

Turnbull Returns From Chicago Meet

Laudatory resolutions on the work of Eric W. Allen, past dean the University school of journalism, were passed at the 1945 meeting of the American Association of Schools and Departments of Journalism, George S. Turnbull, acting dean of the school, reported on his return Wednesday from the meeting. Dean Allen, who died last year, was one of the founders of the organization.

The meeting of 45 representatives of most of the 35 institutions which belong to the organization occurred last week, January 26 and 27, at the La Salle hotel in Chicago. Mr. Turnbull, who attended the meeting for the first time in 21 years, and was pleasantly surprised at having an opportunity to meet Dr. Harry K. Newburn of the University of Iowa who is coming to the University of Oregon campus this summer to take over his duties as the new president. Dr. Wilbur Shramm, University of Iowa school of journalism, knowing that Dr. Newburn was to be in the city Sunday, suggested to Mr. Turnbull that a meeting was to be arranged. "Dr. Newburn expressed great interest in happenings in Oregon and is looking forward with pleasure to his work," Mr. Turnbull declared.

The purpose of the meeting was the formulation of plans for credit schools of journalism. A new organization to be known as the American Council on Education for Journalism, made up of members of the AASDJ and representatives of the newspaper profession, has been established and will begin operations in approximately one year. The council will evaluate institutions in regard to personnel, courses offered, and provision made for adequate instruction in journalism.

Mr. Turnbull reported he had found an accelerated interest in education for radio journalism and expressed the opinion that it is on the eve of great expansion.

Among old friends that he met in Chicago were Dr. Ralph Casey, head of the school of journalism at the University of Minnesota and a former member of the U. of O. journalism school faculty; and Dr. James L. C. Ford, dean of the school of journalism at the University of Montana and formerly a professor at Oregon in 1939-40.

YMCA and YWCA respectively. The "Vinegar Tree" was the last production of this type.

Intimate style is a trick device of presentation where the play is given ordinarily on the same level as the audience which is seated on three or all four sides of the stage. It exemplifies a new and popular theater form, and, in the case of "Heaven Can Wait" makes possible a quick production without the extra stage work of a major play.

Dr. Smith to Talk on Philippines February 5

Dr. Warren D. Smith, professor of geology and geography, will speak on "The Philippine Islands, Past and Present—Their Geologic History, Resources and People" on Monday, February 5, at 8:15 p.m. in 207 Chapman hall.

The lecture is sponsored by the Oregon chapter of Sigma Xi and is open to the faculty and students of the University.

There will be a business meeting of the chapter before the lecture in Room 203, Chapman hall.

Graduate Exams Given Ten Students

Graduate record exams of the Carnegie institution were given Friday and Saturday, January 27 and 28, to 10 students, including people studying for their doctoral degrees in the school of education, and applying for graduate work in other institutions.

Dr. H. R. Taylor, head of the psychology department, who administered the exams with Miss Leona Tyler, assistant professor of psychology, said he was pleased with the amount of interest shown in the tests, as they afford students an unusual opportunity. These exams take a comprehensive sample of the general liberal arts education of seniors and graduate students, Dr. Taylor said.

Helpful Results

Results are helpful to seniors in deciding further fields of study, and to graduates in obtaining graduate assistantships, as it places all applicants on an equal basis.

Another graduate record exam will be given late this spring, and it is expected that more upper-classmen and graduate students will take advantage of the opportunity at that time. Each exam took two half days.
