

H. H. Newburn Named UO President; Freshmen Announce Candidates

Helen Steele, Pat Geil, Fredrickson, Marshall Picked to Run Friday

ISA and Greek bloc leaders Monday officially revealed their nominees for offices in the forthcoming freshman elections. ISA President Alice Harter stated that the independent candidates for office are Eddie Marshall and Patricia Geil; Robert Schott, leader of the Greek faction, confirmed the nomination of Floyd Fredrickson and Helen Steele.

As was announced in the Emerald last week, the blocs accepted the plan presented by Audrey Holliday, ASUO president, which provided that freshmen affiliated with both of the campus political parties were to be allowed this year to nominate candidates without coaching from the upperclassmen or pressure from the blocs. The Independents renominated Friday, January 12, in accordance with the new scheme.

At a Greek meeting last night the floor was turned over to a chairman chosen by freshmen representatives from each of the sororities and nominations were taken only from freshmen who presented their own cases for their candidates.

Iowa State Dean To Assume Post On Campus July 1

Dr. Harry H. Newburn, dean of the college of liberal arts at the State University of Iowa, has been named president of the University of Oregon, the Eugene Register-Guard reported Monday afternoon. At the same time Chancellor Frederick M. Hunter said the board had not taken any action and he could not confirm that report.

Dr. Newburn was named president at an executive meeting of the state board of higher education in Portland Monday, according to the story. He will take over his duties July 1. Dr. Newburn was 39 years of age on January 1.

Since the death of Dr. Donald M. Erb in December, 1943, Orlando John Hollis, acting dean of the law school has served as acting president of the University.

Dr. Newburn was appointed associate dean of the college of liberal arts at the State University of Iowa, July 1, 1941, and was made dean September 1 of that year. One of his activities there has been the direction of a study, supported by the Carnegie foundation, relating to the selection of teachers. In 1938 he visited England and Scotland for a study, under Carnegie auspices, of English secondary schools as well as teacher-training programs of Great Britain. Recently he completed a reorganization of the curricula of the liberal arts college at the Iowa institution.

The educator is a graduate of the Western Illinois Teachers college, Macomb, Ill., 1928, and received his master of arts and doctor of philosophy degrees at the University of Iowa, taking the doctorate in 1933.

His educational career began in the Illinois public schools, where he served as teacher, athletic coach, township high school principal, and superintendent of schools for five years. In 1931 he became part-time principal of the University high school. After receiving his Ph.D. degree he was made a full time staff member, serving as principal and later as director of the high school. As an assistant professor, and later as an associate professor in the University school of education, he taught graduate courses in secondary education, directing these in that field, and supervising the undergraduate teacher-training program in the university.

Dr. Newburn was married June 16, 1928, to Wandalee Brady, and they have two children, Jacqueline, 14, and Robert Lee, 12.

He is a member of Phi Delta Kappa and Kappa Delta Pi, national education honoraries, and Kiwanis clubs.
