

Huskies Win 59-56

Wilkins Gets 20

Inability to keep from fouling cost the Ducks a basketball game at Seattle last night, as the Huskies capitalized on Oregon miscues to toss in 23 free throws for a rough and tumble 59-56 win.

Washington jumped into an early lead and held a slight margin throughout the first half as the two teams traded basket for basket. Oregon trailed by five points at the midgame mark, 36-31.

With 10 minutes left of the final period the game was tied at 39. At that point Captain Bob Hamilton was ejected from the game on his fifth personal foul when he tried to block a shot by Jorgensen. The Huskies then spurted into the lead, 55-44. Kenny Hays hit a push shot for the Ducks as they slowly narrowed down the Washington margin.

Fouls again jumped in to stop the Webfoot drive as Dick Wilkins, the game's high scorer with 20 points, and then Jim Bartelt both had to leave the floor on personals. The Huskies then jumped back out in front and managed to hold their three point margin.

The two teams tangle again tonight at Seattle with the game a must for the Ducks. If they drop tonight's game and Oregon State beats Idaho the race will be tied up with only five games remaining.

Esquires Top Intramurals

After a week's layoff because of midterms, the intramural basketball league will resume hostilities Monday in the men's gym.

The Esquires with five wins and no losses, and the Minks with four wins and no losses, are currently leading the league. The Esquires have displayed a remarkable offense thus far and lead the league with an average of better than 44 points per game. The Minks on the other hand have capitalized on their airtight zone defense which, in four games, has yielded a meager 21 points to its opponents. The theory that a good offense is the best defense will get the acid test when these two teams clash later in the season.

The second place Campbell coop team with 3 wins and no losses, is still in the running for top honors, as are the Monahans and Sherry Ross teams. The Monahans were forced to forfeit their last game because of lack of players, but they are capable of flooring a strong team and present a constant threat to the top teams.

Individual Scoring

Bill Mayther of the Esquires is currently leading the league in individual scoring with an average of 18 points a game. Second and third place scoring honors are also held by Esquires: Dean Bond with an average of 15 points is in second place, and Chic Cecchini with 9 per game, occupies third.

Once again we find that it is time to go to press. This edition is going to the servicemen who are Oregon alumni all over the world. We of this department are attempting to give the fellows the lowdown on how the basketball team is doing.

After playing a long string of preseason games they started out the regular conference. The reason that they played so many preseason games was to give the new squad members the experience that they needed to have for the coming conference play.

Coach John Warren only had one returning veteran from last year's Oregon team which placed second in the league. Thus Coach Warren had to build his team around the one veteran, Bob Hamilton, and freshmen were being drilled to make up the rest of the team. A couple of reserves from last year's second place team have seen a little action in the nine games that the Ducks have played to date, these two players are: Ed Allen and Marion Huff. Besides these two upperclassmen there are several freshmen who have seen action in some of the last few games played at home.

The Ducks' record to date includes: a double win over Idaho, three out of four from Washington State, a game from OSC, one won and one lost to the University of Washington. This week end the Lemon and Green will be out to add a couple more wins from the boys at Seattle. This is going to be a tough job because at home the Huskies will be able to use the naval trainees that they have. If the Ducks can gain a split series or better they will be very firmly entrenched in first place in the league standings.

Captain Bob Hamilton has been playing a fine game this season and has more than once pulled the Lemon and Green out of dangerous positions. His scoring isn't as high as it was last year, but his floor play has inspired the rest of the team to a fighting outfit that steps on the maple court with the idea of coming out the victor in all of the games that they play.

Dick Wilkins an ex-marine is at the present time leading the nation in scoring. He is a fast, hard-driving type of player that gives a team the scoring punch that it needs. His best shots are made when he is travelling at full speed down the floor and puts the ball through the hemp.

The rest of the team is also very good at the backboard and all are good shots. Thus it is hard for enemy teams to check any one man as all of the players have good eyes for the basket and are apt to start themselves off on a scoring spree. These boys are lucky in being able to play the racehorse type of ball or the slow 'em down type almost equally as well.

This is where we will end our column as we have to make that deadline so that you can get this edition of the paper. Good luck to you all and a quick end to the war. We will hope to see some of you soon.
