Twelve Eugeneans are among the patrons of the conference on religion and world politics which will be sponsored by the faculty committee on religious and spiritual activities, February 1 to 3.

The Eugene patrons are: Alton F. Baker, publisher of the Eugene Register-Guard; Roy R. Booth, vice-president of the Booth-Kelly lumber company; Mrs. Mary Brockelbank; Frank L. Chambers, retired; Elmo Chase, partner-owner of Chase Gardens florists; A. C. Dixon, partner in the Central Heating company; Dr. Charles E. Hunt, physician; Chancellor Frederick M. Hunter; Roy E. Morse, partner in The Broadway, Inc.; Nathan Rubenstein, partner in the Rubenstein Furniture company; Dr. James D. Stewart, physician; Dr. Charles E. Taylor, physician; Carl G. Washburne, Washburne Investment company.

Board Verifies Appointments

The appointment of Mrs. Golda P. Wickham as acting dean of women was confirmed Tuesday by the state board of higher education.

Freeman Day, Eugene attorney, and deputy district attorney, was appointed special lecturer in law for winter term. Mr. Day received his bachelor of arts and bachelor of law degrees at Harvard university. He has practiced in New York and Chicago, and worked with the department of justice in Washington, D.C.

Harlow Hudson, instructor in architecture, returned from leave this term.

The remaining patrons include: Vice-President Burt Brown Barker, Portland; Andres M. Collier, Klamath Falls; Mrs. E. S. Collins, Portland; Mrs. E. C. Sammons, Portland.

Three distinguished speakers, according to Chairman R. R. Cushman, have been invited to lecture during the three days of the conference. Dr. Paul Hutchinson, for twenty years managing editor of the Christian Century magazine; Dr. Charles C. Miltner, president of the University of Portland; and Dr. William Pauck, professor of historical theology at the University of Chicago, are the men who will speak to University audiences in two weeks.

Basic English Class Is Begun

By BETTE JOHNSON

Mexican railroad workers took their first fling at the English language Wednesday evening, January 17, at a class in basic English instructed by Mr. Jack Simons. The class was held in 212 Friendly.

The workers started out learning the easy simple phrases such as "How do you do?" "How do you do, Miss?" After grasping the fundamentals of these phrases, they began to learn the different articles of clothing.

Senor Louise Campos, one of the advanced students, read in English, while Senor Edwards G. Ekuinones wrote sentences on the blackboard. A system of phonetics is used in writing the English language.

If their work continues at the present rate, much will be accomplished. The men are very interested in continuing with this class. They enjoy the language very much and also realize that as soon as they learn the fundamentals, it will overcome one of the chief difficulties in adapting themselves to this country.

For several months the workers have been trying to establish a Mexican center. They have now secured one at St. Joseph's hall in the Catholic church.

WAVES in Action *** Parachute Rigger

Stitching 'chutes is one of the functions of a parachute rigger. These girls, talented seamstresses, are working at sewing machines in the fabric shop of the Parachute Material School at Lakehurst, N. J. They'll also receive instruction in inspecting and packing parachutes — very important win-the-war jobs — after which their rating, illustrated in the inset, will be Parachute Rigger, Third Class. Their pay will be $78 a month, in addition to which they will receive meals and quarters, or $2.75 per day allowance when government facilities are not available. And, like any other member of the uniformed services, they will get the privileges of free mail, reduced rates on transportation, movie and theatre tickets where granted and the benefits of such organizations as USO, Red Cross and Navy Relief.

Dr. G. W. Beadle Due For Sigma Xi Lecture

Dr. G. W. Beadle, professor of biology at Stanford university, will lecture on the subject "Genes and the Chemistry of the Organism," on Tuesday, January 23, at 8:15 p.m. in 207 Chapman.

This lecture, the first of the public lectures to be given this year by noted scientists from other institutions, is sponsored by the Oregon chapter of Sigma Xi, scientific honorary society. These talks are made possible by the generous contributions made to the Sigma Xi lecture fund by residents of Eugene and by members of the University faculty.

Members of the student body and faculty are invited to attend.
