn stated that this would be ruled out provided the United States remained dominant physically, mentally, and militarily.

"We must be prepared to resist actively whenever the occasion demands. Appeasement by the individual or the nation is a sign of inherent weakness. The American people must wake up to the fact that war, no matter how insignificant or where located, will affect us directly."
