

Harry Segall's Comedy Opens Season's Plays

"Heaven Can Wait," Harry Segall's hilarious "two-world" comedy, from which the movies patterned "Here Comes Mr. Jordan," will be presented by the University theater, under the direction of Horace Robinson, February 9, 10, 14, 15, 16, and 17. Director Robinson announced the new play yesterday after several days' deliberation over the choice.

Starring in the lead role is John Moore, freshman in journalism. He will play Joe Pendleton, the prize fighter with the lucky "sax," who unluckily gets snatched to heaven, 50 years too soon, by an overzealous holy messenger.

Playing opposite Moore, in the role of Bette Logan, is Annabelle Wilkerson Davis, freshman in liberal arts, graduate from Roosevelt high school, Portland, and winner of the Aaron Frank scholarship for 1944-'45. As Bette Logan, her task in life is to recognize Joe Pendleton's soul, regardless of the body in which it may abide.

Unlike other University theater plays of this year, "Heaven Can Wait" will be produced in intimate, or penthouse style, third floor Gerlinger hall.

Some parts are still open, especially for men. Anyone interested should contact Mr. Robinson at the drama studio.

The 'Deep South' Comes To Oregon

"One of the best technicolor factual motion pictures ever made," according to press comments, will be shown free of charge tonight to students of the University. "18th Century Life in Williamsburg, Virginia" and several added features are scheduled for the regular Wednesday night show at 7:30 in 207 Chapman.

This week's presentation is co-sponsored by the educational activities office, directed by Horace Robinson, and the Oregon natural history museum. There is no plot to the feature film, said Robinson, it is simply an undramatized account, in color, of the life and people of the times. The first forum issue of the March of Time will be co-featured, and the two additional films shown are "Airways of the Future" showing postwar international aviation plans, and "Photography Fights," depicting the part aerial photography plays in the war.

Petitions for nominees must be in the office of the ASUO president in McArthur court or be turned in to Audrey Holliday at the Sigma Kappa house at or before the time of the nominating assembly. No person who has not filed a petition before the deadline will be eligible for nomination. Petitions must be accompanied by eligibility slips from the offices of the dean of men or the dean of women, and all requirements for office holders must be fulfilled.

Ducks Trample Cougars; Grab Second Spot In Race

Roaring back with vengeance after losing the first game with WSC, the Ducks tore into the Cougars for a 47 to 34 victory.

Dominating the backboard at both ends of the court, the Webfeet had little trouble after the first few minutes in handling Washington State their first loss of the season. Jim Bartelt and Dick "Ricket" Wilkins started Oregon on the victory road by dumping in the first 12 points between them to hold a commanding 12-6 lead at the five-minute mark. From then on until the final minutes when Oregon eased up, the game was turned into almost a rout. The Ducks held a 26 to 14 lead at halftime and then boosted their margin to 20 points, the score being 38-18 with 13 minutes left in the ball game.

Freshman Jim Bartelt—ex-all-state from Ashland—led the Webfeet in the point department by casting in 6 field goals and two free throws for a total of 14 points. The Ducks return home Thursday to tune up for the first of the "Civil War" series with OSC Saturday at Corvallis.

Prize Offered UO Student

A gift scholarship is now available for all pre-nursing students, Mrs. Golda Wickham, acting dean of women, announced Tuesday. The Oregon Federation of Women's clubs, Mrs. Edna Jewell, chairman, is sponsoring the scholarship.

The conditions require the recipient, upon completion of her pre-nursing course, to go into cadet nurses' training. She must pass a physical test and an aptitude test, and her scholastic standing must be of the highest.

By filling out the applications now available at the dean of women's office, any pre-nursing student can receive the benefit of the scholarship for this term's work. If upon completion of this term's classes the student has kept her high scholastic standing, the scholarship may be extended for another term, if not in the full amount of $150, at least in a substantial sum.

Last Chance to Register
Noon Saturday, January 13, will be the last day for registration without special permission.

Jack Craig Chosen Head Of Dads' Day Festivities

What the ASUO executive council did Tuesday:

1. Selected a Dads' Day chairman.
2. Opened petitions for executive council and rally squad positions.
3. Turned over $50 to help defray the overdraft on the student handbook.

Jack Craig, sophomore in liberal arts and president of Yeomen, was chosen to head the annual Dads' Day celebration, at the executive council meeting Tuesday afternoon.

The council called for petitions for secretary-treasurer of the ASUO, the position left vacant when Adele Riggs graduated at the end of fall term. Also open to petition is the sophomore representative spot, chairman of the rally squad and positions on the rally squad, all open because of present office-holders' ineligibility.

Petitions must be turned in to Jean Taylor by Thursday, January 18. Special forms which have been printed for use of applicants, may be secured from Miss Taylor or at the dean of women and dean of men's office. Only these forms plus a certificate of eligibility will be accepted.

On the recommendation of Audrey Holliday, ASUO president, the council voted to give the educational activities board $50 towards this year's ORE-NTER to help pay for the overdraft of $208.99. The council also turned over $50 to Odeon.

Miss Holliday announced that the OSC-Oregon exchange assemblies would be held this term. Oregon students will go to Oregon State college January 31 and Oregon State will be entertained here on February 8.

One hundred per cent support of the "Lectureship on Religion and World Politics," to be held February 1-3 was voted by the council.

Band Petitions New Members

Unless 10 to 12 new players join the University band it will be impossible for the band to play at basketball games, said J. H. Stehn, band director, Tuesday. Any student who has some band experience, either high school or otherwise, is urged to contact Mr. Stehn this week.

Last year, because of the inability of several band members to play at games, the band was able to furnish music at only two of the tilts at McArthur court. This season Stehn hopes to sign enough musicians to have a full band present at all games. The band now has 40 members but many of these are unavailable for weekend engagements. This deficiency must be made up with substitutes, according to the director.

Students who play any band instrument are welcome to join, but brasses, trumpets, trombones, and snare drums are especially needed. Those who sign for basketball game playing do not necessarily need to join the band as a regular course and they will not be expected to practice with the band at the regular practice sessions.

All musicians on the campus not already connected with the band should see Director Stehn at the band room in the ROTC building, between the physical education building and Hayward field, on Tuesday and Thursday from 4 to 5:30 p.m. He may also be contacted in the music school building.
